Walmart foes want audit

BY ALEX RUSH

Opponents of Walmart's move into Brooklyn are accusing the state of giving a developer a sweetheart deal when it renegotiated the sale of state land the big-box retailer is believed to be eying.

Assemblywoman Inez Barron (D-East New York) — a staunch foe of the superstore — says that the government slashed its price on a 14-acre plot off the Belt Parkway — after the zoning was changed from residential to commercial, which should have increased the value of the land.

Now, Related Companies, which wants to build its Gateway II shopping center on the site, is paying $14.5 million after it had already agreed to pay more than $20 million, according to a Daily News report.

The state attorney general still needs to approve the sale, so Barron wants the comptroller to audit the deal before it's set in stone.

"I urge you to investigate the deal further before allowing the transfer to go through," Barron wrote in a June 29 letter.

She also devoted two paragraphs to Walmart, including the line "If Related plans to bring a Walmart to this development as anticipated in rumored reports, there

CELL TOWER NIXED

But residents fear another may still come to the area

BY THOMAS TRACY

T-Mobile has taken an axe to its plans to put a controversial cellphone tower next to a Quentin Road public school, but residents believe the telecommunications giant still intends to put an antenna somewhere in their neighborhood.

"I heard T-Mobile already has a new site in mind," one Marine Park woman, who wished not to give her name, told us. "It's just going to be 200 feet down the block from where they previously planned to put one."

The woman's refrain comes after T-Mobile withdrew its request for a city variance that would have allowed it to build a tower atop a building near the corner of Quentin Road and E. 36th Street — which lies just across the street from PS 222.

Civic group and political leaders staunchly opposed the construction, fearing the tower could adversely affect the health of school children.

"Without more concrete findings regarding the safety of cell-

BROOKLYN GAYS

Borough is home to 100 same-sex unions in one day

BY NATALIE O'NEILL AND
KATE BRIQUELET

Dozens of gay couples tied the knot in Brooklyn on Sunday — on the very first day they could legally wed in the state — prompting a heartfelt celebration, tears of joy, and, a few protesters who hauled fire-and-brimstone-threatening signs all the way from Kansas.

Exactly 121 couples — old-timers who had waited decades, young women sporting sleeve tattoos with their wedding dresses and dapper men holding flowers — received marriage licenses on Sunday from the city clerk's office, and 66 wasted no time in taking the plunge, getting married in the Municipal Building or going across the street to Borough Hall, where Borough President Markowitz was hosting a marriage marathon with Champagne, cake, judges and photographers.

Another 16 Brooklyn couples were wed on Monday.

Downtown residents Barbara Tremblay and Stacey Minondo were the first to exchange vows in stately third-floor court chamber inside the People's House. They wiped each other's tears and sealed their marriage with a kiss before Markowitz, his wife Jamie and a gaggle of reporters.

Next up, Bay Ridge couple Taz Vallas, 47, and Edwin Ramos, 54, were wed by Rev. Ann Kansfield, a lesbian pastor in Greenpoint Alex Bertrand (left) and Jeremy Price got their marriage license on Sunday, though the couple won't be married until next week. Gerald Russell (left) and Carlos Jackson also got married on Sunday. — repeating a non-legal ceremony they performed 14 years ago.

"We always told people we were married," Vallas said. "But today, the paperwork is filed, and nobody can take that away from us."

The state's passage of marriage equality prompted hundreds of gay couples to jump at the first opportunity to wed.

The resulting frenzy of marriage license applications led officials to create a lottery, but in the end, the city accommodated virtually all of the gay couples that wanted a marriage license on Sunday.

"We don't have kids — so this is our legacy: We get to be part of history," said Annette Fisher, who has been with her partner for 16 years. "I can't tell you what this means to us."

Geraldine Whitsett and Barbara Pilgrim — both of Park Slope — were so eager to officially tie the knot, despite being together for 48 years, that they were the first two people in line at the Municipal Building on Joralemon Street.

Only a paperwork snafu prevented them from being the first same-sex couple to be wed legally in Brooklyn.

That honor went to Bobby Amagna and Mike Furey, who were just behind Whitsett and Pilgrim in line.

All morning, happy twosomes held up marriage licenses and embraced outside the building as supporters cheered and reporters asked questions and photographers demanded kisses for the cameras.

"How do I feel?" said Rhonda Waldon, who met her partner upstate 16 years ago. "I feel like it's about bleepin' time."

Nearby, a small crowd of protesters waved signs that read, "Fag lover Cuomo" and "God hates fags," the slogan of the Westboro Baptist Church, an extremist group.

"No matter how many people support this, God isn't going to change His mind," said Ben Phelps, a member of the church. "God said fag marriage is an abomination."

Gay rights supporters offered their own, much-larger counter-protest, with one sign reading, "It's a nice day for a gay wedding!" Most celebrants barely noticed Phelps and his group, which disappeared after about an hour.

priest, a rabbi and judges performed wedding ceremonies, and gay marriage supporter Julie Irwin and her husband Steve Landis offered up their 4-year-olds as “volunteer flower girls.”

“We explained to them that yesterday only a boy and a girl could get married,” Irwin said. “We wanted them to understand what equality is.”

Newlywed Joseph Costello, who met his husband online two years ago, was touched by such gestures. “This is the ultimate validation,” he said. “It’s a great day for civil rights.”

Borough President Markowitz — who has long championed gay marriage — agreed.

“In spite of a few misguided people,” he said, gesturing towards Phelps and his group. “We celebrate love here in Brooklyn.”

The marriage ceremonies came exactly one month after the state Senate abandoned years of opposition and cleared the way for gender-neutral marriages. The Senate bill passed with only one Brooklyn lawmaker on the wrong side of history: Sen. Marty Golden (R-Bay Ridge), who said that his Christian faith prevented him from accepting the notion that a man could sign a marriage contract with another man.

Barbara Tremblay (left) and Stacey Minondo were the first couple to get married at Borough President Markowitz's gay wedding marathon on Sunday.

Queens cantor Sandra Goodman, who joined Judge Bernie Graham and federal Judge James Orenstein in conducting weddings at Borough Hall, did not share Golden's view of the history transpiring at Borough Hall, across the city and all over the state on Sunday.

“We’re changing the world today,” Goodman said.

History is a whim for first legal gay couple

BY THOMAS TRACY

A Windsor Terrace pair entered the annals of history by becoming the first gay couple to legally wed in Brooklyn — but, to them, getting hitched was never a priority.

In fact, Sunday's visit to the City Clerk's office on Joralemon Street was done on a lark, they said.

“We really had no desire to get married,” Bobby Amagna, 65, explained as he fanned Michael Furey, his partner of 18 years. “But since it’s here and the state is approving it, why not do it?”

Furey, 63, agreed, shrugging his shoulders.

“It’s a blasé attitude, but that’s the way we are,” he said.

No, they weren’t exactly bubbling over with joy — especially when you compare them to all of the same-sex couples decked out in tuxedos and white dresses, giddily waiting their turn to get a marriage license.

Yet Amagna and Furey were one of the first couples found camped out outside the building when the doors opened. The duo, both dressed in white, arrived on Joralemon Street at 5:30 am.

But they weren’t the first on line: Park Slopers Barbara Pilgrim and Geraldine Whitsett were the first two to step into the clerk’s office — realizing a dream 48 years past due.

Pilgrim, 82, met her 76-year-old beloved in 1963 — six years before the Stonewall riots sparked the gay rights movement and just two years after Illinois took the bold step of becoming the first state in the nation to decriminalize homosexual activity between two consenting adults.

The two, also dressed in white, had gotten to the clerk’s office moments before Amagna and Furey did.

“I’ve been proposing to Barbara for years,” Whitsett said. “We thought about getting married in another state, but I would always say, ‘Let’s wait and see what happens here.’ Now it’s here and I have butterflies in my stomach.”

A paperwork snafu ruined their plans of becoming Brooklyn’s first wedded same-sex couple. As bureaucrats corrected the problem, Amagna and Furey skipped ahead, getting to Supreme Court Justice Ellen Spodek first for a brief ceremony in the nondescript nondenominational chapel.

Amagna and Furey left the office as quietly as they entered, planning to celebrate their nuptials privately at a nice restaurant.

Borough President Markowitz and wife Jamie got into the spirit with Alex Bertrand (right) and Jeremy Price, who will be married next week.

A wedding party? Not without Marty!

BY KATE BRIQUELET

Gay wedding party? Not without Marty!

Borough President Markowitz has long championed gay rights, so it was no surprise that the day same-sex marriage became legal in New York, he was with his lesbian and gay constituents every step of the way.

At 9 am on Sunday, he cheered on couples who waited outside the Municipal Building for their marriage licenses. A half hour later he turned Borough Hall into a wedding hall, where dozens of couples tied the knot and shared cake and Champagne — all on his tab.

“If it’s called marriage for my wife Jamie and me, it shouldn’t be any different for gay people,” he said.

Markowitz and his different-sex spouse were on hand for the first wedding at Borough Hall — the marriage of Downtown residents Barbara Tremblay and Stacey Minondo — and tearfully embraced as the women said “I do.”

He took photos with many other newlyweds, bid them “Mazel tov,” and even brought openly gay Council Speaker Christine Quinn into the receiving line.

“How could you do marriage equality without seeing Marty?” Quinn said. “The reason gay marriage was successful was because of Brooklyn and the outer boroughs.”

Markowitz’s legacy extends beyond the day’s festivities. In years past, he raised a rainbow flag atop Borough Hall, rode floats in gay pride parades, and secured funds for the proposed Brooklyn Pride Community Center.

When Albany legalized same-sex marriage last month, the Beep vowed to turn the People’s House into a chapel on the day the law took effect.

And he made good on his promise by securing two judges, a pastor and a rabbi to make sure locals could take the plunge without delay.

“We celebrate love here in Brooklyn,” Markowitz said. “I wish these couples as much happiness as my wife and I have been blessed to share.”

Nudists dream of shedding their suits and skinny-dipping in Coney Island

BY ALEX RUSH

Start spreading the nudes!

A group of skinny dippers wants to set aside a piece of Coney Island Beach so they can get a full-frontal tan, but the city says the bathers need to keep their shirts — and especially their pants — on.

The American Association for Nude Recreation says the People's Playground would be the ideal spot for newbie nudies to take a "nakation" — or to just hang out in the buff — because of its accessibility.

"It would work out great because it's easy to get to," nudie spokesman Tom Mulhall said, who added that such a hot spot could stimulate his group's membership rolls. "People may realize they love the personal freedom that comes with going nude on a beach."

And his clothes-bereft friends agree.

In an online survey, members of the association placed Coney as one of the top 15 places in the world they would like to see the ban on nude sunbathing fully disrobed.

Mulhall envisions dividing a three-mile stretch between Corbin Place and W. 37th Street into "prude" and "nude" sections similar to the designation at Black's Beach in San Diego.

But the city has already kicked sand in the face of the idea.

Parks Department spokeswoman Meghan Lalor told us that Coney won't go topless (officially, at least) anytime soon. Bathing suits are required at all city beaches and there are only a handful of legal nude beaches located within a day's drive of Brooklyn, including on Fire Island and in New Jersey.

And elected officials threw a blanket over the idea.

Nudists would love to splash around the waters of Coney Island, according to a recent survey. If they did, smiley faces would be optional.

Courtesy American Association for Nude Recreation

"Nude beach? No — not for me, not for you," Borough President Markowitz said at a press conference on Tuesday touting Coney Island's job growth. "The idea is to attract more businesses here, not drive them away."

Councilman Domenic Recchia (D-Coney Island) said that Coney Island must be set aside for families, defying a century of honky-tonk history that celebrates just the opposite.

"No nude beaches as long as I am a councilman," Recchia vowed. "This is a family destination."

Indeed, a naked enclave wouldn't be unprecedented in free-wheeling Coney (and we're not just talking about the widespread nudity during the annual Mermaid Parades). Experts say portions of the beach were reserved those who chose to take the sun in the buff — and those that wanted to stare at them.

"Nude sunbathing was always a part of Coney Island culture," said Charles Denson, who runs the Coney Island History Project. "All of the beachfront bathhouses had nude sun decks where sun worshipers could let it all hang out but they were segregated by sex. The funny part was that you could observe the nudists from most of the rides."

Hookers and cocaine!

DA: Coney Island Avenue office was the epicenter of prostitution and drug ring

Prosecutors say that Mikhail Yampolsky allegedly led a wide-ranging prostitution ring that employed 17 office managers, field managers and drivers, as well as 20 call girls.

Courtesy Kings County District Attorney's office

BY THOMAS TRACY

Talk about champagne wishes and carnal dreams!

A small Sheepshead Bay office above a Coney Island Avenue tile store was the epicenter of a multi-million dollar "high class" prostitution and cocaine ring that catered to Wall Street fat cats and deep-pocketed hedge fund operators — says District Attorney Charles Hynes, who brought the hammer down on the prostitution network last Wednesday, arresting 17 people allegedly behind "High Class NY."

Investigators say Mikhail Yampolsky and his tight-knit family ran "High Class NY" — an online escort service that investigators say was a front for the prostitution ring where hookers had sex and sold cocaine — which they called "champagne" — to clients, charging them anywhere between $400 and $3,600 an hour.

"Most customers would pay $10,000 a night that the prostitute would then share with Yampolsky," Hynes explained. "Cash would be split 50-50 while credit cards would be split 60-40. One customer paid $170,000, but God knows for what."

Prosecutors say Yampolsky, working with his wife and step-son, oversaw a crew of office managers who monitored more than five online dating and escort services advertising "models" available for dates and other forms of companionship.

But everyone knew the secret behind the websites — which had names like "New York Adult Dating," "The Discrete Club," "Cupid Direct," and "Angels of the Evening," — the "escorts" were call girls who would sell sex and drugs at the customer's request.

And all of the websites and the phone numbers attached to them were managed at one central hub — the office on Coney Island Avenue at Avenue T, according to Hynes.

"Calls went to their Coney Island Avenue office, where people were managing the phones in shifts," Hynes explained. "The prostitutes would then be dispatched to hotels where they would be paid for sex."

Adding cocaine to the mix upped the price, Hynes said.

Prosecutors said Yampolsky enlisted 25 "models" — more than 15 of which would be on call each night. None of the women were underage or victims of sex trafficking, but none were over 30.

According to its website, High Class NY advertised itself as "one of the top companionship services for those who expect the best out of life." The website also posted photos of young women described as "fashion models, pageant winners, exquisite students, graduates and women of successful careers to gentlemen with exceptional standards."

The website also promises that all dates are "individually designed to accommodate the needs of your specific occasion."

How To Avoid Risky Back Surgery With A Breakthrough Non Surgical Treatment And Get Out Of Pain Fast

Here's how the newest breakthrough non-surgical back pain and sciatica treatment may end your pain and solve your herniated, bulging or degenerated disc pain problems...

You may be thinking "What IS going to happen to me if I can't find a solution to my back pain or leg pain?" The answer to your question starts out hopeful. I'll just go to my doctor and he will take care of me. He will know what to do. But then something very odd happens to you. You discover your primary care physician is not really well equipped to handle that job. He or she is very busy treating infections, diabetes, heart conditions and the like, which they are very well equipped to handle. This is very apparent with your resulting drug prescription for Soma muscle relaxers and Norco, Neurontin or any other of the various prescribed pain medications. You then take the drugs soon to feel strangely like you're not altogether "there" or you immediately are sick, feel nausea and vomit the drugs as fast as you swallowed them. When you get sick of that (pardon the pun! I couldn't resist), you go back to your doctor looking for another more appealing treatment. This time it's physical therapy. The thing you already can't do!! You already can't bend over, twist, lift things, and now they want you to do more of it with a bunch of other back pain sufferers! Gimme a break. Now, you've really had it. You try the chiropractor and either you feel better for a little while only to have the pain return, or worse nothing happens at all. Or even worse than that, after your treatment you have MORE pain (not because chiropractic does not work..your condition is just too deteriorated or severe). Then you try acupuncture because you read in a magazine it could help pain. You then realize sticking a bunch of needles in you will not magically remove the bulging disc that is smashing your nerve and causing you pain. You try massage as you read on the internet massage may help alleviate back pain...only to be disappointed. You're now beginning to feel desperate. Back to your primary care doctor to tell him about your adventures hoping he will have a different answer this time. He does.

"We can inject pain drugs through a big needle into your spine." You cringe in fear and reluctantly agree at this point. "NOW I will be fixed." Or at least that's what you've been led to believe. You have either no pain relief, some pain relief, a whole lot of pain relief or it makes you have more pain. The second pain shot (oh, yes there will be a second and a third) is usually less effective or not at all and requires another one. You come to the realization that pain shots will not fix the disc bulge or herniation still smashing your delicate nerves causing you pain. Finally, your doctor recommends you see a "Specialist" (Back Surgeon) and he can do risky surgery. If you've read the latest article in the Journal Of American Medical Association*, you will see surgery patients and non surgery patients turned out the same! Why even do the surgery? Risk of paralysis, death, infections, more pain. No thanks. So. Back to the question. What are YOU going to do if you are stuck between serious back pain or leg pain or surgery? Great News! A new extremely effective non surgical new back pain treatment is now available in Brooklyn. If you are suffering from back pain or leg pain, having pain at the belt line, fire down your legs, numb legs, feet or toes or feel like a knife is stuck in your back you owe to yourself to check out this new procedure.

Finally, Some Good News! If you've been suffering with back pain or arm/leg pain caused by a disc bulge, disc herniation or squashed or compressed discs.

My name is Dr. Melinda Keller and I've successfully treated hundreds of patients with spinal decompression so there's no reason your back problem should be any different.

In fact, I'm so confident we can help you, I'm willing to back it up...but not with empty promises.

I GUARANTEE you will only be accepted into our program IF YOU QUALIFY for the treatment AFTER having THE MOST THOROUGH AND COMPREHENSIVE ASSESSMENT YOU HAVE EVER HAD or I will buy you lunch! (I haven't bought one yet!)

Yes! I am very confident, but I can't help EVERYBODY. You see, there's a very small percentage of folks we can't help. Here's what a couple applicants said after I told them both I couldn't help them:

"I was treated very well by the staff. The doctors actually listened to me and I thought they would rush me out of the office but didn't, despite the fact I wasn't a candidate. The exam I had was very thorough, more so than any doctor I have seen yet. The doctor explained things to me that no one else ever has."
Non-Candidate
Brooklyn, NY

"Meeting with the doctor, we discussed and viewed if I was truly a candidate for the treatment. The doctor let me know I was not a candidate but did leave the door open for me to seek her services in the future if I thought I needed her services."

Non-Candidate
Brooklyn, NY

And that's why I'm offering a limited time...

The FREE 17 Point "Damaged-Disc" Qualifying Assessment

That's right, no charge and no obligation to buy or do anything. But you will find out if you are a candidate for this revolutionary new disc treatment. You won't be left wondering if decompression could have eliminated your pain.

At your FREE Assessment we'll check out your: ligaments, muscle activity, hips, pain levels, reflex response, discs, tendons, spine, pelvis, x-rays or mri, range of motion, nerve function

"I suffered with lower back pain and leg pain for 2 years. I tried physical therapy, acupuncture, spinal injections but none of it worked. After receiving spinal decompression treatment, my pain has been totally eliminated and I can now walk much better."

Lincoln Leung
Brooklyn, NY

I felt like a truck ran over me. I was in such pain it was unbelievable. I gotta tell you, so far I've had 7 or 8 treatments, and I feel 100% better. I live away but worth every mile to come here."

Fabienne Alexander - Retired
Brooklyn, NY

I saw several different doctors, medical doctors, chiropractors and other various treatments with no results. I had a couple bad discs. I immediately started feeling much, much better and the back pain decreased. At the end of my treatments my pain is almost non-existent."

Burt Mclvain
Brooklyn, NY

"After reading the full page article in the paper, I was skeptical of the positive results of a treatment for degenerative disc that might show pain relief. My wife and I decided to make an appointment for the no charge (nothing to lose) 17 point evaluation. Guess What! Following only my third treatment, I was virtually pain free. I cannot thank the doctor and her staff enough as I am pain free!"

Guns on Ralph Avenue

Two gun-toting thugs raided a Ralph Avenue store on July 20, taking $1,000 and employees' wallets and cellphones.

The thugs entered the store at 4:50 pm and flashed a silver handgun, ordering everyone onto the ground.

They then pulled out two garbage bags, filling them with property from their victims, as well as the store's back office.

Gamer goon

A goon raided a Ralph Avenue electronics store on July 20 following an argument over a busted PlayStation 3.

Workers at the store said the 25-year-old entered at 12:47 pm to return the PlayStation 3, but got into a heated argument when a worker wouldn't take it back.

The man attacked the employee and ran out of the store — helping himself to several electronic items as he fled.

Caught rooting

A burglar busted into a Bergen Beach home on July 23 — but ended up scrambling out of the E. 63rd Street home when his victim caught him in the act.

The victim told police that he had just entered his home, which is near Avenue T, at 2 am when he saw the thief rooting through his drawers.

The resident jumped the thief, wres-ting him to the ground, but the thief managed to break free and ran off — albeit empty-handed.

Caustic attack

A thug injured a 37-year-old man on a city bus rumbling on Glenwood Road on July 18 by throwing a bottle of caustic liquid at him.

The victim said he was sitting on the bus passing Ralph Avenue at 10:50 pm when he got into an argument with the suspect, who threw the bottle at his face. The bottle sloshed all over the victim, leaving him in pain.

Stabbed in club

A villain stabbed another man on July 22 during a heated argument in a Flatlands Avenue social club.

The 17-year-old victim was having an argument with his assailant at 1:30 am when he jammed an unknown object in his back, leaving him with a puncture wound.

But he wasn't the only one to be injured that night. Another man bit into a 19-year-old's ear during the ensuing fisticuffs, sending his victim to Kings County Hospital.

Café crook

A thief broke into the Amazon Café on Quentin Road on July 22, taking $3,400.

Workers at the eatery near E. 12th Street said that the thief entered through a side gate, damaging the lock, sometime after 1 am.

Bus bumper

A man snuck his hand into a woman's purse as the two rode a bus down Kings Highway on July 25, taking her wallet.

The woman told police that she was on a bus rumbling toward E. 15th Street at 3 pm when a stranger bumped into her.

As he made his apologies, the thief snaked the woman's wallet out of her purse. He later used the woman's credit cards to make several purchases at local stores.

Wallet grab

A thief swiped a wallet from a 16-year-old girl waiting for the bus on Nostrand Avenue on July 20.

The victim was standing by the bus stop near Avenue U just after midnight when the man came up behind her and ran off with her belongings.

BMW break-in

A crook broke into a 2009 BMW as it sat parked on Avenue T on July 18, taking the driver's wallet.

The victim had left the car parked near E. 14th Street at 10:30 pm. When he returned to it at 4 am the next morning, his driver's side window had been smashed and his wallet was missing.

Beaten with stick

A woman jumped a female friend on Flatlands Avenue on July 20.

The victim was nearing E. 37th Street at 6:30 pm when the 32-year-old attacked, leaving her victim with a small injury.

Terrorist's dad convicted of hiding evil conspiracy

The father of an admitted terrorist was convicted of trying to cover up his son's plot to bomb the New York City subway system on July 22 — and is now facing 40 years in prison for it.

A Brooklyn federal jury found Mohammed Wali Zazi guilty of conspiracy and obstruction of justice after a day-and-a-half of deliberations.

Federal prosecutors said Zazi's son, Nejibullah Zazi, had planned to plant bombs made out of beauty supply chemicals in a number of New York train stations in 2009, but gave up his plan after he learned that the FBI was closing in on him.

The FBI learned that Nejibullah had sent e-mail messages to a contact in Pakistan wanting to know about the key ingredients needed for constructing a bomb. When Nejibullah was visiting New York City from Colorado, the FBI conducted a search of his car and discovered handwritten bomb-making notes.

He ultimately pled guilty to his crime and was sentenced to prison.

That's when federal investigators focused on 55-year-old Mohammed Zazi. Throughout the investigation, the father refused to cooperate with the FBI, prosecutors said.

During his trial, federal prosecutors paraded three family members to testify that Mohammed Zazi knew what his son was doing and warned his relatives not to mention it to anyone. They said he even told family members to swap the words "chemicals" to "medicine" when they talked to each other, fearing that the FBI was listening in.

Federal prosecutors said Mohammed Zazi lied to investigators repeatedly when they asked him questions about his son and an Imam in Queens — the one who ultimately tipped off federal officials to the young man's terrorist plot. Zazi told investigators that he had no idea who the Imam was, even though the FBI had proof that the two men had been friends for years.

Zazi had also told family members to destroy all of the chemicals that his son had collected in his bomb plot.

"[Zazi] sought to conceal one of the most serious terror plots in recent times. He also enlisted others to help him spin his web of lies and to destroy key evidence," explained Loretta Lynch, United States Attorney for the Eastern District. "Had the plot not been thwarted, it would have left Americans at grave risk. And just as we and our partners in law enforcement vigorously prosecute those who plot terrorist attacks, we will also bring justice to those who obstruct the government's investigations into those plots."

Attempts to reach Zazi's attorney were not successful. Zazi is expected to be sentenced in December.

Nursing schools scam students

Two Brooklyn nursing schools have ended up in the center of a state-wide investigation where students unwillingly paid top dollar for fraudulent degrees.

Investigators from Attorney General Eric Schneiderman's office indicted eight people who worked at a number of nursing schools in the area, including the International Language and Professional Network on Flatbush Avenue near Caton Avenue, and the Envision Review Center on Flatbush Avenue near Avenue L in Midwood.

In the indictment, investigators claim that the suspects conspired to create a number of uncredited nursing schools in underprivileged neighborhoods.

The schools advertised that if students completed their programs, they would be eligible to take the New York State Nursing Board Exam and become licensed practicing nurses or registered nurses.

Students forked over between $7,000 and $20,000 for the classes and spent up to two years to complete the program, only to be given a worthless piece of paper, investigators found after conducting undercover operations in several of these schools.

Attorneys for the defendants could not be reached for comment.

Judge's ruling allows charter school's move into PS 114

BY THOMAS TRACY

A judge has allowed the city's to house 15 privately run charter schools inside public school buildings last week, removing the last hurdle keeping the Explore Excel Charter school from opening inside a century-old Canarsie schoolhouse.

State Supreme Court Judge Paul G. Feinman said the injunction, filed by the United Federation of Teachers and NAACP in May, lacked merit, and he wouldn't stop the city from moving forward with its plans to place charter schools, which are funded with tax dollars but run by companies working outside the Department of Education, within public schools. In the same decision, Feinman also allowed the city to close 22 poor-performing schools throughout the five boroughs.

The decision, rendered on July 21, has cleared the path for Excel to open in-

The judge has ruled that a "family friendly" charter school will move into PS 114 on Remsen Avenue. Photo by Arthur De Gaeta side PS 114 on Remsen Avenue near Farragut Road.

More than 200 students are enrolled in Excel's freshman class, but the lawsuit left them in limbo: parents went into the summer not knowing where their children would go to school in September.

Morty Ballen, founder of the Explore Charter School, said he was thrilled by Judge Feinman's ruling.

"Excel Charter was designed specifically to serve the Canarsie community in the 114 catchment area," Ballen said. "[The judge's ruling] enables us to build on the momentum we've maintained and open a great school to serve our students."

Citing poor test scores, the city wanted to completely replace PS 114 with a charter school. But widespread protests from parents, teachers, and civic leaders forced the city to retain the existing PS 114, as long as the Explore Excel Charter School was allowed to move in.

Everyone agreed to the compromise, except for the United Federation of Teachers. In its lawsuit, the teacher's union claimed that the city was discriminating against PS 114 by allowing Explore Excel students to use common areas like the gym and playground for longer periods of time even though the charter school's enrollment makes up just one-third of the building's student body.

Some PS 114 parents agreed with those claims.

"We're burdened with having to share our building and resources with Explore Charter kids," said James Orr. "I'm not against charter schools, I'm just against a charter school coming in and sharing a building with my kid's school — and diminishing my child's education."

The United Federation of Teachers said they will continue with other aspects of the lawsuit, but admitted that none of the remaining claims will keep the city from opening a charter school in PS 114.

"Judge Feinman has declined our request for an injunction, but his decision does not affect the underlying issues of fairness and due process," explained Dick Riley, a spokesman for the teachers' union.

you expect in a woman," the website says.

But the website also posts a disclaimer, indicating that the company doesn't have any "knowledge of illegal activity."

"The exchange of money is only for time and discreet companionship," the website indicates. "Anything other than this is by personal choice between adults of legal age and not allowed by anyone through High Class NY."

The number attached to the website was disconnected on Wednesday.

Prosecutors say Yampolsky only pretended to be legitimate business. To promote the charade, he demanded that his call girls sign bogus employment contracts indicating that they were to sell customers "their time and companionship only."

The Johns, of course, knew otherwise, but won't be testifying.

A DA spokesman said that none of them will be called to the stand because it "wasn't necessary."

"The Johns could only testify about the hookers," the spokesman said. "The real question at the heart of this case is what [Yampolsky] knew and what he knew the Johns wanted when they asked for champagne. If we had a John testify that he had sex with a model doesn't mean that Yampolsky knew it was going on."

Prosecutors said the prostitution ring earned $7 million between 2007 and 2010. Yampolsky blew most of the profits on expensive cars and trips to Atlantic City, Hynes said.

Yampolsky, his wife, step-son and managers all face 25 years in prison for organizing and maintaining the prostitution ring. Two prostitutes were also indicted after being caught in undercover sting operations with police.

Prosecutors said Yampolsky, a resident of Brighton Fourth Street, was arrested on a weapons possession charge in 1992 and had been sentenced to five years probation.

Calls to Yampolsky's attorney, were not returned.

Marty fined for wife's free travel

BY ALEX RUSH

Borough President Markowitz abused his government position by scoring three free overseas trips for his wife, a city ethics panel ruled on Monday, but the Beep defiantly denied the allegation.

The City Conflicts of Interest Board's decision is based on a May ruling by an administrative law judge stating that Markowitz should not have allowed the governments of Turkey and the Netherlands to pay some expenses for his better half, Jamie, during trips to those countries. According to city law, the Beep can accept free business-related travel, but can't bring a plus-one.

"[Markowitz] received the trips abroad because of his position as borough president of Brooklyn and his wife went on all three trips because of her relationship with him," wrote Judge Kevin Casey. "By accepting travel expenses for his wife, [Markowitz] used his position as a public servant for private or personal advantage."

Two of the three freebie excursions took place in 2009, the year that the Beep accepted more free travel than any other elected official in the city, according to financial records released by the board.

And the Beep may have misled the city about his wife being comped. He wrote to the board before an August, 2007, trip to promote Brooklyn in Turkey that he would "pay for [his wife's] airfare, meals and incidental expenses." The Beep did pay for his wife's overseas flight, but the Turkish government comped her hotel, meals and flight between two Turkish cities.

Markowitz defiantly insists that he never tried to hide his spouse's perks.

"The only way the board found out about these trips was voluntary disclosure," he said in a statement. He also asserted that the punishment is absurd because Jamie is "the First Lady of Brooklyn."

"I am not ashamed of what I did, and I do not think this fine is fair or even sane," Markowitz said.

"When Jamie and I were on these trips foreign officials looked at us as a team."

Casey disagreed in his ruling.

"The respondent's wife does not have any official role in the borough president's office," Casey wrote. "Even though she actively participated in some of the events abroad, her attendance was not required. ... There's simply no meaningful comparison with the First Lady of the United States."

It is unclear why Jamie Markowitz, who works part time as a graphic designer for City Tech in Downtown, joined her husband on the trips, judging by the itineraries.

In the Netherlands, for example, Markowitz was on hand to celebrate the 400th anniversary of Henry Hudson's journey to New York. Both Markowitzes wine and dined with local mayors, spoke at ceremonies, and minted a coin in honor of Hudson.

The couple also visited hospitals, religious centers and development projects.

Markowitz appears to be the only local official with this kind of ethnical transgression. When Council Speaker Christine Quinn got a free junket to Belfast in 2009, she brought her father along — but paid for all his expenses, the board ruled.

Markowitz can appeal his penalty to the State Supreme Court, but told the New York Post that he will "pay the g—damn fine."

The $20,000 fine is based on the travel expenses that Jamie racked up: $3,000 for the 2007 Turkey trip, $7,000 for the 2009 Netherlands trip and $10,000 for a second trip to Turkey in 2009. The maximum penalty that the board can impose on a city official who abused his position is $30,000.

This isn't Markowitz's first brush with the ethics panel. In February, the board hit the Beep with a $2,000 fine for using his chief of staff as his lawyer during a personal real-estate closing.

And it's not the first time that Jamie Markowitz was involved in a story about misappropriated perks. Two years ago, she made headlines for swiping eight placemats designed by Japanese artist Takashi Murakami and intended as parting gifts at a Brooklyn Museum gala.

Unemployment Is Not the Problem...

By Dr. Stephen Finger

Now that the quadrennial silly season is upon us and every American who can spell, "Pick me, pick me," is running for President, we will not be able to open a newspaper or turn on the television without hearing about a new proposal for 'Creating jobs.' Pickled jobs, fried jobs, boiled jobs, jobs kielbasa... pass the pepto bismal jobs...all miss the point.

A high unemployment index is not the problem. It's an indicator of a problem. Just as a thermometer tells us something about the weather, the unemployment numbers tell us something about the economy. And just as tinkering with the thermometer will not make the weather more to our liking, borrowing, taxing and printing billions of dollars to create 'jobs' will not make the economy more to our liking either. When the money runs out, the jobs disappear and we're that much poorer and deeper in debt.

It's like the old joke about the man who breaks his arm and goes to the doctor. The doctor takes an x-ray, tells the man his arm is broken and he'll fix it for him...for 500 dollars.

"500 dollars?!" says the man. "That's outrageous. I'll give you 100 dollars."

"For 100 dollars, I'll touch up the X-ray," replies the doctor.

A prosperous economy, an economy where every employer is not constantly watching his back to see what surprises the government has for him next, an economy where success is admired and not...targeted...will have very little unemployment. The unemployment numbers just tell us if our arm, or our economy, is still broken.

HYNES: ARON DRUGGED LEIBY

Kensington man is indicted for gruesome murder of child

BY DAN MACLEOD

An accused child killer gave Leiby Kletzky a potent mix of pills before smothering the Borough Park 8-year-old with a bath towel on July 12, officials said last Wednesday.

District Attorney Charles Hynes formally charged Levi Aron, 35, of Kensington, in the kidnapping and murder of Kletzky after the Medical Examiner released autopsy findings that showed that the child was given Vicodin, a muscle relaxant, an anti-psychotic and Tylenol before being suffocated.

"At some point he caused the child to ingest a large number of drugs and then Aron used a towel to smother the child until he died," said Hynes.

A grand jury handed up the eight-count indictment, charging that Aron kidnapped and held Kletzky against his will for 12 hours, at one point restraining the child.

If convicted, Aron faces a maximum of life in prison without parole.

The indictment came the week that Aron's defense team suffered a blow when Gerard Marrone, one half of the accused kiddie slayer's defense team, stepped down over "the horrific way this boy was killed," the Daily News reported.

"I have three little boys," Marrone said. "You can't look at yourself in the mirror, knowing that a little boy, who's close in age to my eldest son, was murdered so brutally."

Pierre Bazile, Aron's other lawyer, attacked Marrone, claiming he bailed on his client "over a difference in possible defense strategy." He also criticized his former colleague for making remarks to the press.

A parade of politicians sat shiva with Kletzky's grieving family last week, who made their first public statement on the website chabad.org on July 21.

"We pray that none of Prosecutors formally charged Levi Aron, 35, with the death of Leiby Kletzky last Wednesday after the medical examiner released a report saying the boy was drugged and smothered to death.

you should ever have to live through what we did," Nachman and Itta Kletzky wrote. "But if any tragedy is to ever befall any of you, G-d forbid, you should be blessed with a community and public as supportive as ours. We feel that through Leiby we've become family with you all."

Pols last week also introduced "Leiby's Law" — legislation that would establish "safe" businesses where lost kids could go to wait for their parents to come get them.

The law would require shop owners interested in helping out to get background checks on their employees and put up stickers in their windows indicating that their shops are safe for kids.

That could have changed the fate of Leiby, who was supposed to meet his mother at 50th Street and 13th Avenue on July 11, after walking seven blocks home from day camp at the Yeshiva Boyan on 44th Street between 12th and 13th avenues using a route he practiced previously with her.

But when he did it by himself, he never made it to her.

In a detailed and chilling confession by Aron shortly after his arrest, the plumbing supply store clerk admitted to killing the boy and chopping him up, police said, but made no mention of drugging the child.

Kletzky was heading toward 18th Avenue, where he came upon Aron and asked for directions. At the time, Aron was in Borough Park to pay a bill at his dentist's office.

Aron took the boy to a wedding upstate, then took him back to his house, where the two spent the night, said prosecutors.

The next morning, Aron claimed he panicked when he saw leaflets seeking the missing boy, he said, so he smothered the child and cut up his body.

Cops traced him back to his apartment from surveillance footage and credit card transactions in the area, and arrested him at his house, where they found the boy's feet in a bag in the fridge. Aron then led them to a Dumpster on 20th Street between Fourth and Fifth avenues in Greenwood Heights where he had threw out the other body parts, which were packed in a red suitcase.

Cymbrowitz wants trash compactors for Sheepshead Bay

BY ALEX RUSH

A Sheepshead Bay legislator insists that high-tech, solar-powered trash compactors will solve the neighborhood's litter problem — and claims he'll pay to have them installed — even though the city says it's tried them already and knows they're destined to fail.

Assemblyman Steven Cymbrowitz (D-Sheepshead Bay) is considering placing several machines, which crush all trash that goes into it, along Emmons Avenue from Sheepshead Bay Road to Holocaust Park. Residents of the waterfront community have been fuming this summer about overfilled garbage cans turning their streets into giant dumpsters, and Cymbrowitz says solar-powered compactors could provide rubbish relief because their capacities are five times greater than a typical garbage pail.

"They save on Sanitation pick-ups," Cymbrowitz said.

BigBelly buckets cost $3,000 a piece, but the local lawmaker says he can cough up a portion of the $450,000 he's been allocated for improvements to Emmons Avenue, though he needs permission from the Parks Department and the Department of Sanitation to actually install them.

Sanitation isn't a fan of the futuristic cans. The Department of Sanitation told us that the city has already tested the BigBelly machines on borough streets — and the trash compactors failed miserably.

"The compactor couldn't handle certain types of litter like umbrellas and people weren't sure what to make of them," explained Department of Sanitation spokesman Matthew Lipani. "Some even thought it was a mailbox."

On top of that, Lipani said the compactors can't come close to wire trash cans in cost: the city's cheap bins go for about $125 each.

And some locals fear that people will abuse the cans, clogging them with large items like cardboard boxes.

"That could be a problem," said local Stan Kaplan. "Who knows what people will try to put in there?"

These doctors are bringing a serious health concern to light

By Camille Sperrazza

Testosterone: it's not just for men anymore.

And testosterone deficiency is a serious disease that affects men and — to the surprise of many — women.

"Insufficient levels of testosterone are related to the underlying causes of all cancers," explains Dr. Barry Gordon of the Testosterone Deficiency Treatment Center in Flatlands. "Women suffer more from the effects than males."

How do you know if your testosterone levels are deficient? Symptoms typical for both men and women include the onset of chronic fatigue, physical weakness, and abdominal fat, says the doctor.

"Women may notice their rear ends become flat," adds Gordon.

Other common symptoms include the onset of depression, anxiety, the inability to concentrate, and some confusion.

Have you ever noticed that teenagers, particularly 18-year-old men, often have no fears and feel they can do anything?

"This is because their testosterone levels are very high."

But, a decade later, these same men don't feel as indestructible. That's because testosterone levels start to decline, starting in a person's 20s or 30s.

"Many people have lost testosterone by their 40s," says the doctor.

Testosterone is a steroid hormone, made in the ovaries, the testes, and the adrenal glands on top of the kidneys, he says.

"The main steroid hormones made by the adrenal glands are necessary for life and are secreted during our entire lifespan," he says. It impacts metabolism, blood sugar levels, blood pressure and the cardiovascular system, he adds.

But when a person loses too much testosterone, it can become dangerous for his or her health.

For example, women often develop osteoporosis and seek medical attention for loss of libido, Gordon explains.

Dr. Martin Slavin
of the Testosterone Deficiency Center.

Studies suggest that "postmenopausal women receive testosterone to prevent breast cancer," he says. Such treatment "is safe and has no side effects, when the proper dose of testosterone" is provided.

Gordon shares an office with colleague Dr. Martin Slavin. They can provide a diagnosis, via a blood test.

If you're wondering why you have not heard or read more about testosterone deficiency, you're not alone.

"It's been swept under the medical rug and kept there," says Dr. Gordon. "Even most of the medical community knows very little, if anything, about the scope and severity of this disease."

Make an appointment today to see the doctors who are talking about it.

Eww! Sea Gate drowns in sewage

BY ALEX RUSH

An exclusive Southern Brooklyn beach may be ridden with millions of gallons of raw sewage due to a leak at a Manhattan wastewater treatment plant, and the city is warning beach-goers to steer clear of the fetid water during the most blistering heat wave of the year.

The filth began seeping out of the North River Wastewater Treatment Plant in Harlem last Wednesday after a fire and has since traveled 20 miles down the Hudson River to Sea Gate Beach on Gravesend Bay. The city is warning beach-goers to stay on the sand until further notice.

"Water quality modeling indicates that the beaches have been potentially impacted by the untreated sewer discharges from the Water wasteland! Alex Klauvers bravely takes a dip at Sea Gate Beach, which the city says is contaminated with raw sewage.

North River Wastewater Treatment Plant," wrote the Health Department in a statement on the hottest day of the year. "Though the beaches are not closed, the Health Department does not recommend swimming and bathing."

The private section of the beach to the west of Coney Island is the only Brooklyn beach that the city says may be unsafe. Coney Island's waters, a few miles east of the southbound sewage's path, are unaffected, according to the Health Department.

Sea Gate residents say they are disgusted to hear that they can't cool off from the heat wave because feces may be lurking in their exclusive portion of the bay.

"This is horrible!" said Tom Garcia, who has a season pass at the beach. "The water is already greenish and yucky, but nobody should be in it now."

and fecal matter can cause giardiasis, a parasitic infection of the small intestine that causes nausea and diarrhea.

The city can't say when it will be safe to swim, but the leak has been plugged, according to the city.

Beach-goers have been wary of Southern Brooklyn's waters for much of the summer. Waters stretching from Manhattan Beach to Coney Island are ridden with dangerously high levels of bacteria after storms, according to a scathing report released just before the Fourth of July by an environmental advocacy group. That study gave Sea Gate Beach a clean bill of health. And some Gerritsen Beach residents are steering clear of their private beach due to accusations that four local businesses used the water as a sewer for a decade.

Bay Ridge restaurants celebrate anniversaries with plenty of deals for you

By Camille Sperrazza

They've been around for 30 years, and they're not going anywhere.

The Greenhouse Cafe and The Cappuccino Cafe, two Bay Ridge restaurants that are staples in the community, will celebrate their 32nd and 30th anniversaries, respectively, this October.

It's a real success story: Owners Bobby Daquara and John Greenhouse Cafe bartender Patty McCarthy can make your cocktail however you would like.

Keegan started as dishwashers at the Greenhouse Cafe when both were in high school. They went on to become bus boys, waiters, captains, and, in 1990, owners of both establishments.

Last year, there were rumors going around that both businesses were closing. It started when customers noticed that the buildings that house both restaurants were up for sale, and they assumed that the establishments were going out of business, says Daquara. But that was not the case at all, he insists. Instead, both men re-enforced their commitments to the community by purchasing the buildings.

"We're going to be here for another 20 years and beyond," says Daquara.

And it's a good thing they did, because The Greenhouse Cafe's decor is as beautiful as ever, with its elegant 100-year-old mahogany bar as the central focus of the main room. Here, the wood floors gleam, the copper trims shine, and the comfy nooks and corners provide seating to mingle or to keep to yourselves.

This summer, the Greenhouse Cafe is participating in New York Restaurant Week. This means some great deals for you. For $24.07, you can enjoy a three-course lunch, with appetizers such as Caesar's salad, eggplant rolletine, zucchini chips, fried calamari, stuffed mushrooms, on pepper chicken over country couscous; stuffed shrimp with crabmeat and citrus chive sauce; roast loin of pork with baconkraut and bass ale gravy; grilled salmon served over an exotic salad; or veal prepared scalopine, marsala, or pizzaiola; as well as a number of other options. Potato or rice and vegetables are included, too.

For dessert, it's yummy cheesecake, fruit plate, tiramisu, chocolate mousse, or apple strudel.

A three-course dinner during Restaurant Week will cost you $35. The options are amazing — with twin lobster, surf and turf, grilled shrimp, and filet mignon. All year long, if you dine from 11 am to 6 pm, you can enjoy three scrumptious courses for only $19.95.

If you're looking for dinner and a show, The Greenhouse Cafe delivers. There's live entertainment Thursday through Sunday, and every Wednesday, there's karaoke.

The restaurant can also host parties and private functions, with several luncheon and dinner choices for all budgets.

Next door, at the delightful Cappuccino Cafe, you'll find the best cappuccino in Bay Ridge — thick with foam, and topped with whipped cream. With a light menu of burgers, salads, sandwiches, and lots of fun desserts, there's something for everyone. It's the perfect place at which to linger after a movie.

When the restaurants celebrate their anniversaries this fall, look for even more incredible specials to be announced, says Daquara.

Fighting for your right to light

BY THOMAS TRACY

Bay Ridge Rep. Michael Grimm is battling to keep 100-watt light bulbs on the shelves of your local hardware store, claiming the federal government doesn't have a right to determine how Americans light their homes — but some environmentalists think his plan isn't very illuminating.

The Ridge's Republican representative attempted to kill a four-year-old law that called for substituting inefficient incandescent bulbs — the century-old technology that has been the standard light since Thomas Edison invented it — with more energy-efficient fluorescent ones, when he voted for the Better Use of Light Bulbs Act on July 12.

But that bill still failed to pass in the House, so Grimm joined his GOP brethren in an end-around: he and his colleagues made sure no federal dollars could be used to enforce or promote the bill by adding a line to the 2012 Energy and Water Appropriations Act, effectively killing the Energy Independence and Security Act of 2007, which would have completely banned 100-watt light bulbs by 2014.

Grimm wholeheartedly supported the sneak attack against the energy efficiency standards — which he sees as a victory for free will.

"Americans don't need a nanny telling them what to put in their lamps. They're quite capable of making that decision on their own," Grimm said. "It's no secret that the government has grown way too big, but when it starts limiting our choice in light bulbs, you've got to be kidding me!"

Rep. Michael Grimm (R-Bay Ridge) is going to war against energy efficient light bulbs. He joined his GOP leaders to defund a law that would replace incandescent light bulbs with more efficient ones.

But some environmentalists don't feel the same way.

"I don't get it," said Brian Wennersten, a green building consultant. "I read that even the descendants of Thomas Edison are behind [energy efficient bulbs]. I don't understand why [he] wouldn't [support the act]."

President Obama has vowed to undo the changes made to the Energy and Water Appropriations Act.

If enacted, the new efficiency standards would require light bulbs to be 25-30 percent more energy efficient by 2014 and 60 percent more efficient by 2020. It would invariably end the age of the 100-watt incandescent light bulb, which takes in much more power than it actually uses, according to the Congressional Research Service.

But Grimm says the law would force Americans to spend more for an everyday necessity: the average energy efficient bulbs costs about $3 while incandescent ones cost about 35 cents apiece, he said.

"In this economy, mandating that consumers buy expensive light bulbs is absurd," he said. "We all want to move towards energy efficient options, but it shouldn't be through a mandate that breaks the backs of America's hard-working taxpayers."

Environmental groups claim that energy efficiency standards are too important to ignore.

"This is a public-health issue," said Elena Craft, a scientist with the Environmental Defense Fund. "These [energy efficiency mandates] are in the best interest of public health, just like seat belt laws and other laws designed to protect the public. Most of the energy used to power the country come from coal-fired power plants which can be very harmful to our environment, so if this nation adopts policies that require more energy efficient light bulbs to be used, it's doing it in the public's interest."

High rollers to get special amenities at Barclays Center

BY DANIEL BUSH

High rollers at the Barclays Center will get their own VIP entrance — with a concierge desk and a sleek chandelier — when the $800-million arena opens in Prospect Heights next fall.

The team provided a first glimpse of the under-construction Barclays Center's interior bells and whistles last Tuesday, releasing renderings of the arena's amenities created by the New York-based firm SHoP Architects.

"Nothing was spared in creating an inviting and spectacular environment," said Nets CEO Brett Yorkmark. "The interior spaces of the Barclays Center will provide premium experiences that are reflective of a sophisticated and dynamic venue."

Besides the VIP entrance on Atlantic Avenue, suite and premium seat holders will have access to the center's 10-person signature suite and the Court-side Club, which boasts up-close-and-personal views of players and entertainers as they enter and exit the arena.

Fans in the nosebleeds will settle for less.

Regular visitors will enter the 19,000-seat Barclays Center through a nice, but subdued, atrium that gives way onto a Main Concourse — rendered in subdued, earth-tone colors — and lined with food vendors, bars and a Legends Lounge overlooking the court.

The masses will also be able to quench their thirst at Beers of the World, an eco-friendly bar made with reclaimed wood.

"SHoP wanted the design of the interiors of the Barclays Center to be focused on bringing the energy of Brooklyn street life into the arena," said Gregg Pasquarelli, one of the firm's founders. "The design uses a simple yet tactile palette of industrial materials to create an urbane experience open to all."

The arena, being built at the intersection of Flatbush and Atlantic avenues, is scheduled to open next September.

It's part of developer Bruce Ratner's $4.9-billion Atlantic Yards mega-project, which includes 16 towers that have been stalled by years of delay, financing problems and lawsuits from community groups opposed to the plan.

Critics were nonplussed by the arena's glitzy design.

"It's surprising that they don't have the money to pay for the rest of the project," said Candace Carponter, the legal director of Develop Don't Destroy Brooklyn, one of the groups suing the state over Atlantic Yards, "but they're going to sell high-priced tickets to high-rollers who'll show up in big cars and clog traffic on our streets."

Feds comb Williamsburg for hackers, but nobody's home

BY DAN MACLEOD

A worldwide crack-down on the hacker collective known as Anonymous touched down in East Williamsburg on July 15, but the target of the global sting had no idea why the feds were gunning for him.

Authorities stormed a loft building on McKibbin Street in their search for 25-year-old Garrett Deming and his roommates, believing that they were part of the cyber mavericks accused of coordinating large scale attacks on corporate and government web sites, including PayPal, MasterCard and Visa.

Sixteen alleged hackers were arrested following similar raids across the globe, but when they reached East Williamsburg, the FBI came up empty: Deming and his friends had already moved out of the loft.

"They were looking for the old tenants," said Meaghan Ralph, 21, who had just moved into the sprawling artist colony two weeks before and had only gotten three hours of sleep when a half-dozen armed agents pounded on her door. "They were trying to be nice when they realized I wasn't a criminal mastermind."

Deming, lead singer of Garrett Deming, who works at a wine shop in Fort Greene, says he can't believe the feds think that he could be part of a hacker collective.

the band Broken Glow and assistant manager at Greene Grape Provisions in Fort Greene, was stunned when he heard that he was part of an international manhunt.

"I can barely turn my computer on. Any of our computer use is for band promotion stuff," he said.

Authorities say Anonymous attacked Paypal after the online payment company stopped accepting donations for the whistle-blower site Wikileaks in November.

Deming said the confusion may stem from the fact that his wireless network had not been password-protected while he lived on McKibbin Street, allowing others — possibly Anonymous — to access it, arousing the FBI's suspicion.

Experts say that's totally possible.

"If someone cracks into that service and does something illegal or ethical, if that gets tracked, it will get tracked back to the person that owns the Internet, which is you, not them," said Robert Diamond, a software developer and member of the Brooklyn hacker collective Alpha One Labs.

Deming and Eugenides lived in the fifth-floor apartment at the McKibbin Lofts with their band for a year, but moved to Bed-Stuy a few weeks ago when their lease was up.

When the agents arrived on Tuesday, they were looking for the band, Ralph said.

"They asked me about the wireless and whether I was stealing the Internet. They asked if any of my roommates were good with computers," she said. "They said they wanted the people that were living there before me."

An FBI spokesman declined to comment on the investigation since the affidavit is sealed, but said that the agents left when they realized that Ralph was not the target of the probe.

Since the raid, the feds have not tried to contact Deming, who added that he only heard about the police action in the newspaper.

"I don't want them to think I'm hiding from them or running away from them," he said.

Stuart St. sniper no hero

To the editor,
I heard that Stuart Street sniper Thomas Dunikowski posted $350,000 bail (“Facing the music,” July 21).

With his criminal violent history toward teenagers, will he still be allowed to reside across the street from Marine Park Junior High School and the park? If so, shouldn't the parents of potential new victims be warned? And where is the justice, as Francis remains hospitalized, still unable to move his left arm, enduring surgery after surgery, his only glimpse of the outside a few fleeting minutes while being transported between hospitals?

Thank you for your follow up on this Marine Park shooter. When other news outlets opted to sensationalize the story by misreporting it for two days, then dropped it because it lost its profitability, you and your paper continued to responsibly report the facts.

The actions of this monster, and the media's subsequent subjective reporting, demonstrates the depths to which our society has sunk. The media's irresponsible reporting of Thomas Dunikowski as a hero glorifies violence, and we the public shamelessly indulge.

Congratulations for understanding the significance of this story, and for the integrity shown in your reporting. Please continue to update us about the disposition of Mr. Dunikowski and this case.

Good for you, sir. You can sleep at night and look at yourself in the mirror with the knowledge that you didn’t try to help unleash another beast on our streets again.

Money and fame will never get you the love and respect your three little boys have for you now. God bless you and your boys.

Sarsour grapes

To the editor,
Once again, Linda Sarsour is causing trouble and you are encouraging her with your lousy, lying headline on the front page (“Banned on the Fourth,” July 14). No Arab was banned. No Arab was shunned. Their request was simply turned down.

If I had asked to sing at the picnic, I would have been told no, and I’m an American born and raised in Bay Ridge.

Linda Sarsour is a rabble-rouser who goes back a lot of years. She’s still ticked off about the Kalil Gibran school. If she didn’t get her way, it’s our fault and a smear against the Arabs. Bull!

This is getting both old and annoying. This is America. You cannot force what you want upon us if we don’t want it. We do not force our ways on you or your hair would be uncovered and face masks would be disallowed (which I think they should be, who knows who’s under those things?).

I have come to realize over the past 10 years that some of my notions about Arabs were wrong, but a lot of them, like you Ms. Sarsour, become confrontational if they don’t get their way. Each time this happens, a few more people are turned off. Just keep it up and you’ll all be back where you were on Sept. 12, 2001. Sooner or later, I predict anyone you might have won over to your side will speed into reverse.

Nobody tries to stop you from having your parties. Stop trying to make trouble at ours. And that is exactly what you are trying to do. Make trouble. Enough!

Diane Hunt

To the editor,
I am the producer of the Fourth of July picnic in Bay Ridge, and a major sponsor who started this event to bring back a sense of community and patriotism.

There were families of all ethnicities there, but there are no invitations given out to anyone. I book the musical acts and they play for free, but I would like to clear some things up.

I express no resentment or ill will towards the Arab community or Linda Sarsour. The one thing that I don’t understand is where this ranks in the importance of Arab American relations? I modeled this picnic concert after Willie Nelson’s Fourth of July Texas family picnic. The key word is “family” with all cultures coming together under the American tradition of a family picnic.

I know that Sen. Marty Golden (R-Bay Ridge) and Councilman Vincent Gentile (D-Bay Ridge) were mentioned in your article with regards to the concerns from Sarsour’s Arab American organization, but they really had nothing to do with it other than supporting and sponsoring it. To our friends who had kind words about the event, which I planned with the help of Chip Cafiero, “Thank you.”

I’ve enjoyed many of your paper’s articles, but your headline misrepresented our event, and it’s sad. Please inform me exactly who was “Banned On The Fourth?”

I respect Linda Sarsour, but couldn’t she or any member of her group just have come down and enjoyed all the festivities like everyone else did?

Un-Sanit-ary work

To the editor,
Your article about Sheepshead Bay trash really struck home (“Trash talk,” July 14).

I have lived in Gravesend all of my life, and every summer I have some sort of a confrontation with the Sanitation Department. It irks me that it does not tend to the trash on Avenue U.

Last year, I called Sanitation Garage 15 at least five times, complaining about two large plastic bags placed on my neighbor’s gate and filled to overflowing. It seems nobody was responsible for removing them.

Stanley has a fit over Mitt this week

The big question on magazine covers six weeks ago was “Do Republicans have a candidate who can beat Obama?” A Fox News poll released last Monday that showed President Obama was beating all of the GOP hopefuls. But less than a nail-biting week later — when it was almost Valium time — a brand new Rasmussen Poll shouted that ANY Republican Party’s candidate would beat President Obama, 48 percent to 43 percent.

That was followed by a Gallup Poll which had any Republican over the president 47 percent to 39 percent, a margin of 8 percent. So who will that Republican be? As of this writing, former Gov. Mitt Romney is leading the pack. Will he stay there? I hope not. I am not a fan of the GOP hopeful and it has nothing to do with his religion. I’m more worried about his Romney-care, which is Obamacare Light, and you know how I feel about Obamacare.

IT’S ONLY MY OPINION

In comparing the two, the Wall Street Journal wrote both “have an individual mandate requiring most residents to have health insurance or pay a penalty. Most businesses are required to participate or pay a fine. Both rely on government-designed purchasing exchanges that also provide a platform to control private health insurance. Many of the uninsured are covered through Medicaid expansion and others receive subsidies for highly prescriptive policies. And the apparatus requires a plethora of new government boards and agencies.”

Oh, sure. All the ills of America will be cured by creating more bureaucracies.

Would you believe that Romney has the nerve, the gall, the brass, the chutzpah to say that his plan is working very well in Massachusetts? Really! Since his plan, which was suppose to lower healthcare costs was passed the cost of Medicaid and other healthcare subsidies went from $1 billion to $1.75 billion a year. That’s an increase of 75 percent in less than three years. A family that buys health insurance in Massachusetts pays a premium 27 percent higher than the national average. Then there’s the almost a quarter of a million newly insured who pay nothing. Their costs are subsidized by the taxpayers. Did anybody mention redistribution of wealth?

The rationing of care has also set in. Many in the medical field have already left the Bay State for greener pastures, and a study by the Massachusetts Medical Society found that 56 percent of internal medicine physicians no longer accept new patients. The average wait for an appointment is seven weeks. Yes. You read it right. I said seven weeks, and if you don’t believe me you might want to contact Dr. Sandra Schneider, vice president of the American College of Emergency Physicians who said, “Just because you have health insurance doesn’t mean there’s a physician who can see you.”

The question my roommate now asks is, “If Romney runs for president in the next election, will you vote for Obama?”

Are you kidding? If Sam, my Labrador Retriever, ran against Obama, my vote goes to the canine.

On June 28, dozens of flights at JFK were delayed because 150 turtles were spotted crossing the runways to lay their eggs. Florida had a similar problem across Highway 27 and received $3.4 million in federal funds to build a 13-foot tunnel for the Testudines. Hey there, Mr. Raisman, how do you feel about your tax money paying to protect Florida’s wildlife? I am Stangershbein@bellsouth.net asking, if these creatures are so important to the Sunshine State, why not use STATE funds to pay for the tunnel?

All of my neighbors are gone for the summer, so essentially those men assigned to pick up trash in my neighborhood are on vacation, too. My sympathies are with anyone who tries to make sense of this city's pick-up rules.

Is Linda Sarsour serious?

Sheesh! If only the Arab American Association of New York had been as inconsolable over 9-11 as it seems to be over an imaginary snub at a Fourth of July community picnic in Bay Ridge, whose organizers correctly declined its self-serving request to have an Arab band perform at the Shore Road Park celebration.

Nettled group President Linda Sarsour — a Palestinian-American who once advocated for a pro-Arab public school in Brooklyn — argued, "Having an Arab-American band play at the Independence Day event visually displays that Arab-Americans are patriotic and they are a partner in all aspects of the community."

Maybe in her dreams.

Sarsour's organization has been dozing at the wheel when it comes to being a friend of the greater Brooklyn community. It earned the dubious distinction in the critical days and weeks following the World Trade Center terror attacks when those of us who documented the torment — memorial by wrenching memorial — were struck by the conspicuous absence of Arab-Americans, Arab-American

A BRITISHER'S VIEW

support organizations, and Arab-American religious and community leaders at the round-the-clock interfaith gatherings and vigils promptly organized by mourning Christians and Jews.

While New Yorkers wrestled over why Muslims would want to kill Americans, groups such as Sarsour's — which could have at least empathized — went into hiding. Their overblown fears about an increase in anti-Arab hate crimes — this is America, not the Middle East — went unrealized when the FBI documented 481 attacks against Muslims out of 9,730 bias incidents in 2001, and 170 out of 8,832 the following year when, by Arab reckoning, anti-Arab sentiment was supposed to be at its peak.

The real victims of bias crimes in both years were Jews, history's eternal scapegoats who sustained 1,828 and 1,426 attacks, respectively, but you didn't hear them bellyaching.

Sarsour revealed the extent of her U.S. allegiance in the 2004 Columbia Journalism Review article "Kerry Drew Disenchanted Arabs in Bay Ridge," in which she comments, "[President George W.] Bush has long been backing Israel with cash and weapons against my own people," and frets more over her own fate in America "these days" than over the abominable fact that her brother-in-law was serving a 12-year prison sentence in Israel for his association with Hamas.

That terror-mongering political party is described by the Council on Foreign Relations as being "the largest and most influential Palestinian militant movement" which "operated a terrorist wing, carrying out suicide bombings and attacks using mortars and short-range rockets."

Yet, Sarsour — whose first name incidentally is not Koranic but Biblical — doesn't condemn Hamas in the article, which also reveals that she was questioned by U.S. authorities and that her Palestinian husband faced deportation. She does, however, identify a pair of Arabs pictured on the front page of an Arabic newspaper she was reading at the time of her interview as a cousin who had been in an Israeli jail for 25 years, and a family friend serving a 99-year prison sentence in Israel. The writer also points out that the newspaper bore slogans urging a holy war against Israel.

People are not responsible for the negative actions of others, even loved ones, but they are responsible for calling out murderous thugs whose despicable deeds imperil innocent lives — and Sarsour has missed the mark, repeatedly.

Nowadays, she is reinventing herself as the poetry goddess, Calliope.

"Ten years after 9-11, freedom has a whole new meaning," she muses gaily in her recent online piece in our sister publication, The Brooklyn Paper, entitled "Freedom is About Love."

Hey Linda, now repeat after me: "God bless America."

School's out forever — that is, until college starts!

"Free at last" I thought in June — no more parental involvement in school matters now that my beloved daughter was college bound.

Yeah right.

Last month, when Bri informed me that Pace's orientation would be in July and it was for us both, I looked forward to the occasion as most people look forward to having a root canal — you know you have to do it but you really don't want to.

Little did I know when I said "yes" that the orientation would take place smack dab in the middle of a record breaking heat wave. Readers of this column know that I don't do heat well. And even frigid cold air conditioning doesn't make me any happier. Truth be told, the only place that I long to be during the New York summer is the South Pole.

NOT FOR NUTHIN'

Joanna P. DelBuono

Ah, but the things we do for love and family. It was 8 am and the temperature had already hit 90 degrees as I stood in line along with the other parents waiting to be herded into the Shimmel Center Auditorium at Pace University for the continental breakfast and a full day of activities. Marijo Russell-O'Grady, dean of students, conveyed us inside as quickly as possible where cold drinks, fruit platters, and muffins awaited.

It was at this time that I discovered that Bri was required to stay overnight at the campus and that I would be able to pick her up the next day after 2 pm. Overnight? No way. We were not prepared.

Why didn't Bri tell me? Why don't children ever tell you? As soon as I figure that one out, you'll be the first one I share it with.

Hot, crazed and totally disoriented, I immediately set out to discuss this development with the dean. After a little bit of haggling, the dean, realizing I was a woman on the edge and wasn't about to give in on this matter, consented that Bri could leave after the freshman BBQ at 6 pm, but would have to be back by 8 am the next morning. No problem, I would have her back bright and early.

The day progressed, our session ended at 3 pm and there I was free to explore the streets of Manhattan for the next three hours.

There was only one teensy-weeny problem, the New York City streets were hotter than Hades on a Saturday night, tipping the thermometer at 102 degrees in the shade.

Where to go, what to do, would I survive?

I managed to walk across the street to the Barnes and Noble book store before the inferno walloped my strength and left me breathless. I stayed there spending money on books and magazines I didn't need and the largest cold water bottle I could find. I cooled off somewhat, made my way back to the college and waited for Bri so we could face the long, hot, exhausting trip home.

Had I known that morning how tortuous the commute home — by subway, ferry, and train — was going to be and how miserable I was going to feel, I would have driven in. Damn the bumper-to-bumper traffic on the BQE, and the expensive parking tab, at least I would have had a seat and my own car to collapse into at the end of the day.

Not for Nuthin™, I thank the fates I survived, but what I really want to know is when will parental involvement finally end?

You think the post office is bad? Try Fed Ex!

I'm madder than a mailman who has to climb three flights of steps to deliver a certified letter on the hottest day of the year (or the coldest, with the steps covered in ice!) — and then find out that there is no one at home to sign for it — over Fed Ex's inability to deliver a simple package to yours truly.

Look, you all know that I delivered mail for 30 years for the United States Postal Service before I retired to my fabulous co-op in Bensonhurst, so I would understand it if you figured that when I complained about a competitor like Fed Ex (or "Federal Express," as they used to call it in the good ol' days) it's just sour grapes.

But let me tell you something: it's not! You know why? Because I'll be the first to tell you that the Post Office stinks! That's right, you heard it from the horse's mouth!

But I digress. This column is about Fed Ex, not

BIG SCREECHER
Carmine Santa Maria

the Post Office, where this particular courier took a day or two off from his appointed rounds, but only because he earned some personal days!

Look, I don't want to bore you with the details, so I'll get right to it. I wanted to get my 91-year-old sister one of those fancy doo-hickies you need to talk to people when the wire from your phone doesn't stretch far enough outside, so I went onto the Interweb and found a cellphone I thought she could handle late on July 1. That meant the order would go through the next day — which I figured gave me plenty of time to get it, set it up, wrap it up, and deliver it to Susie on her big day, July 11. I figured I'd have it by the fifth at the latest.

Boy, was that wishful thinking.

When Fed Ex never showed up on the fifth, I figured it had something to do with the day before being a holiday. Hey, I've been in the business and I know what that's like. Still, I called Verizon, and the people over there passed the buck, giving me the tracking number for the package and phone number of Fed Ex to check on its whereabouts.

That's when the phone tag began! Fed Ex referred me to a couple of customer service reps, who promised me delivery by 7 pm on Thursday, July 7. Ha! Repeat this scenario on Thursday, only with me ranting and raving and spitting blood because the phone not arrive, and I didn't even get a note from Fed Ex explaining that an attempt to deliver it had been made.

I was then told it would be delivered by Friday morning, and I vowed that if it didn't come by noon, I would refuse it!

I then called Verizon to detail the odyssey of Susie's birthday cellphone. The people there noted the complaint and told me that if I refused the phone, there would be no charge.

On top of that, they apologized.

But Friday came and went, and so did the many, many calls to Fed Ex!

Can you imagine my conversations with customer service reps, especially when I said I am going to give you the biggest insult you could ever receive?

"I am a retired letter carrier and after 30 years of delivering mail, I gotta tell you, everybody thinks the Postal Service was bad, but Fed Ex is the worst — ever!"

With this stunning revelation, Fed EX promised to deliver it by Monday, July 11.

On July 11, delivery was attempted at 10:24 am and for the first time ever, we got a "delivery attempted" notice — but nothing was delivered, even though my wife and I were home until 5 pm!

We left for Susie's birthday party with a picture of the phone that was never delivered. So instead of bringing a present, I brought an IOU!

I've alerted building personnel to be on the alert for the very elusive Fed Ex delivery man.

Of course, this reminds me of the Scarlet Pimpernel poem, and I will modify it for you: "We seek him here, we seek him there, we frustrated customers seek him everywhere. Is he in heaven, he belongs in hell, that non-delivering Fed Ex delivery man ... who never rings your bell!"

So thank you, Fed Ex, for putting a big, big, big, big, big, big damper on an otherwise wonderful celebration.

Now here's the point in the column where I point out that when life gives me lemons, I make lemonade by thanking the people who helped make the day grand.

Anthony and Donna, thank you for throwing a great 91st birthday party for your Aunt Sue. As usual, your party was exceptional.

Perhaps you can whip another party up Fed Ex finally delivers my present.

If we're lucky, that will be before she turns 100!

Screech at you next week!

is cause for concern."

State officials could not be reached for comment.

But officials at Related insisted that the price is right, claiming the discount is the result of a market downturn and the fact that the higher price tag was part of an entirely different deal that included "state incentives," according to a Crain's New York Business report. Related did not return a request for further comment.

But Barron isn't the only big-box adversary trying to block a deal with Related. Out-of-town union advocates have been crying for months that the $35 million the corporation is paying for the city-owned portion of Gateway II, which at 26 acres, is too low. Josh Kellerman of the Manhattan-based Jobs for Justice argued at a public hearing in April that the land is worth much more and should be reappraised to allow for an even larger retail center — without Walmart.

"Rather than look at all scenarios allowed under the zoning, it only looked at one scenario suggested by Related," Kellerman said.

And a spokeswoman for the Alliance for Greater New York, a workers' rights group, told this paper that "if the city of New York is giving a company financial incentives, those incentives should improve the community and create quality jobs. Walmart will do neither."

But city officials continue to insist that the appraisal is accurate, though the mayor's office has yet to approve the sale.

Related's reported plan to house a Walmart in Gateway II has been one of the most controversial topics of the year. Barron and union supporters fume that the non-union Walmart treats workers poorly and shuts down mom-and-pops, and the company has embarked on a massive PR blitz to refute those claims.

Walmart declined to comment on its imminent Brooklyn debut, saying only that "no leases have been signed in the city yet."

phone towers, I feel it is ill advised to allow such a tower to be so close to where our future generations are being educated, playing and making the most of their youth," state Sen. Marty Golden (R-Marine Park) said in a letter sent to the city's Board of Standards and Appeals, the agency that would have given T-Mobile permission to build.

Others said that a tower atop a neighborhood building would simply be unsightly. A similar cellphone tower on Avenue S has become an eyesore in the mostly residential community, residents said.

"[The Avenue S tower] is just feet from somebody's window," said one longtime Marine Park resident. "We don't need another one like that on Quentin Road."

The Avenue S tower is smack dab in a residential area. The Quentin Road tower would have been put atop a two story commercial building, but those living nearby still saw it as an intrusion.

But the Quentin Road tower won't be coming — at least for now.

The Board of Standards and Appeals has recommended T-Mobile find another site, and the company says is working to do so.

"We're committed to working with communities whenever possible to provide the first class wireless service families need and expect, and Brooklyn is no exception," said T-Mobile spokesman Jacklyn Kessel.

Kessel confirmed that T-Mobile was looking for an "alternative location" in the area but would not say exactly where. No other request for variances have been filed by T-Mobile.

"I'm glad that [T-Mobile] did what the community wanted, but we're all waiting to see what they're going to do next," said Councilman Lew Fidler (D-Marine Park), who has sponsored legislation to require cellphone companies to indicate where all of its towers are located. "The people have been very adamant that they don't want cellphone towers on their residential streets."

"I'm not prepared to give up my cellphone, but I don't want to live underneath a tower," Fidler added.

#60

Guaranteed better than all others they used say dozens of delighted users with full names and towns on the Bell website. Works by cleansing blood inside rather than attacking skin from the outside and leaving the actual cause untreated. Here are a few examples:

ACNE

Eczema
Psoriasis
Rosacea Rashes

By Dr. C. Hammoud Ph.D.

■ I had terrible Acne for 3 years and tried products with Benzoyl Peroxide, Aloe Vera and others. After 4 days taking the Bell natural product #60 it started to clear up my skin. My skin changed from terrible to beautiful. Mylene Theriault, 19, Sorel-Tracy, QC ■ In 2 days my son's face completely cleared up of acne. My son is 15 and suffered for 3 years. We used many products like laser, Neem that did not work or burned his skin. Veronica Marden, Seminole, TX ■ Unbelievable acne free beautiful skin Last couple of years I had acne and tried every product and antibiotics. Results with #60 were unbelievable. Thanks for giving me beautiful skin and my self-esteem. Nelisa Royer, 28, Doral, FL ■ Within 6 days eczema cleared up completely. I believe #60 addresses the cause internally instead of the symptoms. Latifa Boutshik, 43, North York, ON ■ I had severe psoriasis over 95% of my body. Last 5 years I have stunned every doctor and dermatologist. I spent tons of money on remedies. After I got Bell #60, I've never seen anything work as fast in my life. Within 2 days I saw my skin clearing up. I'm speechless. It was inexpensive compared with what I spent before. Jessica Shantz, 25, Dawson Creek, BC ■ All statements made on the Bell website are sent by delighted users. All are real people. Most have listed phone numbers and can be called for advice. No money is paid to them. Their reward is the relief they are getting. All say #60 works within days not months, not years. It's more effective than what they used before. It is less expensive (some acne suppliers ship monthly and charge monthly, which may amount to large sums yearly). No side effects were reported on #60. TRUE EVIDENCE that we are helping people.

East Coast Band lead singers Jackie Duryea and Big Mike take to the mic at Marine Park.

Downtown diva Aida Torres gets her groove on, while nimble-toed Marine park residents Edith and David Binn show 'em all how it's done.

Toby Rubinfeld, of Old Mill Basin, is a diva-tastic dancer.

FREE CONCERTS GET PARKS IN A MUSICAL FRAME OF MIND

BY SHAVANA ABRUZZO

Marine Park bopped till the stars twinkled, thanks to the rockin' East Coast Band, which kicked off free summer concerts in Brooklyn parks with a stockpile of sweet tunes that had the crowd singing and toe-tapping along.

Toby Rubinfeld of Old Mill Basin was a diva-tastic dancer, tripping the light fantastic in a red dress that swished with her every move. Nearby on the green, area couple Edith and David Binn showed 'em all how it's done by dancing cheek-to-cheek. Even wallflowers got their inner groove on, grinding and waving from the comfort of their lawn chairs, as Jackie Duryea and Big Mike — an “American Idol” contestant — dazzled on stage.

The music series, which is hosted by Sen. Marty Golden (R-Bay Ridge), and co-presented by the Bay Ridge-Bensonhurst Beautification and Preservation Alliance, and the Southwest Brooklyn Parks Task Force, features a super line-up through August, including disco, oldies and tribute bands playing musical homage to such classic headliners as Foreigner and Journey.

Easy, breezy live concerts are just the ticket to celebrate his community this summer, added

Golden.

“They give us a local opportunity to get out of the house and enjoy fun filled evenings of entertainment.”

All concerts are free and begin at 7 pm, except for Family Day at McKinley Park on Aug. 24 at 5 pm — and Alive N Kickin, set to dazzle on Aug. 7 at 4 pm.

Cancellations will be posted on the concert hotline by 5 pm if weather is poor.

The Jaffe Stroke Center received one of the most prestigious awards in stroke care.

But saving one life is the greatest award we could ever ask for.

100 years and growing 1911-2011

Maimonides

Passionate about medicine. Compassionate about people.

You don't become a leading stroke center overnight. At least, that's what the American Heart Association and American Stroke Association believe. They only give their Gold Plus Award and Target: Stroke Honor Roll designation to stroke centers that have the highest compliance with their guidelines, and that have exceeded their target for rapid stroke treatment for not one, but two years in a row. And the Jaffe Stroke Center is one of only 15% of hospitals in the country to receive both honors.

These associations know what we know – that if we can provide the right care at the right time, the patient benefits. Because in stroke care, time-saving treatment is life-saving treatment. To ensure that our stroke team is available at all times, we've implemented a Telestroke program. Using advanced videoconferencing, our stroke experts can be at the patient's bedside any hour of the day or night to quickly assess the patient's condition and direct the appropriate care. We are the first and only stroke center in Brooklyn with this capability.

For situations where every second counts, Telestroke allows us to save precious minutes and something even more precious – lives.

Flatbush reporter and resident “jerk” Dan MacLeod went in search of the best jerk chicken in the neighborhood, chomping into Exquisite Express’s spicy offering, as well as Erica McBean’s chicken platter (top) at McBean’s Restaurant, and Peppa’s Jerk Chicken, pictured below with manager Jason Hussey. Who won? Read on!

COOL JERK!

In search of the best jerk chicken in Flatbush

By Dan MacLeod

Flatbush is full of great places to eat jerk chicken. But who has the best?

I asked sources, friends, colleagues, my vast army of Twitter followers and random people walking down the street. They pointed me toward these three spots, kicking off the great Flatbush Jerk Chicken Crawl of 2011.

Almost every chef at the three spots we toured insisted that his spice blend was a secret, but jerk chicken is generally grilled or baked with a spice rub that includes Scotch bonnet pepper and pimento. The name is thought to come from the Spanish word Charqui, which means dried meat or jerky.

The first stop was Peppa’s on Flatbush Avenue between Clarkson and Parkside avenues — which was high on almost everybody’s list.

This spot has been churning out delicious chicken day and night since 2004, said manager Jason Hussey, who pointed me towards a large platter of jerk chicken with beans and rice and salad.

And large it was. I could barely put a dent in my delicious platter of smoky, spicy chicken, topped with jerk sauce. The flavor was great — but the chicken was a tad on the dry side. The rice and beans however, were amazing: simple, but cooked just right and a perfect complement to the spicy chicken.

The next joint, Exquisite Delight, on Church Avenue between Nostrand and Rogers avenues, had — hands down — the best chicken. It literally fell off the bone when I picked it up, and the spices were perfect.

The platter came with the standard rice and beans, but was augmented by delicious fried plantain slices.

Owner Claude Green said the secret is in marinating the meat for two to three days — and grilling the bird instead of merely baking it.

Our final stop was McBean’s Restaurant on Glenwood Road between E. 29th Street and Nostrand Avenue.

The place has only been open since April, but it’s already making a name as a go-to spot for Caribbean fare.

The jerk chicken was good — but couldn’t beat Exquisite Express. The real winner here was the stew chicken, which was succulent and surprisingly sweet, with a hint of ginger.

Also amazing were the rice and beans, which owner Erica McBean said was a family recipe.

“We’re the only ones who make it from Basmati rice,” she said. “The recipe is from my grandmother, was is Dutch.”

When you stop by, try the roti wrap, too.

Fever pitch

Southpaw is home to some Cambodian cool this month.

On Aug. 3, Dengue Fever comes to the Park Slope venue for a rare intimate show.

The LA band is known for its eccentric lyrics and worldly mix of 1960s surf-pop and psychedelic rock that's an homage to a bygone era of Southeast Asian rock.

The group broke out in 2008 with its third album, "Venus on Earth," which showcased its campy humor, epitomized by that disease-referencing name, and catchy guitar riffs on "Tiger Phone Card" and "Sober Driver," which comment on the peculiarities of modern relationships.

The band's newest album, "Cannibal Courtship," has a similar vibe, with its blend of surfer rock, Cambodian folk and dark humor that further explores complicated couples.

Dengue Fever comes to Southpaw — the band, not the disease! — on Aug. 3.

But the real treat is front-woman Chhom Nimol. The Phnom Penh native sings in a captivating, sultry mix of English and Khmer that's perfect for the band's power pop ballads and haunting melodies. Sure, you can't understand her half the time, but it still sounds great.

Dengue Fever at Southpaw [125 Fifth Ave. at Sterling Place in Park Slope, (718) 230-0236], Aug. 3 at 9 pm. Tickets $15. For info, visit spsounds.com.

Got the blues

Coney Island's got the blues!

Buddy comedy "The Blues Brothers," inspired by the legendary "Saturday Night Live" skits, will be screened by the carnie neighborhood's film society this month.

The 1980 movie features comedians Dan Aykroyd and the late John Belushi as two musicians trying to organize a rhythm and blues concert to raise money for the orphanage where they grew up. Along the way, they encounter wild characters like a neo-Nazi leader played by Henry Gibson, a restaurant owner played by Aretha Franklin, and a reverend played by James Brown.

The movie, which is accompanied by a killer soundtrack, is part of the film series, "Rock N Roll Summer." It's a weekly tribute to campy rock musicals that will also include Talking Heads' flick, "True Stories" (Sept. 3) and Prince extravaganza, "Purple Rain" (Sept. 17).

"Our mission is to defend the honor of pop culture, so we wanted to put together the theme of rock music and movies," said Dick Zigun, whose Coney Island Museum hosts the event.

"The Blues Brothers" at Coney Island USA [1208 Surf Ave. near W. 12th Street in Coney Island, (718) 372-5159], Aug. 6 at 8 pm. Tickets $6. For info, visit www.coneyisland.com/films.shtml.

Enter sand hands!

It'll be a sand-stravaganza!

This month's sand-sculpting contest on Coney Island beach will feature as many as 40 amateur artists crafting models of castles, mermaids and animals.

The 21st annual event includes separate categories for adults and kids, who can win $400 in prize money for their grain greatness. The sculptures, held together by water, often reach the size of the artists making them.

"People have so much creativity that they want to express," said Eric Levy of the Astella Development Corp., the community organization running the event with the New York Aquarium. "And a lot of people are really skilled in building these structures."

But you don't have to be building on the beach to enjoy the contest. Spectators will also be treated to dance groups and live bands, including a rock group made up of local librarians called "Between the Covers" and a Latin dance music ensemble called Santos.

"They really get the crowd lively and dancing along," said Levy.

Sand sculpting contest [Coney Island beach [between W. 10th and W. 12th streets in Coney Island, (718) 266-4653], Aug. 6, noon-5 pm. Free. For info, visit astelladevelopment.org.

The Big Easy, this wasn't

One of Bay Ridge's rising artistic talents is back.

This month, Joseph Milazzo follows up to his popular "Bar" painting series, which documented scenes from city pubs at the Three Jolly Pigeons, with a new show at the Bay Ridge bar.

"After the success of last year, I thought it would be a good idea to continue on with doing an art series around a certain topic," said Milazzo.

So he turned his attention to New Orleans, living there for six months and documenting his Big Easy experiences in an 11-piece travel diary.

But don't expect your clichéd Mardi Gras party scene, or weighty post-Katrina documentary.

"I wanted to get away from the typical imagery of New Orleans — the Bourbon Street, Mardi Gras-type imagery — and be honest with anything that spoke to me," said Milazzo.

The resulting paintings include portraits of a weathered drunk, sitting peacefully on a porch with his dachshund, an old woman watching the Mardi Gras madness, supported by a cane, a musician going to town on her tambourine.

"She was a maniac on the tambourine," said Milazzo. "She was like a ninja spinning nunchuks. I felt I had to capture that."

Milazzo couldn't help but also try to capture one of the city's most-inspiring places — the bayou — with a serene swamp scene called "Green Cathedral."

"I'm not really a spiritual person, but it felt like an outdoor church to me," said Milazzo. "It forced you to contemplate and reflect while there."

Milazzo looks to channel the spirit of the city

Sat.

Greek life

It's no toga party when the Xoregos Performing Company does a free performance of Sophocles's tragedy "Antigone" this month at Mount Prospect Park.

The July 31 show, at the park near the Brooklyn Botanic Garden, marks the company's first Brooklyn stop for its annual summer show, which travels to various parks and libraries.

And this is a serious play: In the Theban civil war, two brothers who died leading opposite sides of the battle for the thrown. The new king, Creon, decides to honor one, Eteocles, while refusing to honor the other, the rebel Polyneices.

The injustice drives their sister, Antigone, to defy the king, and bury Polyneices herself — even though punishment means being buried alive.

Written more than 1,500 years ago, the play has remained relevant thanks to one central question.

"The whole idea is do you follow your conscious, or do you follow man-made laws that you know are wrong?" said director Shela Xoregos. "The audience has to make up their minds."

Brooklyn's biggest animation festival features plenty of cartoons — but it's no child's play.

The eighth annual Animation Block Party presents nearly 100 short films over the course of three days, with love stories and war films screening at the Brooklyn Academy of Music in Fort Greene and Automotive HS in Greenpoint from July 29 to 31.

Just don't expect "Looney Tunes." The animated shorts promise to capture the full variety of filmmaking as an art form, with plenty of abstractionism to boot.

"Parents come here expecting Bugs Bunny and Mighty Mouse, and all of a sudden they get some German experimental film with nudity," said festival founder Casey Safran.

Take, for instance, Williamsburg filmmaker Becky James "Shapes in the City." The difficult-to-define piece runs just under five minutes and follows the "life" of a simple, geometric shape — with all the action of a dark, 1940s noir.

"There's a murder, there's a dance scene, there's theft," said James. "There's even a circle smoking a cigarette on a corner."

*Animation Block Party at the Automotive High School [50 Bedford Ave. near N. 13th Street in Greenpoint, (718) 218-9301] and BAMcinémathèque [30 Lafayette Ave. between St. Felix Street and Ashland Place in Fort Greene, (718) 636-4100], July 29-31. # CLAM ON THE HALF SELL!

Trio seeks funds for Gowanus oyster bar

By Sarah Zorn

It's the DIY clam shack. A trio of best friends — none of whom has any experience in restaurants — is about to realize the impossible dream: opening an oyster and raw bar with blood, sweat and donations on the Internet.

Aaron Lefkove, Andy Curtin and Charlie Moody aims to open “a New England-style beachside seafood shack,” serving classics like fried and stuffed clams, lobster rolls and plenty of cold beer, on Third Avenue in Gowanus in September.

The partners have already raised nearly $9,700 on Kickstarter, a fundraising website, already exceeding their $8,000 goal.

“Kickstarter allows you to create a personal relationship with the community,” Lefkove said. “The neighbors have a hand in the opening of a great hangout.”

To generate excitement (and donations), the Littleneck team has been offering sweet incentives — such as a free beer for a $10 donation, or a raw bar platter, beverage and tote bag for $50.

They're also offering a lifetime supply of suds and crustaceans to anyone willing to plunk down $5,000 — an amount Lefkove calculates would take roughly 500 visits to recoup.

“Honestly, we don't really expect anyone to throw five G's at us, but we'd absolutely follow through on our promise.”

For now, the three buddies — Lefkove is a writer, Curtin runs a cab company and Moody is an artist — are getting a crash course from the bottom up; battling red tape, dealing with contractors, and literally building out their space — formerly a chess and trophy shop — by hand.

“We're trying to do as much as we can with repurposed and eco-friendly materials,” said Lefkove. “We're even building our light fixtures out of salvaged scraps. Passerby have been so excited about the whole thing, some of them have actually offered to help us out.”

And the best news is that even though the restaurant is between Carroll and President streets near the Gowanus Canal, none of the menu items will be from that particular waterway.

“We'll source seafood as close to home as possible, but rest assured, none of it will actually come from the canal,” promised Lefkove.

We want s'more of this cookbook

By Kate Briquet

Want the thrills of the great outdoors without leaving Brooklyn?

Two local foodies are showing urbanites how it's done with a new cookbook, “Campfire Cookery,” that features recipes for indoor s'mores, rooftop stargazing, and turning backyards into campsites.

“We were feeling really cooped in and dreaming of the outdoors,” said Clinton Hill resident Jaimee Young, who crafted her recipes and field guides with coworker Sarah Huck. “Now everything at a real dinner party we can make outside.”

Huck and Young — recipe testers for New York Times food columnist Melissa Clark — designed their gourmet dishes like pine-smoked salmon and caramelized tomato tart for fire pits and home kitchens alike.

The book also features

Sarah Huck (left) and Jaimee Young's book “Campfire Cookery” sends Brooklynites on a grand culinary adventure without leaving the city. Of course, the traditional campfire treat, s'mores (right), are on the menu, and can easily be made in your kitchen.

effortless snacks like honeyed marshmallows and Irish porridge — oatmeal with whiskey-soaked dried fruit, a delicacy for the rugged city dweller.

“Some of the recipes sound more extravagant than they are,” said Huck of Fort Greene. “We wanted them to have the spirit of a grand adventure, but we also wanted something people could actually do.”

As part of the open-air experience, the book features playful manuals on duck calling, foraging, building fireside terrariums, and spinning ghost stories.

“It's not a regular cookbook,” Young said. “There are recipes that really work, but it's more about capturing the campfire experience.”

Huck and Young will serve s'mores at Green in BKLYN [432 Myrtle Ave. between Clinton and Waverly avenues in Clinton Hill, (718) 855-4383] on July 30, from 1 to 3 pm. For info, visit www.greeninbklyn.com.

RESTAURANT GOSSIP

BY SARAH ZORN

Bubby's bubble bursts (along with a pipe) in DUMBO, a fresh egg readies to hatch in Williamsburg, and the Grapes are always greener in Fort Greene. Ready, set, gossip!

Grape Expectations: There's a new fruit growing on the vine of one of Fort Greene's most bountiful food dynasties. Grub Street reports that Greene Grape Annex, a diminutive coffee bar offering beans from Blue Bottle and prepared foods from its sister store, Greene Grape Provisions, will open for business at 680 Fulton St. next month. If only it could stock a few bottles of wine from the mothership, Greene Grape — that would be real one-stop-shopping.

Gimme Shelter: Brooklyn just may score a kooky cocktail coup. According to Inside F&B, the team behind the Philippe Starck-designed Mama Shelter, a tres upscale business hotel and lounge in Paris, is looking to expand its reach stateside with a Bushwick branch. Merveilleux! We just hope the Brooklyn version will offer a faithful rendition of Mama Shelter's Chic Chic bar — “A chichi, thoughtful bar, perfect for lovers of deep, melancholic conversations” — as per the website — and the Island bar, “for ladies and gentleman longing for a more fused world with the help of concoctions.”

Cocktails, continued: We recently reported on the upcoming Gowanus cocktail emporium, Whisky Tango Foxtrot, and it seems that Grub Street has obtained some additional intel. Evidently, owner Mark Messier has designed an involved app, which will allow his guests to order up their tipples on iPads. The scrollable menu will include a “Bartenders Choice,” where you pick your poison, input your mood, and let the mixologist do the rest. This could be the greatest thing ever — or the biggest cocktail flop since the Gin Fizz.

Incredible edible egg: Can't get a table for brunch at Williamsburg's uber-popular, southern-inflected comfort food staple, Egg? Eventually, you'll be able to try your luck during dinner just a few blocks down. Eater reports that owner George Weld has begun work on a casual new restaurant on N. Third Street, one he hopes will “grow organically out of Egg,” place more of an emphasis on dinner service, and make better use of their farm. There is no official word yet on an opening (Weld is still seeking funding for the spot), so the lines shouldn't begin forming for at least a few more weeks.

Gastro-giant: Sounds like most of Clinton Hill will fit into Putnam's, an upcoming gastropub on 419 Myrtle Ave. Grub Street reports that the “turn of the century”-inspired joint will have an extensive list of draft beers, cask ales, and regional and international wines for up to 170 customers at a time — 100 indoors and 70 on an outside patio. The behemoth — which was originally slated to open in mid-July, also plans to offer lunch and dinner, and a “traditional brunch” on weekends.

Burst Bubb-le: The Brooklyn Heights Blog revealed that the city closed down Bubby's, DUMBO's popular child- and pie-friendly eatery. The resto racked up 56 health violation points in total, including evidence of live roaches, unwashed food contact surfaces, and a non-functioning sewage disposal system. When we placed a call, we were told that Bubby's is “temporarily closed due to a burst pipe and water damage” and will reopen on today. We're on it.

OUR HOME AWAY FROM HOME AT THE OLD AMERICAN CAN FACTORY

BRIC's community media programs now located at The Old American Can Factory, 242 3rd Street, in Gowanus

Moving the master control of four cable television channels, two television studios, a school focused on media education, hundreds of pieces of professional production equipment, as well as over 30 staff members is quite a challenge—one recently taken by BRIC Arts | Media | Bklyn. The effort is all worth it as it means returning to BRIC Arts | Media House, a multidisciplinary arts and media center scheduled to open in downtown Brooklyn in 2013. Plus, when the interim-home-away-from-home is as great as The Old American Can Factory, a temporary relocation becomes a wonderful opportunity.

On July 6, BRIC opened its community media center at 242 3rd Street in the historical industrial complex, home to more than 200 people and companies involved in film, design, performing and literary art, manufacturing, and more. It's a perfect fit. Completely renovated throughout, the ground-floor space at Old American Can Factory now houses the borough's community access channels, BCAT TV Network, television production studios, as well as facilities and equipment used by hundreds of Brooklyn residents free of charge—not to mention our Brooklyn Center for Media Education (keep reading for course listings) and the BRIC-produced, Brooklyn-focused professional production unit, Brooklyn Independent Television.

"While BRIC House renovations occur, our main priority was to sustain the services and access our consumers have come to expect from BRIC's community media programs. Our interim relocation to The Old American Can Factory has allowed us to achieve this goal," says Greg Sutton, Director of BRIC's community media programs. "It's an incredibly creative atmosphere here. As we look to BRIC House's opening, we are excited by the opportunity the new space provides in introducing the treasure trove of resources we have to Brooklynites unfamiliar with our services, while continuing to support those already acquainted with community access television."

Come visit our new location to see how you can get involved. To learn more about what our community media programs offer (or to see pictures of the move), visit bricartsmedia.org/cm.

pukekos.org

Brief bio Former Associate Producer for The Daily Show; President of Megaton Media. Describe your show It's a surreal comedy show about music, art and culture with a house band and live performances from other musicians. What inspires you to produce? Surely one measure of success is having your own theme song. How'd you discover music? I got into around age 13 when Nirvana's Nevermind came out. Of course, I'd listened to music before that, but I remember listening to that album and thinking, "Okay. Yeah, that makes sense." What do you like best about community access television? There is real power in the medium of television, and community access puts that power in the hands of the people.

Brief bio Former Financial Analyst for Calvin Klein; Connoisseur of all things wine. Describe your show It's an experiential journey into the world of wine, as told through interviews with wine experts and through our reactions to wines we taste. What inspires you to produce? From this one glass of liquid, I'm on a never-ending discovery of the world. I want to understand it and am engrossed in learning about it. Favorite cheap bottle of wine? Honey Moon Viognier from Trader Joe's. What do you like best about community access television? It gives people a voice and an outlet to create something that's inside of their head that they want the world to see... I might not agree that it's relevant, but that doesn't matter: it's that people want and get to do it.

Sufjan Stevens two-times us

By Meredith Deliso

You've enjoyed a whole summer of free concerts, now here's a chance to give back — again.

Sufjan Stevens's Aug. 2 benefit concert for Celebrate Brooklyn sold out so quickly that an Aug. 3 show has been added.

The Kensington resident is a borough favorite thanks to the strength of albums including "Michigan" and "Illinois," part of his "50 States Project," a self-admitted promotional gimmick where he said he'd compose an album for each state (there's no way his "New York" beats Lou Reed's), and such twee song titles as "A Conjunction Of Drones Simulating The Way In Which Sufjan Stevens Has An Existential Crisis In The Great Godfrey Maze."

Then there was his curious 2007 ode to the Brooklyn-Queens Expressway in "The BQE," a film scored with instrumental music, commissioned by the Brooklyn Academy of Music as part of its Next Wave Festival.

Live, the multi-instrumentalist makes his shows an event, thanks to elaborate lighting, choreography and costumes. It's not a bad way to bid adieu to this beloved concert season.

Sufjan Stevens at Celebrate Brooklyn at the Prospect Park band shell [Ninth Street and Prospect Park West in Park Slope, (718) 683-5600], Aug. 3 at 7 pm (Aug. 2 show sold out). Tickets $35. For info, visit www.bricartsmedia.org.

Show Celebrate Brooklyn some love when Sufjan Stevens plays a benefit concert on Aug. 3 at the Prospect Park Band Shell. Because we know you've been taking advantage of those free shows all summer long.

The best reads
— handpicked by some of the best
Bklyn bookstores

Who can you always count on when you're in a bind and need a good book? Your neighborhood bookstore, of course, whose employees read all the newest books before you do. That's why we're running this semi-regular column featuring must-reads, handpicked and written about by the staff at some of our favorite independent bookstores in Brooklyn.

The BookMark Shoppe's pick:
"The Confession"

"The Confession" by John Grisham is this week's hot pick. Fans will not be disappointed by Grisham's newest paperback. This legal thriller reminds us of why Grisham holds the bar high in this genre. Pick up a copy today and plan on staying up all night!

— Bina Valenzano, co-owner, The BookMark Shoppe [8415 Third Ave. between 84th and 85th streets in Bay Ridge, (718) 833-5115].

Greenlight's pick:
"The Last Werewolf"

Glen Duncan's "The Last Werewolf" is dirty, sexy, violent, and yet somehow highly civilized. The British author's venture into genre fiction engages with the big questions (love, death, the meaning of life) while delivering a sophisticated thrill-a-minute plot that's a far cry from the teen drama you might expect. The protagonist, 200-year-old werewolf Jacob Marlowe, is a delightful companion despite his compulsion to kill and eat people once a month. His narration drips with witty jokes and literary allusions, and he loves a fine whiskey as well as a roll in the hay. It's a smart, satisfying, slightly naughty summer reading.

— Jessica Stockton Bagnulo, co-owner, Greenlight Bookstore [686 Fulton St. between S. Elliott Place and S. Portland Avenue in Fort Greene, (718) 246-0200].

WORD's pick:
"One Day I Will Write About This Place"

This is the kind of book that makes me want to grab people by the arm as they walk past me on the street and shout, "Have you heard about this guy? This book?! It's amazing!" Binyavanga Wainaina has literary chops (he won the 2002 Caine Prize for African Writing, is the founding editor if Kwani, and has written for a smorgasbord of newspapers and magazines), and as you read his memoir you can see why. His prose is incandescent, white-hot with vivid imagery and surreal word play, and he evokes childhood, Kenya, and the struggles of the creative mind brilliantly.

— Jenn Northington, events manager, WORD [126 Franklin St. at Milton Street in Greenpoint, (718) 383-0096].

MILL BASIN DELI:

A pastrami lover's paradise

By Camille Sperrazza

They've got the best pastrami in the city.

So says the many people who have been eating at the Mill Basin Deli for 38 years.

The pastrami there is outstanding — lean and tasty, served piled high on rye bread.

"We beat the city delis in the [New York Daily News] competition," says proud owner of the neighborhood staple Jordan Schachner.

Schachner has been working in the deli since he was 12-years-old, helping his dad, Mark, who started the business. But the pastrami masters go back even further.

"We're three generations in the Kosher deli business," Schachner says. His grandparents owned the Lincoln Deli on Coney Island Avenue, and Avenue Z.

"I was born into this business," he says, "It's in my blood. After 38 years, we must be doing something right."

Indeed they are.

The restaurant was packed with people on a Thursday night. Walking through the door, one is immediately hit with a potpourri of mouthwatering scents. As is tradition, each table receives a generous portion of scrumptious garlic and cucumber pickles, as well as delicious cole slaw. It's just the start of good things to come.

The pastrami is a must, but there are many other options — corned beef, turkey, salami, bologna, and roast beef. Feast on overstuffed sandwiches with names like "Captain's Special." It's a triple decker of pastrami, corned beef, and turkey, with potato salad that's filled with sweet pepper.

Or, try the Avenue T Special, a triple decker of white turkey breast, pastrami, and tongue, with Russian dressing and cole slaw.

There's grilled chicken, rotisserie chicken, meatballs, steak, Hungarian goulash, and even fajitas.

Don't miss great sides such as the potato latke chips, which are crisp and so delicious. There's chopped liver, knishes, franks in a blanket, barley, baked beans, onion rings, and sweet potato fries.

For those who wish to dine on the lighter side, there are plenty of fresh salads and wraps.

And don't forget to save room for homemade rugalach, which is served warm upon request.

The Mill Basin Deli must be one of the few places in Brooklyn where you can still indulge in an old-fashioned egg cream, with froth overflowing, evoking memories of yesteryear.

Dine on Mondays, Tuesdays, or Wednesdays, and enjoy a 10-matching chair cushions. Some walls are comprised of artfully adorned raised brick, and the room overlooks a Zen garden. It's a great place for a party or corporate event.

"Art for the eyes as well as the stomach," is the restaurant's theme. Throughout the eatery, patrons can appreciate magnificent works of art that decorate the walls, as the Schachners are collectors.

Mill Basin Deli delivers and ships nationwide.

The Mill Basin Deli likes to say that it can be Thanksgiving any time you want it to be.

New to the restaurant is a catering room in the back, called the Peach Pit. It's a beautifully decorated room, appropriately named for the peach napkins that fan out of the glasses on the set tables there, and the

● 'As soon as I lose the weight, I'll be in the game more.'

— South Shore's Fannisha Price

● '[Yazmine Belk] is very advanced for her age.'

— Exodus 15s coach Lauren Best

South Shore's Price weighing college offers

BY MARC RAIMONDI

Fannisha Price looked up at the television in the cafeteria area of the Capital Sports Complex in District Heights, Md., trying to catch a glimpse of her new role model playing in the WNBA All-Star Game.

Danielle Adams was an All-American last year at Texas A&M, a team she led to the NCAA national championship. In the final against Notre Dame, she scored 30 points, the second most ever in national title game, and was named the tournament's Most Outstanding Player.

Yet somehow Adams slipped to the second round in last month's WNBA Draft. The knock on her? Adams has been called overweight. She did slim down from 280 pounds when she entered Texas A&M to 230 her senior year.

The issue has been something Price has been dealing with her entire life and she took to Adams immediately when her South Shore coach Anwar Gladden pointed her out as a prospective idol.

"I saw glimpses of me and what I'm like in her," said Price, who is competing this weekend with New Heights at the USJN/Nike National Championships.

The 6-foot-1 Price, a rising senior, has been a stellar, all-city talent at South Shore. Gladden said over the winter that she might have been the best big girl in New York City — and there was nothing hyperbolic about the statement. But though Hofstra, St. Peter's and Fairleigh Dickinson all love her considerable skill set, none of them have offered due to concerns with her weight, Gladden said.

South Shore's Fannisha Price is on the verge of breaking through with multiple college offers.

"Danielle Adams won a national championship and got skipped by 19 teams in the WNBA Draft," Gladden said. "She's a rookie in the All-Star Game and leading rookies in scoring. Fannisha Price can play Division I basketball. College coaches need to take notice."

It was hard to ignore what she brings to the table Saturday in Maryland. Price showed range out to 20 feet on her feathery jump shot. She has some of the best hands around. She's light on her feet for her size and is a tremendous passer. On Friday, Price took a girl off the dribble and hit a step-back jumper from 12 feet, according to New Heights coach Rock Rosa.

"People were like, 'whoa!'" Rosa said. "She has various tools."

Added one college head coach who saw her this weekend: "She has the ability to score from anywhere on the floor with a soft touch, nose for the ball on the glass and great hands. If her overall conditioning improves, she could emerge as a powerhouse. She has great potential if she breaks through."

Price, who has helped lead South Shore to two of the last three PSAL Class AA city title games, started the summer with Gauchos, but Gladden sent her with Rosa this weekend, because the schools recruiting her would be at USJN and not the Battle of the Bayou event in New Orleans. She has clicked right away with New Heights and has been a focal point on offense.

"It was like I was a part of the team from the beginning," Price said. "The chemistry came really quick."

She knows the criticism of her weight and vows to work harder on conditioning through running. Rosa said he'll get her together with New Heights' nutritionist to see what Price should and should not eat. To her, it's a simple equation: less weight equals more basketball.

"As soon as I lose the weight, I won't have to come off the floor," Price said. "I'll be in the game more."

Stellar season for Naz 'franchise'

BY MARC RAIMONDI

Exodus might be one of the biggest and best girls basketball travel programs in the country. But plane travel? That just isn't in the budget. Apache Paschall's organization charters buses everywhere — from Texas to Kentucky to Tennessee.

Those trips have not agreed too much with Yazmine Belk's body.

"There's no knee space," she said with a slight grimace. "It's bad, especially for tall people."

If those rides have affected her, the 6-foot-3 Nazareth rising sophomore certainly hasn't shown it on the court.

Belk is having a monster summer playing with the Exodus Epiphany Prince 15s, the high-light winning the MVP award at the Insider Exposure Best of Tennessee camp two weeks ago. When she entered Nazareth, she was thought of as the third best player among the team's "threeheaded monster" young posts behind Sofia Roma and Chelsea Robinson.

"She's put a lot of time in the gym to actually be the best one right now as far as skill set," said Lauren Best, coach of the Exodus 15s and an assistant at Naz.

Belk's size is superior. But it is that skill set that makes her stand out, even on a national level. She can play inside and has developed the ability to handle the ball and shoot with the wing thought of as her future position. Best says Clemson, Wake Forest, Dayton and Delaware have all called about Belk already.

"She's very advanced for her age," Best said at the Insider Exposure Battle of New York event Friday at the Wayne (N.J.) PAL. "A lot of people don't know also that she's a really good passer. In the open floor, if she gets possession of the ball, I let her push the ball and the guards

Mathletes master advanced kickball

Multiplied kicking opportunities and divided opponents during Sunday's scorching matches

BY AARON SHORT

One kickball team's success this year is anything but fuzzy math.

The calculating Mathletes vaulted into second place of the Brooklyn Kickball League on Sunday after posting a series of impressive wins to start the second half of the season.

Led by captain Kiley "Algebra" Edgley and Sarah "Induction Proof" Koniarski, the team drained a tough American Blood team, 7-6, before matching a veteran Brooklyn United team, 2-2.

Now they've reached the top of the standings — and they're raising eyebrows 45 degrees.

"I find their [first-place ranking] really annoying," said Commissioner Kevin "Commish" Dailey. "I'm glad they're enjoying their moment in the sun."

The first-ranked John Cougar Mellen-camps and third-ranked New Frontiersmen were enjoying their bye week on Sunday.

Fourth-place Brooklyn United salvaged a win against Never Scared, 7-6, in the third marquee game of the day. But it was a disappointing weekend for Ken "Easy" Breese's fifth-ranked American Blood, which also lost to Never Scared 4-3.

As most of the action took place on Starks' Yard, a full-strength Pony Boys cleaned up with two easy wins on the main field.

The Boys shut out Diddy's White Party, 7-0, and crashed the Kickey Mouse Club, 8-2.

"For the first time, we had our full time, and I'm not going to lie, we played hard," said captain Jason "The Big One" Finkel.

In other games, Diddy's White Party beat the Sisterhood, 4-1, the Bacon Bits trounced Livin' on a Prayer, 7-1, before Baywatch barbecued the Bits, 3-2, and the Space Cadets earned a split, losing to Kickball Fever, but beating Drinkers with a Kick-in Problem.

Zeus' Beard clipped the Kickey Mouse Club, 1-0, but the offensively inept Clubbers tied the Kickiables in a thrilling 0-0 shut-out.

Dolls Kicking Balls lost both its games to Taco Taco Taco and the Kickiables, but had a lot of fun thanks to team lovebirds

Ben "Jazz Hands" Jaso and Anna "Drew" Carey.

"In the first inning, Ben flew onto his side for a fast catch, then Anna had an amazing play at second right after that — they were the true power couple yesterday," said Dolls' Julia "Texas Tea" Morrow.

First a baseball player, Smith close to playing pro hoops

BY MARC RAIMONDI

Kiwan Smith grew up as a baseball player. Now he's ever-so-close to making a good living playing basketball.

The chiseled, 6-foot-8 forward from Brooklyn has offers to play in Finland, Greece and the NBA Development League after attending a EuroLeague camp in Las Vegas recently. On July 29, he'll participate in another one of those events in New Jersey before making a decision as to where to play pro ball.

"It's been a long road for a kid with no game to a person that's known," Smith said after a game Saturday night at the Tri-State Classic in Harlem.

It's easy to see why Smith is highly sought after. He's freakishly athletic, his thunderous dunks overshadowing the presence of Ron Artest, Jeremy Hazell and Jessie Sapp on his team. Smith also has a developing mid-range game. There's no questioning him as a force on the offensive end of the floor.

Oddly, though, Smith only began playing basketball when he was 14 at the urging of his cousin Rob Thomas, who recently graduated from St. John's.

"He got me out the house," said Smith, known as "The Smooth One" on the streetball circuit. "He said come uptown and play ball. It became something I love to do."

Smith played at Bishop Loughlin before going to prep school at the Laurinberg (N.C.) Institute. He was a significant prospect because of his size and athleticism coming out of the North Carolina school, but struggled academically. Those woes are behind him now — he just graduated from Talladega College, an NAIA school in Alabama.

"He's been getting better and better every year," said Tri-State director Antonio (Mousey) Carela, who has known Smith since he was in high school. "He's just waiting for that shot. He's still young. He just has to wait for someone to open the door."

It looks like that door is beginning to open for him. Offers are on the table. Smith has options with potentially more to come at the end of the month.

"It's great to know that you can play at the top level of basketball," he said. "From where I came from until now it's a big accomplishment."

fill the lanes. She's able to get them the ball."

The Queens native has also shown the willingness to put work in to get better. Belk said she routinely stays late after Exodus practice to work on her shooting with Naz assistant Ron Kelley.

"It's a lot of hard work," she said. "The guards do much more of it. Now I know how hard it is to dribble and get past defenders, especially if they're good defenders."

Best compared her somewhat to Tiffany Jones, who was a monster in leading Nazareth to the New York State Federation Class AA championship this season and is off to Syracuse to play next year. Paschall and Best have nicknamed Belk "The Franchise" because of her future as one of the faces of the Naz program and it is a moniker she is embracing.

"I'm looking forward to dominating this whole season," Belk said. "Every coach has been telling me that I'm a good player and I should dominate this year, especially since I'm following after Tiffany Jones and Bra'Shey Ali. A lot is expected from me."

A high major scholarship could very well on the horizon. This summer might just be the tip of the iceberg.

"She's ready," Best said. "I think she's gonna have a breakout season

CYCLONES CONFIDENTIAL

Midseason report card for the struggling Cyclones

BY DAN MACLEOD

Halfway through the 2011 season, nobody can deny that it's been a rough start for the Cyclones.

In an embarrassing run for new skipper Rich Donnelly, a string of humiliating losses saw the mini-Mets fall below .500 for the first time since July, 2008.

But as the team reached its rare mid-season day off on Tuesday, the Clones appear to have turned a corner and found some focus. At 21-16, the Clones are now second in the McNamara Division, trailing the hated Staten Island Yankees, who are 28-9, and they've tallied a few major wins in the past week.

Right now, a wild-card berth appears to be a distinct possibility — provided this team can get its mid-season grades up:

Infield

The team is currently leading the New York-Penn League with a .970 fielding percentage thanks to quick glove work in its infield, including shortstop Ismael Tijerina, who has a fielding percentage of .951. His counterpart Danny Muno leads the team in flubs with six errors, but has made up with it with his bat.

Grade: A-*Outfield

The Cyclones outfield has shown its sloppy side, but outfielders Charley Thurber, Travis Taijeron and Javier Rodriguez are settling in and have become a smooth-fielding unit: Thurber has a .984 fielding percentage and Taijeron is at .963, having committed two errors. Taijeron has been perfect in the field.

Grade: B*Hitting

The once-mighty bats of the 2010 McNamara division champs were all but silenced until recently, as the team flirted with the dubious honor of having the most strikeouts of any team in the New York-Penn League.

But the beloved Clones have started to pull themselves out of the K-hole. As of Tuesday, they had tallied Early in the season, strikeouts were a real problem, even for slugger Danny Muno.

286 strikeouts — still embarrassing, but only the sixth highest in the league.

Muno has established himself as a star, leading the league with a .375 batting average — though he only recently tallied his first home run.

As of Tuesday, third baseman Richard Lucas was the hottest player in the league, batting .441 over the previous 10 games. He's third in the league with a .350 average.

Brandon Brown and Taijeron lead the team in homers — and are tied for fifth in the league — with five dingers.

Hitting coach Bobby Malek struggled to get the Cyclone sluggers to do their job — and the team has started turning it around, scoring 42 runs in their last five games. Now the Cyclones have the fourth highest batting in the league, with the fourth-highest number of hits, the second highest number of homers, the third-best RBI numbers and the third-best slugging percentage.

Grade: B*Pitching

The Clones pitching staff is best in the league. With 43 Ks, Eduardo Aldama currently leads the league in strikeouts, though his 3.16 ERA is a bit concerning. New pitching phenom Jeff Walters pitched a gem on July 21, giving up only a single hit in six innings, though on the season, he's been more mortal, going 2-2 with a 3.45 ERA. And when he lets a runner on base, he falls apart, allowing opponents to ring up a .325 batting average vs. the .125 average when the bases are empty.

The bullpen has been inconsistent, blowing several key games. Jeremy Gould, for example, is 0-2 with a 4.20 ERA — too high for a reliever in pro ball. The key is learning to not overthrow, said Donnelly. That was the problem over the Fourth of July weekend, when Hunter Carnavale literally threw a game away at Staten Island.

"A lot of these kids have terrible concentration," Donnelly said after a July 21 shutout at home. "I don't know if it's ADD or what."

But taken overall, the pen has been pretty solid, thanks to a respectable 2.23 ERA.

Grade: B*Coaching

It remains to be seen whether Donnelly can live up to legendary manager Wally Backman, the Cyclones' most popular coach.

But he has the support of his team, and the beloved mini-Mets are making progress by digging themselves out of a sizeable hole.

"We're treading water right now," he admitted after a recent game. "I understand that this is a winning franchise and they expect to do well here."

Hitting coach Malek, a fan favorite from his playing days in Brooklyn, hasn't gotten the sluggers entirely on track, and pitching coach Frank Viola, a Met legend, has not produced a breakout starter — which has been a Cyclone tradition dating back to Scott Kazmir in 2002.

Grade: B-

Gotbaum Warns Consumers About Classified Ads
Toll numbers may be a direct line to trouble.
Classified ads are intended to help people by facilitating communication and advertising available services; however, some of the hotlines & service numbers in classifieds actually hurt the people who rely on them by cheating them of their hard-earned dollars. "Most newspapers print a disclaimer in their classified ad section to warn readers about numbers that are a direct line to trouble. Any number starting with 900, 540, 595 or 871 charges a fee beyond a local call. In some instances, ads initially advertise calls to a local number, but then direct callers to a second number starting with one of the paid exchanges. "Consumers must also question the legitimacy of vague classifieds because they too could be a scam. Before responding to an ad, consumers should verify the source of all information & always be wary about sending money or signing a contract with an unknown party."
