Seddio is new Dem party boss

BY DANIELLE FURFARO

The new boss of the Brooklyn Democratic party is Frank Seddio — a member of the old guard Thomas Jefferson Democratic Club and a longtime ally of scandal-scarred Assemblyman and former party leader Vito Lopez.

Party officials almost unanimously appointed Seddio to fill the powerful post in > a meeting at Kingsborough Community College last Wednesday night.

'This is the new Brooklyn," said Seddio, a former judge and Assemblyman who is also a Canarsie Democratic district leader. "It's not them and us, but we. It's a wonderful experience to have the support of so many of my colleagues and the support of so many people who had been in opposition."

Seddio — who Lopez appointed to his first party gig and later won the district leader spot on his own merits — became boss after 36 Dems voted in his favor, even though some of them were wearing stickers that read: "Meet the new boss, same as the old boss."

It's tip-off time for Barclays

BY NATALIE O'NEILL

Developers and city officials marked the opening of the Barclays Center arena with a symbolic ribbon cutting on Friday, touting it as a "big win" for Brooklyn — but mask-clad protestors slammed those same big wigs for failing to provide enough jobs to residents in the borough.

Mayor Bloomberg shared a court-side stage with developer Bruce Ratner and Borough President Markowitz cheered the 18,000-seat basketball arena as an economy-stimulating, culture-boosting venue that puts Brooklyn on the map.

"Brooklyn has arrived," Bloomberg said. "It's a great day."

INSIDE PRINTS CHARMING

Gowanus innovator wants to put a 3D printer in your apartment

BY DANIELLE FURFARO

Meet Brooklyn's Steve

A Gowanus tech entrepreneur wants to follow the path of Apple by bringing the 3D printer — a high-tech device normally used by industrial designers and architects into your apartment.

MakerBot's Replicator 2 Desktop 3D Printer gives anyone the ability to make virtually anything, such as toy cars, industrial models, or even a modest door stop just ask company CEO Bre

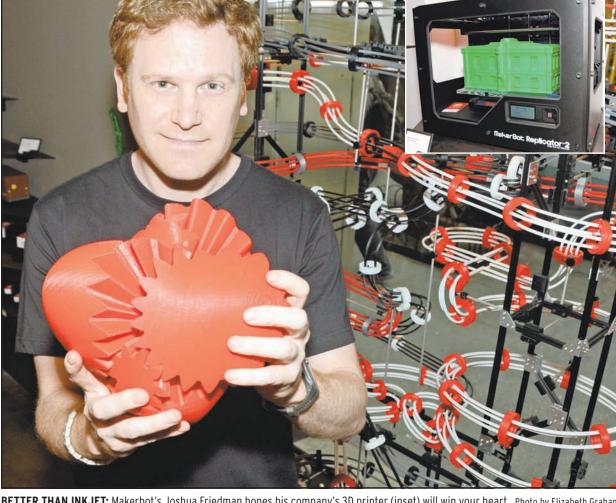

Pettis used the machine to create a plastic door stop last week after a latch on his shop's door broke — saving him a trip to the hardware

"In the future, we envision a MakerBot 3D printer in every company and in every home," said Pettis. "At this point, we would compare the MakerBot Replicator 2 Desktop 3D Printer to the Apple II."

The Apple II helped introduce personal computing to the home user — a novel idea at the time, when oversized computers were largely limited to big companies and humongous labs.

Much of that remains true for 3D printers, which are common for mechanical and bio-tech engineers today - but also increasingly popular among as a nifty home arts tool.

The printers use computer-aided designs to build three-dimensional objects layer-by-layer using a technique dubbed "fused filament fabrication," which results in strikingly detailed models that can have moving, interlocking parts, and are strong enough to perform basic tasks.

Doctors have used them to make models of feet, vascular skin tissue, and models of the human inner ear — while artists have printed out nifty busts of Steve Jobs gramophone-shaped smartphone mounts.

"We have made a model of a five cylinder rotary engine with a MakerBot Replicator 2," said Pettis.

The Gowanus-based company isn't the only group that's trying to make 3D printing as common as its 2D counterpart — but MakerBot has already earned plenty of cred in the industry according to technology analyst and Greenwood Heights resident Cody Burke.

"MakerBot is really well positioned as the cool kid of 3D printing," said Burke.

"They have been around for a while and they are tied in and associated with the DIY movement."

The new model — which sells for $2,199 including a spool of filament (extra spools, not unlike the toner cartridges of 2D printers, go for $48) — is already generating plenty of buzz, prompting nearly 10,000 MakerBot-related tweets within an hour of the product's launch.

MakerBot's Jason Bakutis said he's confident in the Replicator 2, which much like the Apple II, follows a more bare bones predecessor and that was aimed at hobbyists more than mainstream consumers.

"The cool thing is that, with this machine, anyone can learn to make parts that fit together that a toddler couldn't break," said Bakutis.

Bensonhurst's famed L&B Spumoni Gardens is moving Downtown — by way of the Barclays Cen-

Barclays Center officials confirmed this week that L&B Spumoni Gardens' pizza, as well as the restaurant's signature ice cream, will be sold from at least three kiosks in the $1 billion entertainment complex, so arena-goers will be able to enjoy a taste of Bensonhurst while catching a show or cheering on the Brooklyn Nets.

Workers at the pizzeria, which has been dishing out its hard-to-resist Sicilian slices on 86th Street between W. 10th and W. 11th streets since 1939, said stadium representatives approached the owners more than a year ago, claiming that their pizza would fit well with the Brooklyn theme they were building for the new center. Eatery owners jumped at the chance, feeling that it would introduce their food to a whole new audi-mini-Spumoni The Gardens spots will sit alongside outlets for other old-school Brooklyn standouts like Nathan's Famous and Junior's Cheesecake.

A few members of Brooklyn's new culinary scene will also be represented: there'll be an ice cream float wagon from Carroll Gardens dairy destination Brooklyn Farmacy, a fish taco stand courtesy of Calexico in Greenpoint, and even a briny little space for Williamsburgbased McClure's Pickles.

Barbati said she thinks her eatery's presence at the Barclays Center will offer customers something they can't find anywhere else in the world.

"The pizza's great, of course, but how many people have had our spumoni?" Barbati said.

Bike track shifts gears

Plan elevates velodrome to make room for other sports

BY NATALIE O'NEILL

A $40-million indoor bike track in Brooklyn Bridge Park will offer more space for other sports after critics bashed the project for only catering to a niche group of cyclists.

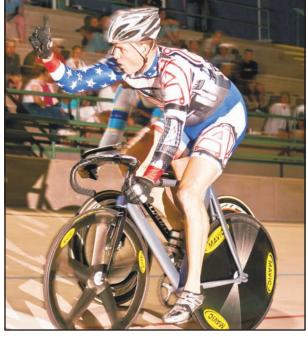

Under the new plan, designers will raise the velodrome to create an eightfoot-tall ground-floor space that accommodates teams community groups near Pier 5.

The plan adds 3,000 extra square feet of recreation space — slightly smaller (and far shorter) than a high school basketball court which is perfect for activities such as yoga, pilates, and weight-lifting, project supporters say.

"We discovered an overwhelming demand for diverse recreation," said the project director Greg Brooks. "It's a tremendous opportunity for the community."

Brooklynites Some cheered the still-in-the works plan, saying it's a creative way to make the most of the site.

"It's a really imaginative way of maximizing space," said Larry Weiss of the Brooklyn Friends School, who said his students would likely use the new, low-ceilinged space for activities such as gymnastics and fencing.

Some critics say the new recreation area will still cater primarily to practitioners of niche sports, while others cited concerns about traffic in nearby neighborhoods, saying streets will be backed up unless parking spaces are added.

"Parking is not part of the plan; it raises questions about how people are going to get there," said Jane Mc-Groarty.

The new proposal comes after bike-boosting philanthropist Joshua Rechnitz announced he would give the largest-ever park donation in the city's history to build a year-round recreational facility where people of all ages can rent and race fixed-gear bikes.

Rechnitz did not return calls seeking comment on Monday — but Brooks said project backers had met with more than 50 organizations to discuss the plan, adding the facility could prompt a cultural shift in the way the city enjoys and defines year-round recre-

The facility will feature "drop in" cycling for all ages — for $10 to $32 — and be open to summer camp and after school programs and feature about 1.200 spectator seats.

At a Brooklyn Bridge Park Community Advisory Council meeting on Monday, some panel members said they would not support the project until representatives present a formal rendering and proposal.

"We need a full opportunity to go through this in detail," said project opponent Peter Flemming.

But others — even some of the harshest critics of public-private partnerships called the new plan a big win for Brooklyn.

"It sounds great; more recreation is what we need," said park advocate Roy Sloane.

Some residents claimed operators' minimal experience in the industry is problematic considering the history of the venue.

New building on cue

Pool hall will be housing, G'point developer says

BY NATALIE O'NEILL

A Greenpoint businessman wants to turn his pool hall into an eight-story apartment building — but neighbors say the still-sleepy area can't accommodate the hundreds of new residents a development that size will attract.

Building owner Paul Pullo is trying to convince the city to change zoning rules so he can build a 140-unit complex with a 90-car parking lot and retail space at McGuinness Boulevard and Calyer Street.

The proposed apartments will cater to couples and young families — and bring much-needed below-market-rate housing to the gas station-and-warehouse-dotted area, he said.

But neighbors fear the planned building will crowd nearby streets, subway stations, and schools.

Neighbor Joanna Nowakowski said PS 34 and the Greenpoint Avenue subway station might not be able to handle all those new residents.

"The G train is already only four cars long — and it's normally full," she said. "[The project] affects a lot of things."

She added construction could crack century-old buildings behind the building and bring too much car traffic to surrounding streets.

Developers must now convince the Department of City Planning to change the manufacturingzoned space to residential — a move that would put the lot in line with the rest of the block.

Pullo says he will work with neighbors to combat problems, should they arise, and that transportation won't likely be one of them.

"There's a bus stop nearby and we'll have extra bike racks," he said. "I don't think it will be an issue."

Hook's street lights

Red Hook artists want to turn a dreary space under the Brooklyn–Queens Expressway into the Studio 54 of sidewalks.

A drab strip of street near Hamilton Avenue will become home to a pulsing, multi-colored light installation that uses noise from passing cars to illuminate arched rectangular panels, if the project's designers get their way.

They hope the "Silent Lights" project will make the walking path more fun and pedestrianfriendly, said artist Michelle Brick

"It makes the street feel safer and more visually interesting," said Brick.

At night, LED lights inside the installation will react to the level of sound from cars, much like Marcus Learner's acclaimed highway-side installation in Germany.

Reports that the new rides will be built at the site of the fictional home of "Annie Hall" character Alvy Singer are not true, said Horace Bullard, who owns the waterfront property where the ride-and-home once stood — but he'd be willing to let the city do what it wants with his land if it pays him what he thinks it's worth.

According to Bullard, other nearby properties — specifically the Washington Baths site at Surf Avenue and West 21st Street — cost a pretty penny.

"They billed $90 million for that," Bullard told us.

But until the Mayor offers him that sum, his property will not become a part of the city's plan.

"Our land is still our land."

Bullard, who has been blasted for halting Coney Island's resurgence by refusing to develop or sell properties like the long-vacant Shore Theater, purchased the Thunderbolt site in 1985 as part of a plan to rebuild the legendary Steeplechase Park 15-foot-long concrete ramp across Williamsburg parking spots last week in the latest do-ityourself addition to a growing unsanctioned skatepark beneath the Brooklyn-Queens Expressway.

Dozens of skateboarders practiced grinds, slides, flip tricks, and wallrides on the banked surface at a party on Friday afternoon — and they had little fear the city would rip out the most ambitious step so far in their ongoing skatepark project.

"Whoever built it should be given a f!@#$%! medal," said Danny Mandell, a skater who lives nearby and was filming the party. "It's very cool that it's here. And the cops don't really bother us."

However the installation of the makeshift skate structure was delayed several days after planners spotted a squad car parked in the lot near Lorimer Street earlier

But after that setback, the skaters got to work constructing a new fixture with two banked slopes connected by a metal-edged ledge the largest skate-able object in a parking lot where wood-pushers have long used dollops of concrete to turn support beams into small

Mandell said there's a chance that the scale of the new construction might attract some unwanted attention from the city, though that didn't stop a group dubbed I Am Your Villain from throwing the ramp's launch party with Converse, Thrasher Magazine, and Wythe Avenue's KCDC skateshop.

Skaters say the ramp isn't a burden for neighborhood drivers, claiming that even though it spans three parking spaces it doesn't completely obstruct any of them.

The Department of Transportation, which oversees the parking lot, says it has not received any complaints about the ramp.

So far, skaters and drivers seem DT to be doing a fine job sharing the space. In the midst of the party, a middle-aged man in a silver Mercedes E350 cautiously drove toward a group of skaters in the center of the parking lot. He flashed his lights and they stopped, moved out of his way, and waved as he drove by — then got back to their tricks.

The skate structure seems like a hit for now, but Jean-Francois Taillon — a member of a Montreal-based crew that frequently comes to Brooklyn to help lay concrete - says DIY skate spots in the United States tend to have short life spans compared to those built elsewhere in the world.

"We need to make the most of it and enjoy it before they take it down," said Taillon.

Heavy sleeper

A tip-toeing crook swiped a video game system from a sleeping woman on 10th Street on Sept. 17.

The 27-year-old victim told cops she went to bed in her apartment near Third Avenue at midnight, then woke up seven hours later and discovered her window open — and the front door propped open with a brick. That's when she noticed her 47-inch TV and Nintendo Wii gone.

Stabbed on Second

Cops say a violent creep beat up a man on Second Avenue on Sept. 23.

The 37-year-old victim told police a thug sliced his arms, torso and back with a knife near 13th Street at 4 am, then fled. Cops arrested a 26-year-old suspect the same day.

Air heads

Clumsy thieves tried to break into an apartment on Second Street on Sept. 17 — but got scared off when the tenant screamed.

The 29-year-old victim told cops she was typing on her computer inside her home near Fifth Avenue at 2 pm when she heard a group of people attempt to remove her air conditioning unit. She screamed and the perps fled — making off with nothing.

Gold gone

A crook swiped some gold jewelry and cash from an apartment on 15th Street on Sept. 17.

The 26-year-old victim told cops he left his home near Fourth Avenue at 9 am, then came back 10 hours later and discovered his gold chain necklace, gold ring, and $300 missing from his living room.

Savings stolen

Someone stole more than $3,000 that an elderly woman had stashed in a dresser drawer in her Jackson Street apartment sometime before Sept. 18.

The senior told police that she left $3,500 hidden in her apartment between Kingsland and Debevoise avenues, and hadn't checked on it in two months. When she opened the drawer at 3:30 pm, the cash was gone. The woman told police that she has a rotating cast of home health attendants, and doesn't know who took the money.

Brawl

A rowdy bar patron threw a chair across a Meserole Avenue nightclub and struck another man in the head on Sept. 22, police said.

The victim from the bar between Eckford Street and McGuiness Boulevard suffered bruising and swelling to his face and a four-inch cut on the side of his head when he was hit at 2 am. He left the bar and went to Woodhull Hospital to get stitched up.

"I know I shouldn't have thrown that chair," a 43-year old suspect told police.

Splat

Someone shot a 54-year-old with a paintball gun on Nassau Avenue on Sept. 23.

The man was near Diamond Street at 2 am when he was hit. He suffered bruises and back pain from the shot.

Much ado for nothing

Police arrested a 29-year-old man who they say tried to sneak out of a N. Sixth Street nightclub with a cash register on Sept. 15.

A security guard at the club between Kent and Wythe avenues saw a man enter through a door marked employees only at 3:30 am. He stopped the sneaky burglar, who told him he was looking for the bathroom. The guard went back to his post, and a few minutes later, saw the perp trying to carry a cash register out of the building. There was no money in the register at the time.

BLOCK IN SHOCK: Resident Kevin Lopez said he and his neighbors were amazed that vandals targeted trees on their street.

Bay Ridge vandals attack helpless trees

BY WILL BREDDERMAN

A group of teens spraypainted more than a half dozen trees on 70th Street in Bay Ridge earlier this month — apparently not caring that neighbors saw them mark up the sycamores and ash trees that lined the block from their windows.

The vandals blitzed the block between Narrows Avenue and Colonial Road on Sept. 13, stunning residents on the usually sleepy street.

"Who does this, some kind of gang?" asked Marilin Mele, who lives around the corner.

Others were outraged when they saw the nonsensical blue tags left behind, claiming that marring a tree affects the neighborhood both aesthetically and emotionally.

"It defaces a beautiful tree in a pretty neighborhood," said Susan Montague, who discovered vandals hit one of the trees in front of her home.

Cops have yet to identify the markings, but some 70th Street residents have shrugged off the vandalism as some kind of teenage prank.

"These kids probably had too many Coronas and said 'Hey, let's hit this tree,' and then were like 'Hey, let's hit this next one,' and so on," said resident Kevin Ortiz, who had a tree directly in front of his home vandalized.

One resident, who wished not to be named, claimed that she witnessed the vandalism, but didn't contact police because she was unable to take a photo of the taggers, which she described as a group of six preteen boys. She said she does not believe the youths live in the neighborhood, but she's seen them hanging around the block during the past year.

Residents are hoping that their neighbors clean the tags off of the trees in front of their homes before the vandals return.

"Other people will see this and do more graffiti on top of it," Mele said.

Members of the NYPD's Anti-Graffiti task force would not comment for this story. Calls to the 68th Precinct were not returned by press time.

Police say tomb raider taped

BY NATALIE O'NEILL

Cops released video of a fence-hopping man who they believe destroyed dozens of monuments and tombstones inside Green-Wood Cemetery on Aug. 25.

Surveillance footage shows an agile rule-breaker jumping a gate at the cemetery's main entrance at 7 am — about an hour before the historic grounds opened on the morning when workers discovered more than 40 statues and gravestones had been destroyed.

In the video, a lone male suspect climbs the inside of the fence near Fifth Avenue and 25th Street, then hops onto the sidewalk—evidence suggesting a single person could be responsible for an act of vandalism that's shocking in its size and scope.

Workers last month noted that the prolific perp, who is wanted for criminal mischief, scratched out porcelain photographs of dead people and cracked statues of angels, causing roughly $100,000 in damage.

cinct have little information about the gravestone-basher — but they are hoping passersby can assist with details, an NYPD spokeswoman said.

"We have no description
— but someone might recognize him," said Detective Cheryl Crispin.

Cemetery historian Jeff Richman, who discovered the damage, did not immediately return calls seeking comment on Monday — but noted recently on the cemetery's blog that a restoration team is repairing some of the damage.

"Many of the monuments, after being toppled, remained intact," he said.

Anyone with information about the crime should call the NYPD tip line at (800) 577-8477.

Are You Suffering With Severe Constant Pain?

New Laser Light Breakthrough Treatment May Reduce Or Even Eliminate Pain Of The Worst Kind In Just Minutes

If you are suffering with severe pain despite all the treatments, that may have failed you in the past, you may now have some hope of reducing or even eliminating your pain with a new non-surgical, painless laser treatment now available in Brooklyn.

Deep Tissue Laser Treatment is an innovative, scientifically based, therapeutic modality. This new technology offers advanced pain relief and expedited healing times through a process known as photobiostimulation.

Deep Tissue Laser Treatment delivers, deep, penetrating, photonic (light) energy to bring about profound physiological changes. ATP (Adenosinetriphosphate) production is increased, inflammation and pain reduced and circulation increased at the site of pain. These changes in cellular chemistry are triggered by the deep tissue laser making it a true healing modality.

Deep Tissue Laser Therapy does not require the use of drugs or surgery, and there are no known side effects or risks that may occur with other forms of treatment. In addition, it can often achieve results faster than other treatment modalities. During the treatment the patient will feel a deep soothing warmth. This pleasant sensation reassures the patient that the laser is stimulating cellular Lasers have made a remarkable contribution toward healthcare, allowing practitioners to treat a variety of conditions with the speed of light. As a non-invasive tool, the laser is particularly effective for the efficient treatment of soft tissue injuries, sprains and strains, and a variety of other ailments and pain.

Low Level Laser enhances metabolic activity at the cellular level, without generating tissue-damaging heat.

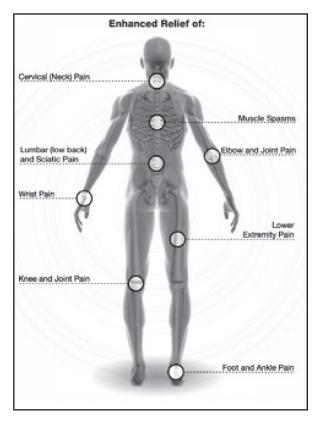

Some of the benefits of laser treatment include:

- Fast reduction of pain
- Improvement of nerve function
- Reduction of muscle spasms.
- Speeding of tissue repair
- Development of muscle tissue and collagen
- Reduction of inflammation, swelling and scar tissue formation
- · Pain reduction immediately

The Class IV laser, approved by the FDA in 2006, packs a punch while remaining non-invasive. The Class V laser is capable of reaching depths of 6 to 9 inches, with a treatment beam of up to 3 inches.

Because the Class IV laser reaches deep into the tissues, it is ideal for treating sprains and strains, arthritis, calcified muscles and fibrotic adhesions, as well as intraarticular tissues inside of the joints. Its far-reaching capabilities also allow the Class IV to achieve results in less time than most cold lasers currently used today. With treatment times of as little as 5 to 15 minutes, the Class IV laser allows many conditions to vastly improve within a few visits. Oftentimes, patients find immediate, soothing relief that improves with each treatment.

A partial list of the kind of conditions that can be

- Bulging, Slipped Discs
- Spinal Fusion
- Neck Pain
- Sciatica Pain
- Migraine Headaches
- Back Pain & Spinal Conditions
- Tennis Elbow
- Carpal Tunnel Syndrome
- Neuropathy Pain
- Bell's Palsy
- Plantar Fasciitis
- Sports Injuries
- Sprains & Strains
- Knee Pain
- Hamstring Tears
- Arthritic Pain

If you are tired of living with pain and would like to see if you qualify for deep tissue laser treatment call 718-559-6992 for a FREE CONSULTATION right now. Dr. Keller has seen such dramatic fast pain relief with Deep Tissue Laser Treatment, that she offers one FREE treatment to see if you respond and if you are a candidate for this revolutionary new non surgical pain relieving treatment. Due to the overwhelming response to this type of offer, this offer will be good for the first 25 callers. If the lines are busy, keep trying.

Listen to what patients are saying:

"I had been suffering from knee pain for many months before I tried laser treatments using Deep Tissue Laser. After just a couple treatments, my knee pain was reduced to the point where I can finally live a more normal life again. These treatments are simply remarkable!"

- Jennifer C.

"I started treatments with Deep Tissue Laser after I had injured my neck in a car accident. The treatments allowed me to return to work much more quickly than anyone had expected, considering the pain I was in. During the treatments, all I felt was a warming sensation as the laser was moved across the injured area where all my pain was. After just three short treatments, my pain was almost totally gone. Thanks, Doctor!"

- Jason B.

"The Deep Tissue Laser treatments I received dramatically helped my recovery from a broken leg. Not only did it help reduce the swelling, the pain relief I experienced was nothing short of miraculous. My orthopedic doctor was amazed with the results. - John M.

¿Pesos? No problemo

New DUMBO boutique now accepts Mexican currency

BY DANIELLE FURFARO

Cash is cash in any language — just ask the owner of a new DUMBO boutique that accepts Mexican pesos

Maurice Shrem, owner of Escondido, a store at 145 Front St. that specializes in high-end Mexican artisanmade items, said he has nothing against the dollar, but making transactions in pesos makes sense for a business that gets all of its goods south of the border.

"It's a great way to show respect for the country," said Shrem, a dentist who decided to open the store after visiting Mexico and falling in love with the country. "It's better for us to have pesos to use when we go down there to buy things. And everyone who goes down there comes back with pesos in their pockets."

Shrem claims Escondido is the first store in the entire borough to accept pesos.

The entrepreneur and his right-hand man Louis Salazar started listing the prices for all the items including ceramics, woven place mats, carved animal figurines, among other Mexican wares — in both dollars and pesos. For example, a piece of black pottery from Oaxaca is listed as selling for $295 or 3,835 pesos.

There's nothing illegal about accepting pesos, as long as the store still pays the sales tax based on the dollar amount.

"The law says you can't refuse U.S. dollars, but it doesn't say you can't accept other kinds of money," said Salazar.

Currently, pesos trade at about 13 to one against the dollar, meaning that 100 pesos are worth about $8.

Salazar said his employees don't worry about checking the exchange rates every day and that, unless something drastic happens, the prices will stay as they are inside the tiny store, which opened this summer.

"It's not like we're the Gap and selling thousands of dollars in merchandise," said Salazar, who admitted he feared critics would blast the business move as anti-American — but has observed no backlash so far.

Only a few people have paid in pesos, but Shrem and Salazar are hoping that more customers will use Mexican currency as the word spreads.

Bob Provazano is one customer who already taken advantage of the peso policy.

"I always bring 1,000 or 2,000 pesos back with me, so it's great to be able to buy something with the money I have left over," he said.

Massage ... or something more?

Neighbors fear men pay prostitutes for sex inside Bay Ridge spa

BY WILL BREDDERMAN

A Bay Ridge massage parlor is rubbing neighbors — and its clients — the wrong way, say angry Ridgites who claim the business is actually a house of ill repute.

Residents living on Bay Ridge Avenue between Narrows Avenue and Owls Head Court claim that the masseuses at Blue Ocean Spa practice the dark arts of massage — claiming that the facility's clouded windows, late hours, and all-male clientele is all the proof they need.

"It's odd for a spa," said neighbor Victor Pachwo, who says he watches people coming in and out of Blue Ocean from his window late at night. "It's all men and no women. Isn't it supposed to be the other way around?"

This paper saw several men entering and leaving the spa last week, yet Blue Ocean workers vehemently denied that anything sexual was going on.

"It's all lies," said spa manager Nicole Ree. "We just do massage and acupuncture, nothing sexual."

Pachwo said the spa is usually open until 11 pm, and that its frosted glass storefronts aroused his suspicion shortly after he moved into the area three years ago.

But he's not alone in his assessment: several other residents in his condo building brought up similar concerns at one of their board meetings, he claimed, although they were unsure what to do about it.

Pachwo has a simple solution: shut it down.

"I don't think it's a positive presence on this block," Pachwo. "I'd really rather it wasn't here. We have a lot of kids around here."

His neighbors agreed, claiming that once they saw the spa's facade, they knew the place was up to no good.

"As a retired police officer, I knew right away what's going on there. Experience has taught me," said Daniel Levins, a former Miami cop. "Their clients come down the street, looking this way and that way like they're trying to find something, acting all innocent, then — bam! — they're inside."

The ex-cop also claimed that the girls who work at Blue Ocean are living inside the spa, since he never sees any employees entering or leaving the building.

"At night, they bring the shutters down, and no one comes out," Levins said. "I'm up at 5, I come out, I have my coffee, the shutters go up, and they open the door. And no one goes in or out."

Levin said it's extremely difficult to close a prostitution parlor, so instead of reporting his concerns to the 68th Precinct, he's been complaining to Blue Ocean's landlady Alexandra Lazidos

"Shame on her," Levins said. "I have a hard time believing she doesn't know what's going on here."

Community Board 10 district manager Josephine Beckmann said she has received complaints about the parlor, and had passed them along to the police. The 68th Precinct did not respond to calls for comment.

Neighbors: Xaverian must stop taking Bay Ridge parking spots

BY WILL BREDDERMAN

Residents living around Xaverian High School are banding together to make sure that the Catholic school doesn't take up any more of their cherished parking spots.

Civic leaders say they are working out a compromise with Xaverian High School, which got city permission to snatch up three public parking spots on 71st Street so it could put in a school bus loading zone. But neighbors have collected more than 200 signatures demanding that the Department of Transportation yank the no-parking signs it just installed.

"Xaverian High School is trying to obtain parking which is for the residents,' said McKay Place resident Agnes Kelly, who started the petition, and now claims that she has to park far from her building and carry her 2-year-old home. "People feel like the school gets away with everything because they have money and we're nobody."

Kelly said that she and her neighbors are tinkering with filing a lawsuit against the school to stop gobbling

Other residents found it odd that Xaverian would need a bus loading zone in the first place, since the school has plenty of private parking spaces.

"It's annoying that the school is taking spaces when they've got a parking lot," said Chris Hughes.

The Department of Transportation put in the bus loading zone so students wouldn't have to cross a section of Shore Road without any traffic signals to get on a school bus. Spokesman Nick Mosquera said his agency will study the effect of its decision through Xaverian President Robert Alesi said the school never asked for the signs and requested a stop light in front of the school.

Alesi says that he, Councilman Vincent Gentile (D-Bay Ridge), and Community Board 10 district leader Jo Beckmann are hammering out a new plan that will make everyone happy.

"We have committed to work together to find a solution that serves the needs of all," Alesi said. "Xaverian is sympathetic to the concerns of the residents in our surrounding community regarding the shortage of parking.'

Gentile staffers confirmed that the legislator was working on a solution, but would not reveal any de-

CELEBRATING THE NEIGHBORHOODS OF THE BOROUGH OF KINGS

Sheepshead Bay

The center of Brooklyn's thriving Riveria

BY SHAVANA ABRUZZO

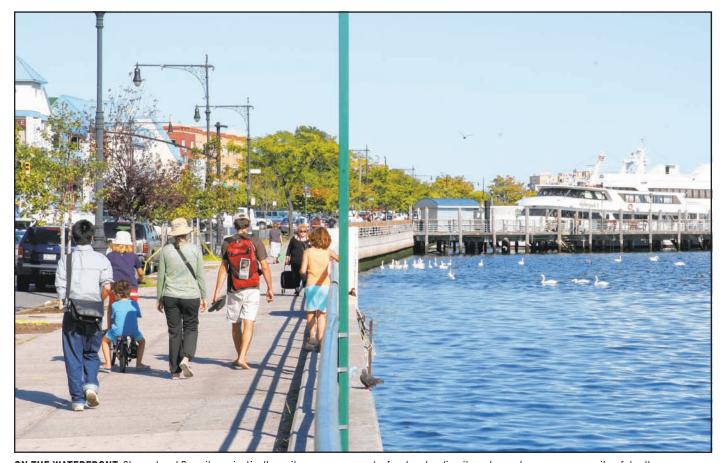

The neighborhood of Sheepshead Bay, which sits on Brooklyn's Riviera between Manhattan Beach and Coney Island like mighty Neptune, has always been a fisherman's paradise, but through its history it has been so much more — including the altar where Kings County sportsmen once bowed their heads.

Named for a fish resembling a sheep's head that once swam there, the neighborhood was part of the Town of Gravesend in the 1600s, and its eponymous bay, once called the Cove, used to connect to Coney Island Creek. That was long before Emmons Avenue became its heartbeat, Jimmy's Famous Heros and Roll-n-Roaster made their tempting debuts, and Andrew Dice Clay shocked audiences at the now-defunct Pips Comedy Club.

An industrial boom in the late 1800s transformed the area's farmland into elegant hotels, fine restaurants, and pleasure palaces for thoroughbreds of all stripes.

A Millionaire's Row stretched languorously between Nostrand Avenue and Knapp Street, attracting occupants like the Liebmans, who owned a stake in Brooklyn's Schaefer Brewing Company. The Old Tappen House, Restaurant and Inn, between E. 26th and E. 27th streets, which opened in 1845, was one of the first hospitality establishments in the area. It was followed by Lundy's, Villepigue's, Seidel's, and the Beau Rivage, all of them accessed by streetcars and railroads, including one whose locomotives puffed along E. 17th Street.

The Sheepshead Bay Race Track, a majestic canopied grandstand with twin tracks — including the nation's first grass track — opened in the late 1800s between Ocean Avenue and Avenue U, soon galloping into history as the nation's Mecca of horse racing. Prominent businessmen Augustus Jerome, August Belmont, and William Vanderbilt built the adjacent Coney Island Jockey Club, and drew deep-pocketed horsemen like Bet-a-Million Gates, Diamond Jim Brady, and Abe Hummel.

Legend has it that the nearby Holwell mansion fueled a thriving tipster racket, enabling "timers" to watch the early morning trials from its top rooms and then sell the information to bookies. Two of the races — Suburban and Futurity — still continue to run at Belmont Park.

The influx of new businesses at the close of the 19th century required a massive labor force. African-Americans workers from Kentucky, Tennessee, Virginia, and the Carolinas eventually settled in the bay, thanks to the efforts of Mother Maria J. Fisher, a pie vendor who secured land from the track's owner for the First Baptist Church of Sheepshead Bay on E. 15th Street and Avenue X, carting the first load of bricks herself to the worksite in a borrowed wheelbarrow.

"It was very courageous of her, particularly at that time," said Rev. Orlando McReynolds, pastor of the church that still ministers to the community from its original site, now co-named Mother Maria J. Fisher Wav.

New York outlawed horse racing in 1910, and millionaire sportsman Harry Harkness turned the site into a speedway where Louis Chevrolet won the $10,000 Harkness Cup in 1917, to cheers from 50,000 people — many of whom also flocked to the bustling piers for a fishing boat cruise to Atlantic City.

Frederick William Irving Lundy was another waterfront visionary with an enduring legacy.

He sold clams from a pushcart at the turn of the 20th century, and then from a clam bar on stilts above the bay next to a jumble of bait and tackle shops and other ramshackle businesses — all of them cleared out in the 1930s when the federal government instituted a public works program to repair the crumbling docks.

Lundy bought the Bayside Hotel and the Bayside Casino on Emmons and Ocean avenues, and then tore them down to build his famous Lundy Bros. Restaurant, opening in 1934 with a menu that offered $2.50 "Shore Dinners" — feasts of shrimp cocktail, steamed clams, chicken, and lobster with julienned potatoes and another vegetable followed by dessert, and tea or coffee. His gastronomic reign continued until the 1970s, before Lundy's re-opened from 1997 to 2007 under new ownership, later closing permanently. Its landmark exterior remains untouched, although its interior is now a small shopping plaza.

John J. Doody and Son, Inc. at Jerome Avenue and E. 18th Street, are Depression-era survivors that supplyed lumber to Lundy's and the housing boom that followed in the 1930s, and its waterproofing products that were used to build the Brooklyn-Battery Tunnel more than a decade later.

'Our contribution to the growth of Brooklyn began when Lundy's contracted us," says Nina Doody, the founder's greatgranddaughter.

Sheepshead Bay, some of whose roads are named after surveyors Messrs. Coyle, Ford, and Batchelder, thrived in the 1940s and 1950s, the lives of its mostly Jewish, Italian, and Irish residents documented in the pages of its hometown newspaper, the Bay News, located on Sheepshead Bay Road, off Shore Parkway, opposite the old Sheepshead Theatre, once the site of a moving company and a dress shop where Bally Total Fitness stands today.

The newspaper's classified pages were where Jahn's Old-Fashioned Restaurant and Ice Cream Parlor on Nostrand Avenue and Avenue Z advertised its children's parties and 99-cent lunches. The Bay News, which made its own headlines when reporter Pamela O'Shaughnessy was held in contempt of court for refusing to identify an undercover source during a narcotics trial, was also where Baker St. Pub at 2801 Coney Island Ave. between Avenues Y and Z, promised, "Steak, stout, spirits and a swingin' time," complete with 25-cent roast beef sandwiches and silent films on Wednesdays.

The recession of the 1960s closed Steeplechase Park in neighboring Coney Island, and the following decade saw one of the worst tragedies in the history of the New York Fire Department when six of Brooklyn's Bravest died after the roof of the Waldbaum's supermarket at Avenue Y and Ocean Avenue collapsed during an Aug. 2, 1978 fire.

An immigration boost in the 1990s rejuvenated the neighborhood with a flood of new immigrants, businesses, and top-dollar high-rises.

"What saved the area was the collapse of the Soviet Union," says borough historian Ron Schweiger.

Today, the Sheepshead Bay where comedians Larry David and Elaine Boosler were born is home to Asians, Russians, and Arabs, while Emmons Avenue continues to be the waterfront community of choice for European-style clubs, restaurants, and banquet halls — its mystique as intact today as the cups and saucers Irving Lundy's staff once carried across its rickety piers.

Midwooders: We've got movie madness

BY ELI ROSENBERG

Observant Jews in Midwood are outraged that the city let a movie crew film near Avenue M a day before the holiest day of the Jewish calendar.

Residents claim that the Mayor's Office of Media and Entertainment shouldn't have issued a permit allowing a movie production company affiliated with JC Studios to film in front its facilities on Avenue M near E. 14th Street knowing that Orthodox Jews would be unable to park near the bustling commercial strip as they prepared for Yom Kippur.

"It is one hell of an insensitive time to do this," said Boruch Moskovitz, a resident of E. 13th Street. "I'm not saying they shouldn't be shooting here, but this is a community where traffic is a major concern all the time and today everybody will be busy running around and shopping for the holiday."

The city said it will close off five blocks to parking including parts of E. 13th and E. 14th streets and Locust and Chestnut avenues — so the production company can film "Gods Behaving Badly' - a dramedy about Greek gods living in New York City starring Christopher Walken, Alicia Silverstone, John Turturro, and Sharon Stone. But the city promised to make a few concessions to the community as the holiday approached.

"Our office has denied a request to have NYPD tow trucks relocate cars that have not moved in time," said city spokeswoman Marybeth Ihle.

Tow trucks or not, Avenue M merchants said filming a movie so close to Avenue M during the high holy days was an affront to their operations.

"It's a significant disruption for businessmen like myself," said Jonathan Zemmol, the owner of the Yellow Door, which sells jewelry, on Avenue M. "It's a grotesque violation before one of the most solemn days of the year."

Neighborhood legislators were also up in arms, claiming that the city-issued permits were a violation of an agreement it had made with JC Studios to only bar parking from in front of the studio, which takes up much of Avenue M near E. 14th Street.

"It's like attempting to squeeze a large object into a small container," said Chaim Deustch, the chief of operations for Councilman Michael Nelson (D-Midwood). "If they can't contain a film within JC Studios without disrupting an entire community's quality of life, then they should film elsewhere."

Employees at the studio where "As the World Turns" was filmed until the soap was cancelled in 2009 insisted they weren't doing anything wrong.

New York Methodist reaches milestone

New York Methodist Hospital's Wound Care and Hyperbaric Oxygen Therapy Center logged a 90 percent success rate in healing the previously thought "unhealable" wounds of hundreds of Center patients in 2012 alone.

The hospital launched the Wound Care and Hyperbaric Oxygen Therapy Center, a state-of-the-art facility dedicated to the treatment of wounds that, for various reasons, have not healed properly with standard medical care, in 2010. The Center features a staff of wound care experts, as well as advanced, non-surgical options for healing wounds, including hyperbaric oxygen therapy.

The Wound Care Center works in collaboration with other Methodist departments to help heal patients, and part of its success is due to hyperbaric oxygen therapy. Breathing 100 percent pure oxygen at an increased atmospheric pressure while inside the hyperbaric oxygen chamber increases blood circulation, supplies more oxygen to damaged tissue, reduces scarring, and increases stem cell activity. All of these factors have a profoundly beneficial impact on the healing process.

If the term "space-age" was used to describe any medical treatment, hyperbaric oxygen therapy would be the one. At first glance, hyperbaric oxygen chambers appear to be straight out of "2001: A Space Odyssey." They are cylindrical, airtight, transparent, and allow a patient to comfortably watch television or a movie while breathing oxygen. However, the benefits it provides to Wound Care Center patients are not science fiction by any means.

Used along with standard wound care, hyperbaric oxygen therapy is an option for patients whose wounds have shown no measureable signs of healing for at least 30 days of treatment with traditional techniques. It is often used to treat wounds in the lower extremities of patients who have type 1 or type 2 diabetes since, as a result of low oxygen levels and impaired circulation, foot ulcers in those patients sometimes fail to respond to standard wound care.

"For a time, conventional wisdom said that even the most conscientious diabetes patients would ultimately require an amputation due to complications from the illness," said Ronald Soave, DPM, chief of podiatry and director of wound care at the Center. "Thanks to hyperbaric oxygen therapy, that notion is rapidly becoming outdated."

However, care for diabetic wounds is only a portion of the treatment options available at the Center. Other hyperbaric oxygen therapy applications include the treatment of compromised skin grafts and flaps (patches of skin that have been surgically removed from one area of the body and then transplanted, or attached, to another area); soft tissue radionecrosis (death of cells in bones, organs, and soft tissues, primarily due to radiation therapy for cancer); and chronic refractory osteomyelitis (a bacterial infection involving bone) that fails to heal despite adequate surgical and antibiotic therapy.

"Coupling advanced wound care therapy with the attentiveness the Center provides makes for an incredible service." said Nicholas Vaccari, Wound Care Center attending physician. "We're taking care of patients' needs in collaboration with their physicians, and ensuring that they receive comprehensive treatment that will allow them to heal, in more ways than one."

Enjoy dairy for good health

To some people, dairy's reputation for contributing to high cholesterol and weight gain is a misconception that's hard to let go of. But dairy's detractors should know the right dairy products enjoyed in moderation can actually be good for your health for a variety of reasons.

Consuming dairy products as part of a nutrient-rich diet is important for people of all ages. Dairy products have many nutrients and vitamins essential to good health. Calcium, protein, phosphorus, potassium, and supplemented vitamins A and D are all nutrients the body needs. Calcium, for example, is necessary to build and maintain strong bones.

Osteoporosis, a condition wherein the bones weaken and are more susceptible to injury, can affect anyone, but it is particularly common among women age 50 and older. The National Institutes of Nutrients in dairy products can be good for your health.

Health say as many as half of all women and a quarter of men older than 50 will break a bone due to osteoporosis. To keep bones strong, health professionals recommend eating a diet rich in calcium and vitamin D—both of which are found in dairy products.

Eating low-fat dairy products can reduce a person's risk of developing cancer. Studies have shown that populations that eat a high amount of calcium-rich foods have a lower incidence of colorectal cancer. According to child health authority Dr. Sears, calcium controls the multiplication of epithelial cells lining the colon. Fast multiplication of these cells increases a person's risk of developing cancer.

Drinking milk helps protect the enamel surface of teeth against acidic substances. This helps prevent tooth decay and weakening enamel.

Dairy also plays a role in digestive health. It may help in reducing acidity in the stomach. Yogurts with active cultures have been known to promote healthy digestion and alleviate occasional irregularity.

Milk, cheese, yogurt, creams, and even ice cream, can provide much of the daily recommended allowances of vital vitamins and minerals. Low-fat dairy products are important components of a healthy diet.

Young patients receive art supplies

Dariuss Mitchell was one of many young patients at the center who received supplies from ArtWorks' Surprise! Supplies program.

ArtWorks, The Naomi Cohain Foundation, recently hand-delivered a limited edition art cart filled with supplies to the young patients in the Brooklyn Hospital Center's cardiology unit, many of whom are suffering from chronic or life-threatening illnesses. The goal of Surprise! Supplies is for these children, and their siblings who accompany them, to have their own kit of crafts to keep them busy while anticipating a long day in treatment, enduring an extensive stay in the hospital, or accompanying a sibling to a procedure.

The donations were the brainchild of Dennis Bartling, the hospital's director of engineering, and The Brooklyn Hospital Foundation. It is sponsored in memory of Bartling's son, Christopher Paul Bartling, by the Christopher P. Bartling Fund and The Brooklyn Hospital Foundation.

"We are delighted to extend our partnership with the Naomi Cohain Foundation," said Kristen Riccardelli, the hospital's child-life specialist. "And, of course, we are forever grateful to Dennis Bartling and the hospital's private foundation, for making this gift possible."

Celebrating spiritual and physical wellness

Kingsbrook Jewish Medical Center and Mt. Zion Church of God Seventh Day have come together with several community-based organizations and local clergy to present the third-annual Unity Gospel Fest on Oct. 14. This unique event was designed to celebrate the connection between physical and spiritual wellness, while unifying the community at the same time.

This dynamic effort, featuring more than 20 choirs and gospel artists, is an impressive reflection of spirituality in the community. Guests are greeted by Kingsbrook healthcare professionals before experiencing an incredible display of musical praise and worship. This year, Unity Gospel Fest will return with an awesome line-up of artists from the Kingsbrook family, community, and local church partners. The only concert of its kind to be sponsored by a local hospital, the event is attracting the best gospel artists in the borough.

"We have always worked very closely with our community churches to educate and heighten awareness around health disparities," says Enid Dillard, director of Marketing and Public Affairs at Kingsbrook. "This event is a perfect collaboration with our clergy partners, as it marries the importance of spiritual and physical wellness into one inspirational message." The event will also incorporate health and wellness messages from the hospital.

In the past, Kingsbrook has partnered with numerous churches to devise educational programs, free screening efforts, and forums to address various health disparities that adversely affect the community. As such, Kingsbrook has not only become a trusted healthcare provider, but a part of the community's social fabric.

Pastor Gilford Monrose of Mt. Zion Church of God Seventh Day agrees that these types of partnerships are rare, but incredibly valuable to members of the community in more ways than one.

"Our community needs healing in so many ways. There is chronic illness, mental illness, and spiritual voids that prevent people from living their ultimate lives. This event speaks to all these issues and is important to encouraging a new perspective on wellness."

Kingsbrook Jewish Medical Center, celebrating its 86th year, is a teaching medical center, dedicated to meeting the health needs of one of Brooklyn's most culturally diverse communities.

Mt. Zion is one of Brooklyn's oldest and more reknown churches, it is the founder of Brooklyn Center For Quality Life.

Is your student athlete's heart healthy?

It's the most heartbreaking scenario a parent can think of: with no warning at all, an otherwise healthy student athlete collapses and dies while playing a sport.

You've noticed your child sweats a good deal, is dizzy at times and struggles to catch his breath — is that normal for someone playing a competitive sport, or are those symptoms that should have you running to the doctor? Should all students be screened for heart disease before being permitted to join a team at school or with a club? This is a case where the experts do not always agree.

What can cause heart disease in young people?

•A condition present at birth called hypertrophic cardiomyopathy causes 40 percent of all cardiac arrests in young people. It is a thickening of the heart muscle. This causes the heart to work harder and harder to pump blood.

·High cholesterol, which is associated with heart disease, nowadays affects up to 15 percent of children and adolescents — a much larger number than in the · Abnormalities of the rhythm of the heart.

What are the different types of heart exams?

·Chest X-rays — an Xray will tell you if the heart is enlarged

• Electrocardiogram (ECG) — this checks the heart rhythm to see if it is beating properly. This is also able to see if the heart is enlarged.

What are the arguments for routine screening of student athletes?

·Heart disease in the and seemingly young healthy happens more than we think. The American Academy of Pediatrics now estimates that 2,000 kids younger than 25 die from heart disease each year in the the country.

·Kids who play competitive sports are at even greater risk than sedentary kids — the exact opposite of what we'd expect.

•EKGs only cost around $150 and many insurers will cover the cost. Not a high price to pay for peace of mind.

And against?

·As with many medical tests, a certain percentage delivers results that are called false positive. That means an abnormal result was suggested in the absence of disease. To make sure, we then need to order even more tests, some of which may be costly and invasive.

·A screening can only provide information. It cannot stop a student athlete from participating in the sport.

•The medical system will have to screen large numbers of kids to identify a relative few who are at Student athletes participating in high-intensity sports such as football, basketball, squash or soccer would benefit from a complete physical and an EKG. The physical includes family history, personal history, blood pressure, cholesterol testing and so on.

The truth is we do not see an overwhelming number of adolescents and college kids whose ECG shows abnormalities. But when we do, they are usually profound, and we are grateful that we had the opportunity to save a young person's life.

Heart Institute launches new ads

The Heart Institute at Staten Island University Hospital unveiled a new branding campaign aimed at positioning it at the forefront of New York's heart surgery elite. The new ad campaign includes television commercials to air on the FIOS and Time Warner networks, in newspapers, magazines, and online.

Each element of the campaign, which launched on Sept. 10, invites viewers to see more on The Heart Institute's revamped website. There, users are treated to a rich environment of informative doctor interviews and emotional, off-the-cuff patient testimonials illustrating the incredible benefits of minimally invasive cardiac procedures.

The genesis of the campaign can be found in the words of The Heart Institute's medical director, Dr. Joseph T. McGinn.

"Currently, our surgeons are performing procedures and pioneering research that is changing the way all heart surgery is performed all over the world," said Dr. McGinn, who is the pioneer of minimally invasive cardiac bypass surgery.

The videos can be seen at www.theheartinstitute. com. The site's easy-to-use interactive design and content was carefully developed to inform potential patients, loved ones, caregivers and doctors about minimally invasive heart surgery in a quick, illustrative, and unbiased manner.

Police fear retribution for 'Innocence of Muslims' YouTube clip

BY WILL BREDDERMAN

Police are keeping an around-the-clock post outside the Coptic Orthodox Church of Saint George in Dyker Heights amid fears that the widespread violence in the Middle East triggered by a controversial anti-Muslim video will erupt in Brooklyn.

For the past week, a cop from the 68th Precinct has been positioned outside the Egyptian Christian church at the corner of 67th Street and 11th Avenue — the only Egyptian Christian house of worship in the borough.

Cops from the 68th Precinct say they authorized the detail because Nakoula Basseley Nakoula, the California resident who created the inflammatory short film that depicted the prophet Muhammad as a sex-crazed killer, is an Egyptian Christian.

Police believe the church, which sits just blocks away from one of the biggest Arab-American communities in the five boroughs, could be a target for anyone looking to lash out at Nakoula and his video, which has sparked riots in Egypt, Libya, and Pakistan.

"Anybody might want to break a window or spray-paint something," an NYPD source told this paper. "We just want to provide a show of force and let the community know that we're available for anything that could oc-

National Grid Sponsors Williamsburg International Film Festival

Partnership Creates Festival's First "Green Screen"

to Showcase Environmental Films

Move over Sundance - Known for its eclectic mix of old and new world charm. Brooklyn's historic Willamsburg community is also fast becoming the hottest ticket in town for arts and film. The third annual WilliFest was held this past weekend at various venues and showcased a wide variety of indy entries.

Powered by its new sponsor National Grid, the festival featured eco-focused works as part of its independent film and arts activities through "The Green Screen: Presented by National Grid." "Green Screen has allowed us to highlight and honor filmmakers who are invested in shining a light on important environmental issues in an entertaining way," commented Michael Helman, co-founder of WilliFest

National Grid, a long promoter of environmental protection is excited about this partnership venture with festival organizers. "We are committed to helping our customers use energy wisely and environmental considerations are fully integrated into our business," said Renee McClure, Customer Management Team at National Grid. "Working with WilliFest allows us to expand on that commitment to the community." The free screening on Sept. 22, at the El Puente Arts Center in Williamsburg included "Carbon for Water," an award winning short film from Evan Abramson and Carmen Elsa Lopez that highlighted how health, climate change and human rights are interlinked in Sub-Saharan Africa and "Volunteer," a feature length documentary from director/producer Mariah Wilson, that captures the thrills and perils of remote travel and natural preservation.

Small cars may be the future long operated under the presumption that "bigger is better," which is often reflected in the size of the vehicles on the road. However, future mandates on fuel economy could significantly increase the number of compact cars being bought and sold, and big cars might get a run for their money.

In the past, bigger cars might have been the popular trend. Muscle cars of the 1960s, giant sedans of the '70s and even the pumped-up SUVs of modern day are all bigger vehicles. But with the advent of the fuel-efficient car and hybrid or electric models, many people could find themselves driving a compact car in the next few years.

According to U.S. federal requirements, automotive industry products must average 35.5 miles per gallon by 2016, and proposed regulations could increase that number to 62 mpg by 2025. What this means for auto makers and consumers alike is that small cars could grow increasingly popular.

Automakers are already beginning to invest heavily in smaller vehicles. Compact cars were popular and prominently featured attractions at auto shows throughout 2010 and into 2011.

Consumers who once leaned toward larger vehicles may now purchase compact cars thanks to escalating fuel costs and more eco-conscious consumerism. Compact hvbrids have already become trendy among the celebrity set, and many fans may choose to emulate their favorite A-listers. The "green" movement has certainly changed consumer perception of small cars.

What's more, automakers are revamping features that normally caused people to shy away from compact cars. Interior space is being reconfigured to offer more headroom and legroom. Plus, automakers are packing compacts with innovative features and gadgets that make them appealing to an increasingly tech-savvy society.

Even people who are not fiscally or environmentally minded may lean toward the abundance of smaller cars at dealerships. That's because compact cars are affordable first cars or good options for singles and older couples looking to downsize. Young males may consider sporty, supedup coupes. With small cars, there certainly is a widespread market.

The hardest demographic to convince to switch to a smaller car will be the average family. Families with multiple children might feel compact cars don't provide the room needed to transport everyone. Automakers will no doubt address the needs of families in years to come.

It's like Times Square on New Year's Eve — only it's on Atlantic Avenue in Sep-

The legendary street fair the Atlantic Antic will once again turn the busy thoroughfare into a bustling pedestrian mall with food vendors, local shopping, musical performances, and entertainment for Brooklynites of all ages on Sept.

The 38th annual end of summer tradition, which takes place between Fourth Avenue and Hicks Street, brings together Brooklynites — and many outer-Brooklyn folks — like no other, regularly drawing a million visitors and making it the biggest street fair in New York City, organizers sav.

It also holds the distinction of being the only street fair mentioned in a Beastie Boys' song — making a memorable appearance in the tune "Shadrach" from the record "Paul's Boutique."

Expect 10 stages for musical showcases, storytelling, and other entertainment. as well as more than 500 booths from businesses and food vendors of all kinds.

Back for their 19th year, the New York Transit Museum will showcase its vintage buses in a nostalgic display beloved by kids fascinated by automobiles and older folks who remember when the classic rides rolled across the borough.

The mile-long festival funs from noon to 6 pm, rain or shine.

"They didn't have a leg to stand on. They couldn't point to anyone in the jazz community they'd worked with," said neighbor Kiki Valentine, a burlesque performer who opposes the club.

Thomas-Dicks, who didn't return a call seeking comment on Monday, first filed papers with the State Liquor Authority last month then noted she plans to cater to a classy "35-plus crowd."

But she isn't the first person who promised the club would be dedicated to a performance art. Last year, Paris Paris Cabaret and Burlesque's owner David Ruggiero told the same community group that his nightclub was "not going to be an adult establishment," and wouldn't feature stripper poles.

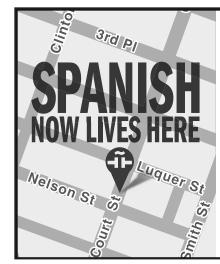

The this newspaper later discovered it featured pole dancers, softcore porn on TV, and lap dances — while neighbors claimed it lured disruptive and sometimes violent patrons who urinated on the street.

Neighbors now say it's difficult to imagine the new establishment will attract an artsy crowd rather than a seedy scene considering its location near the Brooklyn-Battery Tunnel and the venue's troubled history.

At the meeting, CB6 members recommended the duo take more time to communicate with neighbors then return to a permits and license committee meeting in October.

"The committee thought the applicant needed more time to work with community to resolve discrepancies," said CB6 district manager Craig Hammerman. "They'll come back with a revised business plan."

Arena critics cry foul as Barclays' opens

Snip, snip, hooray?

The Barclays Center celebrated its ceremonial grand opening last week with fanfare and a ribbon-cutting, but the festivities weren't exactly a slam dunk for masked protestors who accused developers and city officials of committing technical fouls by hiring interlopers and leaving Brooklyn's job-seekers on the sidelines ("It's open! Ceremonial ribbon-cutting marks Barclays Center debut," online Sept. 21).

Our online commentariat responded from both ends of the court.

Oh Lordy, oh Lordy, oh Lordy! BunnynSunny from Clinton Hill

How interesting that what was there before was never shown.

Before they broke ground, after having friends in high places help them break the law, there were homes where thousands lived before being displaced by the abuse of eminent domain, which is supposed to be for public projects only.

It just sickens me to hear those that try to justify this with their bowing down to Ratner.

One day, it will be your property that they could go after.

In reality, this was never about bringing a professional sports team to Brooklyn, which is the really the Trojan Horse here, it was about a greedy developer just wanting more land. One other thing, those who fought this project were hardly NIMBYs, because they weren't going to be living with it, the project was going to be on their homes.

I still suggest anyone who hasn't seen "Battle for Brooklyn" to see it to see what the real story was about especially what much of the media refused to cover over the years, and it's good for those who may feel as if they have been living under a rock on this for the who time.

Tal Barzilai from Pleasantville, N.Y.

The cries of people about the displacement of residents are un-nerving to me.

As it was, the owners of the properties that were legally purchased during the worst recession had profited for the sale since the offering by the developer was twice the value of what it was worth. The demolition of the vacant decrepit warehouse, factories that were within, is now transformed into a showcase for the Brooklyn borough.

The whole surrounding neighborhood is showing signs of a much better place than it once was.

It certainly seems that the antagonists are looking for cash handouts from someone since they fell that they should get more than they have for being around.

Too bad, Brooklynites, you should be proud, celebrate, and enjoy.

Someone who see a better place from New Yorker

I read that the designers of this building deliberately created the rusty appearance of the iron work to represent the rugged, tough fabric of Brooklyn.

I think they forgot to look around and notice that the borough is swarming with yuppies and hipsters.

Hardly tough.

BIBNY52 from Park Slope

Luanna from the bay

It's here and it is not going anywhere. Old time Brooklyn from slope

Thousands of residents were certainly not displaced for the Atlantic Yards project, at least not directly; you may argue that many more are going to be displace due to higher rents, but I doubt this number will even reach 1,000.

Much of the land needed was not even occupied by residents.

The buildings that were condemned did not house anywhere close to the claims. The numbers are more in the dozens.

Prospect Heights Resident from Prospect Heights

I heard Ratner had a Norm Bobblehead on display during event.

Steve Nitwitt from Sheepshead Bay

Barclays Center looks pretty good, though its entrance is a little naked; It needs more greenery than the green roof on the subway entrance. Artful pedestrian overpasses would help aesthetically, too, and mitigate the inevitable gridlock when games and concerts begin.

Scott from Park Slope

I think it was closer to 900 people all told who were displaced, but that's still more than live in many small cities, but the point is, if they did it here they can do it anywhere they want, and take your house or any piece of physical or intellectual property you may think you own.

All under eminent domain.

Since the Supreme Court under Bush expanded the use to "better financial deals for the government, more taxes for better use of a property," it is all fair game for the government to take whatever they want and give it to whoever has asked/paid them to rob you.

The Independent Budget Office has said the arena will be a money loser for the city and state.

National studies say they are big money losers.

Even Ratner's own economic flunky said the arena was a bad investment that was only offset by the other business and residential buildings.

Where are they?

So no offset, all money being lost by the government to go to a set of billionaires and wannabe billionaires. And that government money is your money.

Say goodbye to your future, you think Ratner, Prokhorhov, and Bloomberg deserve it more than you.

Bread and circuses, Romans, bread and circuses.

Rob from Ratnerville Unwilling says:

In the Atlantic Arts building they emptied over 140 apartments: the only holdout was Dan Goldstein.

In the Spalding Building another 40 units.

On Dean Street, next to the old Freddies, the converted factory with live-in artists and craftsmen, another 250 people. There were no unoccupied buildings on Dean Street!

Zero, zip, nada!

The Newswalk Building was carved out of the eminent domain numbers because Ratner couldn't cook a deal with Shaya Boymelgreen, the developer.

Pacific Street was mostly four-to-six story buildings with up to 48 occupied apartments in each one!

No revisionist history!

Bob from Prospect Heights

Up to 19,000 people flooding the neighborhood more than 200 times a year will create chaos on the streets. Does anyone have a hard number of the people that were forced out through the state's use of eminent domain?

I'm sure it's very little if the sales of the surrounding properties before the state came in. All I can say is that to have this arena and the events they have already scheduled is a blessing to all of Brooklyn.

BunnynSunny from Clinton Hill

Slope slant

To the editor:

I have lived in Park Slope since 1970, and in Brooklyn my whole life. I've lived in rental apartments until 1984, when a friend and I shared the purchase of a very moderately priced two-family house on 14th St. bet. Fourth and Fifth avenues.

Park Slope was a fine place to live in 1970 and has remained so. Contrary to Irene LoRe's experience, I never felt it was dangerous ("Brooklyn Back Story: Park Slope," Sept. 7).

The main issue in the early 1970s was the red-lining by banks, making it impossible for people to get mortgages. In the 1980s, large corporations brought their out-of-town employees on bus tours of the neighborhood to convince them it was OK to be moved here, resulting in the first wave of displacement of moderate and lower income people.

What the 1990s brought was the inflation of the cost of housing and the marketing of Park Slope by Manhattan-based real estate firms.

The thing that changed then was the influx of very wealthy people and the inability of others to find a place to live that is affordable, whether rental or purchase, resulting in the further displacement of moderate and lower income people.

I don't find that to be "an upward curve," except in the cost of living.

Maxine Wolfe Park Slope

dium — which will soon host Nets games at Atlantic and Flatbush avenues — is the centerpiece of Ratner's controversial and long-in-the-works Atlantic Yards mega-project, which has been the subject of lawsuits, protests, and even documentary films.

On Sept. 22, Ratner told more than 100 members of the media that the arena would enrich the lives of Brooklynites and employ thousands of people.

"It's a defining new model for the role sports and entertainment arenas can play in communities," he said.

He then used a three-foot long pair of scissors to snip a purple ribbon in front of the basketball court as confetti shot into the air.

Other speeches included plenty of hoops terminology - think "slam dunk," "victory," and "cheerleader" — as TV news reporters perused tables of miniature croissants and muffins.

But outside the media gathering, some Brooklynites weren't cheering.

A handful of protestors — clad in bobbleheadstyle masks of the developer and project-supporting politicians — staged a satirical performance, claiming project honchos backed out of promises to provide enough jobs.

"They're ripping off Brooklyn," said project mega-opponent Daniel Goldstein, who accepted a $3 million buyout after the state condemned his Prospect Heights home to make room for the Atlantic Yards development.

He said the second phase of the project, which includes building residential towers, should be cancelled and Ratner should be held accountable.

Ratner's $5-billion project includes a high-end sports club, luxury suites, and a parking lot and will feature concerts from teen dream Justin Bieber, superstar Barbra Streisand, and rap mogul Jay-Z beginning on Sept. 28.

Markowitz noted those big-name artists and exciting shows will help brighten the future of the borough.

"For every entertainer who comes, it will be a crowning achievement — because they get to say they made it to Brooklyn, USA," he said.

Behind him, a screen above the court flashed the words: "September is just the beginning."

Seddio

and his wife Assemblywoman Inez Barron were the only Dems to vote against Seddio, while Brooklyn Heights district leaders Chris Owens and Jo Anne Simon abstained.

Seddio was considered the runaway favorite before the vote, though he was expected to face some competition from Simon, who painted herself as a reformer capable of cleaning up the party's tarnished reputation after female staffers accused Lopez of sexual harassment.

But before borough Dems chose their boss, Simon said she realized she couldn't win and that collaboration was the best course of action — so she bailed out of the running.

"I'm committed to working toward an improved party for a shared future," said Simon, who launched a failed Council campaign against the Lopez-run Democratic machine in 2009. "We'll work together and it'll happen or it won't."

District leaders — who are elected to their obscure party seats — predicted a Seddio landslide in the days before the vote, claiming "at-large" members controversially appointed to their posts by Lopez would sway the vote.

But before choosing the new boss, party officials passed a resolution eliminating all voting powers for the "at-large" members — bringing an end to a party policy that critics complained was a power grab by Lopez.

However Seddio had no trouble landing the influential job — which will allow him to choose judges across the borough — without the help of Lopez appointees.

Seddio says Brooklyn Dems will be more active under his oversight, and the party will be more transparent.

"[Expect] more participation by the leaders [and] a more democratic process," he said. "Our meeting goal is to attract Democrats to get Obama reelected and [Sen. Kirsten] Gillibrand and to get a Democratic mayor next year."

The boss gig only opened up after Lopez — who did not attend the meeting - agreed to step down amid allegations that he groped and attempted to kiss employees.

The influential Bushwick politician also lost his title as chair of the Assembly's Committee on Housing, but he has not resigned from his Assembly seat and is seeking re-election.

His predecessor as party boss, Clarence Norman, was disbarred and removed from the chair position in 2006 after he was found guilty on corruption and bribery charges.

San Francisco sausage eatery lands in Williamsburg

By Anthony Smith

restaurant Williamsburg is reclaiming the phrase "sausage fest."

Even though the expression typically refers to "any gathering that is made up of an unusually large percentage of guys," San Francisco transplant Rosamunde Sausage Grill displays its most literal definition with perfectly cooked sausages and a selection of craft beers hailing from that other great city on the opposite coast.

"At our stores on Mission Street and Haight Street, we have a very diverse customer base and we felt we would be a perfect fit in Williamsburg considering the creativity and energy it has to offer," said Chase Hartwig, Rosamunde Brooklyn's general manager.

They couldn't have come at a better time. As the swimming success of fratty joints like Whiskey

B&B: Have a cold beer to go with that beer sausage. Rosamunde's wide variety of sausages include wild boar, cheddar bratwurst, and rabbit, making this a proper sausage fest.

Bar would indicate, Williamsburg's creative energy exists side-by-side hungry and thirsty neighborhood newbies who aren't looking to get too adventurous.

What better way to marry perfect staple foods with raw creativity than through a sausage and beer bar that reminds a young foodie of his first trip to Haight Street?

Despite being a long way from home, this transplant has landed in Brooklyn remarkably intact. It's sausages taste every bit as brilliant as they did in San Francisco, with the robust meatiness tempered with sweetness and spice.

And the bun they come in is astoundingly good as well - better than it needs to be.

The myriad options on the menu could be harrowing for some newcomers, so Hartwig recommends for a first time visit a beer sausage topped with grilled onions and sauerkraut, slathered with spicy brown mustard. It costs $8, and it's incredibly filling.

If you're looking for a beer and sausage pairing, Hartwig turns your attention to the duck and fig sausage covered with grilled onions and mango chutney. Wash that down with a Rodenbach Flemish Sour Ale, or any of the many beers they have to offer.

And for those with dietary restrictions, the restaurant has three delicious vegan sausages as well perfect for an all-inclusive sausage udiences had plenty to heckle when watching a new documentary about the borough's rapid gentrification — and that's not because they didn't like the film.

The revelatory scenes of "My Brooklyn" make the case that politicians and other officials paved the way for the controversial transformation of the Fulton Mall from a shopping corridor catering to African-American customers to a hub for national retailers — displacing a community and steering millions to developers in the process.

The audience at a Thursday screening at Brooklyn Public Library bristled with exasperation as talking heads spoke, and a post-screening Q&A became a heated discussion over who is to blame, and what can be done.

"Even for someone like me who is pretty cynical about the political process, I was still surprised to see [the political system] so blatantly used for capital gain at the expense of the community," said co-director Kelly Anderson, whose film is showing at Long Island University and UnionDocs in October.

> Sat. 10/6

The documentary's heart beats around a major rezoning that sparked a wave of development in Downtown, which the City Council pushed through in 2002, heralding a new era of Starbucks and Aeropostale.

Gumshoe Anderson and co-director Allison Lirish Dean clearly did their homework as the film is informative and thorough. Interviews with shop owners and regular, working class folks feel candid, insightful, and wholly delightful. They make poetic use of photos from legendary shooter and

Anderson also seems to upend fairness by selectively quoting newcomers (or those welcoming big-box chains and high-end boutiques), portraying them as shallow, judgmental and naive, although she is happy to point out that those moving into the new buildings cannot be blamed for others' displacement — as Anderson moved into Park Slope in 1988 as an early gentrifier.

At its best, "My Brooklyn" connects the dots between city policy and neighborhood change, underscoring the importance of community engagement. But if nothing else, Anderson reminds viewers that blame can often be found by answering one simple question: "Who benefits?"

something inherently otherworldly about a band called Dark Dark Dark.

The group, fronted by vocalist, pianist, and accordion player, Nona Marive Invie, plays folk songs that range from minimal, haunted confessionals showcasing Invie's powerful voice to ramshackle, gypsy-style pieces driven by tumbling drum beats that somehow end up back where they began. A binding thread in the music is a repetition that creates the intoxicating sensation of being lost in time, going around and

"Things that feel cyclical and cycles feel good to me," said Invie, who will perform at the Knitting Factory on Oct. 12. "I feel like I write in circles a lot."

The hypnotic feel, however, is hardly isolating or dizzving. Rather, the intimacy of the music and lyrics provides for a very personal experience, both for the band and the audience. Invie enjoys exploring new ways to connect with the individuals in the crowd, as she grows more and more comfortable on stage.

"I feel more sensitive to people watching," she said. "It's fun experimenting with eye contact. Just communicating with people like that."

Though Invie has spent her summer swimming in the lakes of her hometown Minneapolis, she once called New York home.

Members of Dark Dark Dark have spent time as residents of Brooklyn, too. The borough's flourishing musical scene provides a savvy audience that the group looks formonth.

"It's always one of a handful of the best shows," Invie said. "It's sort of like we're performing for our peers. I

BROOKLYN SUCKS, AUTHOR SAYS

An interview with a vampire combat expert, Roger Ma

By Colin Mixson

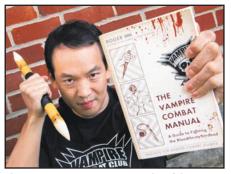

indsor Terrace resident and author of "The Zombie Combat Manual" Roger Ma is celebrating the release of his new how-to "The Vampire Combat Manual," which is hitting shelves on Oct. 2. As a service to our readership, and mankind in general, the BrooklynDaily.com sat down with the expert on all things unholy to bring awareness to the everpresent vampire menace, and provide tips on how best to defend yourself, and your tasty blood.

Colin Mixson: Are there any particular spots in Brooklyn that vampires frequent?

Roger Ma: In Brooklyn, you have to think subterranean. Even in daylight hours, if they're insulated from sunlight, that's where they'll congregate. So, even during the day you have to be wary. Also, they tend to congregate in large metropolitan centers, because that's where there's food. Every major metropolitan area is just a feeding frenzy. When you look at crime, muggings, and assaults, those are attributed to regular criminal activity, but who's to say those attacks weren't foiled vampire assaults. Especially if someone who's inebriated said they were attacked by a vampire, they're not going to be taken seriously.

CM: How powerful are vampires? Do we even stand a chance, vampire manual, or no, when fighting a blood sucker?

RM: People, because of the media, have this perception that a vampire is completely superhuman; that they can fly, transform into animals, turn into mist, and my theory is that these myths have been perpetuated by vampires to make themselves seem more fearsome. Most vampires have great strength, dexterity, hearing, and eyesight, but only about double to triple that of a human. So, if you can bench 100, if you became a vampire you could bench 300 pounds. This makes them powerful, but not invincible.

CM: Have you ever had to put your knowledge into practice? Have you fought any vampires recently?

RM: No, fortunately. When I was writing the book, I would go on a number of late night runs after sunset, which is the big hunting time for vampires. Right after sunset is when they catch the going-home-from-work crowd, and then, later on, they get the entertainment crowd, people coming home from clubs. But, so far, I've been lucky.

CM: How did you research this book? Did you have to seek out arcane libraries and forgotten tombs, or does your knowledge of vampires come from "Buffy the Vampire Slayer" re-runs?

RM: A lot of it was historical research. Vampires have a history throughout many different cultures, and across continents. People's experiences of these creatures come in various forms across the world, but there are also consistencies. I have tried to avoid anything that's been done in the later part of the 20th century, thinking its not very accurate, and has probably been manipulated by vampires themselves. They've tried to make themselves seem more powerful and, more insidiously, to seem attractive. What was once shunned now seems attractive to most humans

CM: Wow, I didn't realize vampires have their own PR guys. I need to get a number for their press office. Are there any notable vampires in Brooklyn? Any chance that any prominent Brooklyn politicians take late-night hemoglobin snacks?

RM: If there are, I'm not saying, because I don't want to spread any false rumors there. It's bad enough I have this book out, I'm probably a target already.

CM: Fair enough, Roger, this is probably a good time to end our discussion. In concern for your health, we don't want to give you too much publicity.

RM: Same to you. Thanks.

The man behind Stan: Book reveals untold Marvel Comics stories

By Chuck O'Donnell

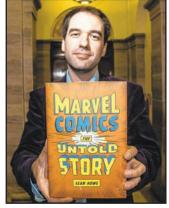

he Brooklynite who founded Marvel Comics only got a one-paragraph tribute from the company he created when he died in 1992 — but now the incredible story of his life and achievements is getting the recognition it deserves.

Martin Goodman was a working class Brooklyn kid who launched the biggest name in comics and tasked his wife's nephew, a junior editor named Stan Lee, to come up with a superhero team better known today as The Fantastic Four.

That hiring decision gave rise to a big bang of creativity that soon brought Spider-Man, Iron Man, the Hulk, and thousands of other characters into the world.

But his legacy was largely overlooked until Prospect Heights resident Sean Howe realized Goodman's historic contributions while researching his upcoming book "Marvel Comics: the Untold Story."

"When Goodman died, there was just a paragraph-long notice in the Marvelous book: Sean Howe's history of Marvel includes stories about Brooklynite founder of the company Martin Goodman — whose hired his wife's nephew, Stan Lee.

Marvel publicity letter. It was listed underneath a much bigger obituary for William Gaines, who was one of the Mad magazine founders," said Howe, who uses the perfunctory, one-paragraph obituary in the official Marvel newsletter to close one of the saddest chapters of his text.

Goodman was an unlikely hero, quitting school in the fifth grade to help his parents and 12 siblings in Brooklyn make ends meet, rising from poverty during the Great Depression, starting the world's largest comic book publisher from a cramped office in Manhattan.

And he didn't just sit back and maneuver the purse strings. Goodman had final approval for all covers for decades, and deftly pushed the company to explore genres such as horror and romance.

The strange saga of Goodman's anti-climatic death is just one of the once untold stories found in Howe's book. Through three years of research, Howe stitches together the tale of how impoverished child prodigies, hallucinating peaceniks, and mercenary careerists helped Marvel weather Wall Street machinations, Hollywood failures, and the collapse of the comic book market.

Howe captures the often volatile world of hero-and-villain makers.

While the recent ballooning movie budgets and story lines that have pitted hero against hero would surprise Goodman if he were alive, he would surely recognize the never-ending battles between writers, artists, and editors. Throughout the book, it's like Howe is putting a glass to the door at Marvel's old offices on Madison Avenue and letting us listen in as the drama plays out like an issue of Chris Claremont's theatrical run on the X-Men in the 1980s.

"I think there may be a certain type of person creating superhero stories with a streak of idealism in them," Howe said. "I wouldn't explain everything away with that, but it's not that much of a leap to think that someone who is creating stories about characters that are fighting for values would be willing to wage a war for their own values."

Behind the lines: The Brooklyn Army Terminal, which was used during World War II, will open to the public during the OpenhouseNY annual weekend.

Open house highlights boro's industrial past

By Danielle Furfaro

hulking facility that helped usher in history is now part of a look back into the borough's past.

A non-profit whose mission is to help New Yorkers appreciate the beauty and history of their surroundings is reintroducing the Brooklyn Army Terminal to those who don't know about the giant building that once launched army supplies — and Elvis Presley — overseas.

The group is inviting the public to wander around the concrete behemoth on Oct. 6, with helpful guides eager to impart its historical significance.

"This building was build in just 18 months, which is unthinkable these days," said building operations manager Carmine Giordano. "It was built for the military in World War I, but it didn't make it [in time]. It was used for World War II. Stuff like radios and blankets were stored here and people were called to duty here."

The Brooklyn Army Terminal was designed by famous architect Cal Gilbert, who also created the Woolworth building and some of the city's early train stations. But it's perhaps most famous for being the widely publicized point of departure for the King of Rock and Roll before he served in Germany in 1958.

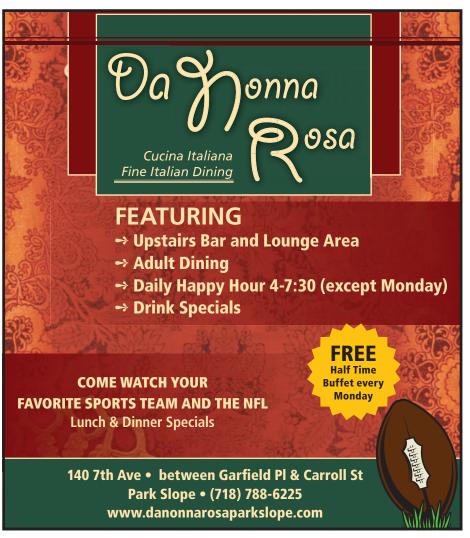

"This building was cutting in its time," said Ellen Ryan, executive director of OpenhouseNY. "It's a telling legacy of the industrial past of the city."

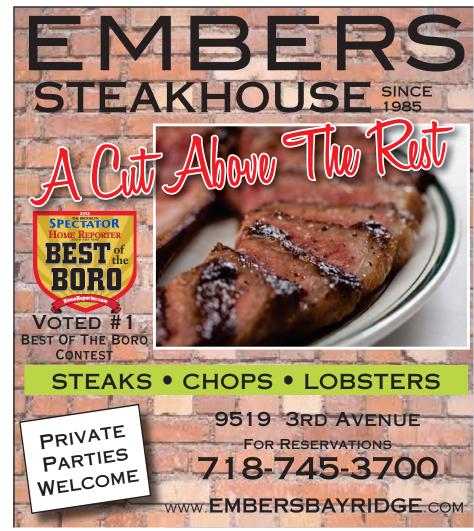

The building is one of hundreds of landmarks, public works, private houses, and offices that OpenHouseNY claims embody the architectural spirit of the city.

Brooklynites will also get special to access to other borough landmarks including Green-Wood Cemetery, the Brooklyn Navy Yard, and the Brooklyn Academy of Music.

OpenhouseNY is usually a small organization, but throughout the month of September, more than 700 volunteers help get ready for the annual event. When they first started ten years ago, the annual weekend was the organization's only event, but it has now expanded to boat tours and walks throughout the year.

MIDWOOD

Three cheers and rosebuds to our gal pal Gwendoline Parker, who turned a spry 93 years young and celebrated with a feast at the Midwood Senior Center on Sept. 10. Holy-moley, just look at the size of that cake! But where was Standing O's piece? Gwendoline still trips the light fantastic and loves to spend her time at the senior center schmoozing with pals and cutting a rug.

Standing O wishes Gwendonline many happy returns.

MIDWOOD

CoJo on the go

Welcome to the neighborhood. CoJo of Flatbush opened its brand-spanking new community office on Sept. 9 with a whopping good time that feted over 250 guests and officials. The new offices stretch CoJo's area of help to Midwood's residents with legal, rental, and medical matters. The new space boasts a large, comfortable, client-friendly area for community members and enables CoJo to consolidate its human services divisions, allowing its 25,000 clients to be served with a wide spectrum of programs under one roof.

"Now we can ensure cutting-edge delivery of social services, programs for seniors, youths, immigrants, employment, small business and financial counseling initiatives," Moshe Zakkheim, president of CoJo, told Standing O.

Standing O says, "Mazel tov and bienvenue."

WILLIAMSBURG

Culinary cudos

We hear that Brooklyn's own Chef Carla Contreras, former Careers through Culinary Arts Program (C-CAP NY) Culinary Coordinator, and private chef and founder of Red Clog Kitchen, competed on the TV show "Chopped." Our pal Carla wowed the judges with her fantastic carrot cake, kosher shrimp, and turkey taco sensations.

This cuisine de chef showed her passion for the culinary arts and landed a finalist position by presenting her caramel corn as dessert. Carla started cooking as a young child in Rochester to an Italian family that

PARK SLOPE

Raise your mugs: Leaf and Bean is back. Slopers have had to endure the drought since January of this year when the specialty shop shut the doors on Seventh Avenue. But the beans are back in business and we can all stop and smell the aroma again.

The emporium, which turns 40 this March, started out life in 1973. A satellite store was eventually opened on Montague Street, where Standing O used to get her daily fix of java.

When owner Alan Mehlberg decided to grind Leaf and Bean to a halt and retire his urn, Vikki Cook, manager at the Seventh Avenue location, cast her cup and made a bid with partner Karen Hue. "He [Alan], gave us first option and we, [me and Karen] took advantage of that."

It's a new store, but the same fantastic goods. "I am very encouraged that the store will make it here in this new location," Vikki said. "We have the old customers and we have reached out to new ones too," she added.

Vikki and Karen stock the shelves with a selection of more than 60 varieties of beans, including fair trade and organics, as well as loose teas, specialty teas, and infused blends, a large assortment of world-class confections, baked goods, and chocolate goods. Now we're talking.

You can also pick up those hard-toget must-haves that go along with making a great cup of coffee or tea. Unlike the Montague cafe, the new location is strictly retail, (sigh, they had great sandwiches). And as Vikki said, "We don't have a barista, just a simple coffee bar, and we do offer tastings, too."

So, who needs a barista when you have the best beans in town, I ask you?

Leaf and Bean is open on Mondays, Tuesdays, and Thursdays, 9:30 am to 6:30 pm, Wednesdays 9:30 am to 7:30 pm, and Saturday 10 am to 6 pm. Sorry, no Sundays, but that might change in December, Vikki said.

Standing O can only hope!

Leaf and Bean [176 Lincoln Pl. and Seventh Avenue in Park Slope, (718) 638–5791].

tilled it's own backyard garden.

"I believe that food is love and coming from an Italian family it is more than love, it's life. Becoming a chef and culinary educator was a natural extension of who I am,' said Carla.

Standing O says abundanza!

BROOKLYN HEIGHTS

The best of the best

Flowers and toasts to Louis Ross, the centenarian with the mostest, for reaching 100 years young. Our pal Louis celebrated the old-fashioned way — with a dinner and party at Perry's Restaurant on Sept. 8. Louis had his bride of 73 years, Ethel, who is a mere 93, by his side. Along with the love of his life, Louis received accolades from state Assemblywoman Helene Weinstein (D-Midwood) who presented him with a letter from Police Commissioner Raymond Kelly. The congratulatory missive acknowledged his dedication and service from his days as a Post Warden during World War II, when he protected the skies of our fair city with the Police Department's Air Raid Protection Service.

Standing O wishes Lou another 100 years.

all aglow at the accolades. "Being recognized in U.S. News is an affirmation of the success our faculty, staff and administrators for providing a top-flight education," said Brendan Dugan, president.

Hey, what about Standing O's ranking? St. Francis is number one with us. U.S. News bases its ranking on assessments from peer colleges, graduation and retention rates and alumni gifts, but Standing O uses a better criteria. St. Francis has been in the borough since 1859 and we all know that in order to last that long, you've got to be the best of the best.

So congratulations, St. Francis, long may you teach.

Thomas Jefferson High School senior Kendall "Speedy" Thomas caught two touchdown passes as he led the Orange Wave to a 20–14 win over host John F. Kennedy High School on Saturday afternoon.

Thomas grabbed a 24yard pass from quarterback Al Stewart right before halftime to help the 3-0 Orange Wave tie the score at 8-8 going into the break, but that was nothdid next: Thomas sped right past his defender in third quarter for an 83yard touchdown that extend his team's lead to 20-8 with 3:12 left in the frame. He also made a 53-yard scoring run and a 95-yard interception return that was ultimately negated by penalties — but the Xaverian transfer wasn't upset that his stellar play didn't

"Stuff like that happens all the time," Thomas said. "I'm learning not to get upset because I know I am going to make a bigger play next time."

The Orange Wave's coaching staff put Thomas's legs to work on both offensive and defensive lines on Saturday, knowing that there isn't a player in the city that can outrun him.

"He is bringing the wood now," Orange Wave co-coach Gus Cyrus said. "I ask him, 'Where did the wood come from? Thanks for laying it out. We needed it today."

Cyrus added that his players are bonding both on the field and off, and even bought a birthday cake for co-coach Stephen Edwards this week — something last year's squad would never have thought of doing.

"This team sticks together," Cyrus said. "They are more like a family."

ALL THUMBS: Xaverian's defensive line couldn't stop St. Joseph by-the-Sea's running game during a killer 46-36 loss on Photo by Steve Solomonson

Xaverian falls to St. Joseph's

BY JOE PANTORNO

Xaverian's defensive line was no match for St. Joseph by-the-Sea's aggressive ground game on Friday as the Clippers fell to the Vikings 46–36 at Aviator Sports and Events Center in Mill Basin — despite an impressive showing by Xaverian quarterback Zach Kearney.

Kearney threw for 135 yards and three touchdowns — including a 53-yard bomb to senior Jonathan Badyna - and ran for two more scores, but the Vikings ripped right through the Clippers' blockers as the gridiron squad from the Rock churned out almost 300 yards in a grueling attack that left Xaverian coach Joe DeSiena shaking his head.

"The defense can't hang its hat on this performance," DeSiena said.

St. Joseph by-the-Sea took a 24-14 lead going into halftime, but Xaverian came out of the break scoring three back-to-back touchdowns that would snag the team a 35-24 lead with 3:25 left in the

Yet the third quarter rally was short lived: the Clippers couldn't put the brakes on the Vikings's next two fourthtouchdown quarter runs and were unable to send the ball down field on its next possession. Xaverian ultimately turned the ball over on downs - and watched as the Vikings iced the game with another touchdown.

Lincoln triumphs over Curtis, 30–14

YOU'RE GOING DOWN: Erasumus Hall's Tyseme Foster ends Campus Magnet quarterback Blesuan Austin's advance.

Flying Dutchmen sack Bulldogs

BY JOE PANTORNO

Erasmus Hall running back Khalil Lewin rushed for 127 yards and quarterback Matthew Domina threw for 116 on Saturday afternoon as the Dutchmen trounced the Campus Magnet High School Bulldogs 26–12 — a victory the Dutchmen saw as payback for last year's season-opening loss to the Queens squad.

The Bulldogs snagged a 12–7 lead by halftime, but the Dutchmen dominated the second half of the game — thanks in part to Lewin's awesome 84-yard offensive run.

"As a player in the fourth quarter, it's all about me," a confident Lewin said. "When they think I slow down in the fourth quarter I bust out. It doesn't matter, just give me the ball."

A 48-yard touchdown pass from Domina to Curtis Samuel gave Erasmus a 7–6 lead in the second quarter, but Campus Magnet took the five-point advantage into the break when quarterback Blessuan Austin scrambled up the middle for a score from a yard out as time expired.

Domina's 24-yard touchdown pass to Shavar Brathwaite gave the Dutchmen a lead that was quickly solidified by a 15-yard touchdown catch by Brathwaite, grabbing the team a 20–12 advantage.

Austin brought his team to the Erasmus's 16-yard line, but cornerback Jonathan Samerson tipped and intercepted his touchdown pass in the end zone. The ball was then handed to Lewin, who broke loose down the left sideline, giving the Dutchmen a decisive 26–12 victory.

Erasmus Hall's coaching staff were gratified to watch the Dutchmen turn the tables on a long-time nemesis.

"The Bulldogs owned us a bit in the past," said Dutchmen coach Danny Landberg. "This victory was really important to

Poly Prep volley girls spiked with injuries

BY JOSEPH STASZEWSKI

The Poly Prep Blue Devils is suffering from the Kennedy curse.

The girls volleyball team has lost a star hitter and a team captain to injuries this season, forcing the remaining Devils to cobble together a string of losses in what the team's coaching staff predicted would be a winning season.

"It's a big loss for us," Blue Devils coach Vanessa Ruck said. "This year we expected a lot. In our mind we were very strong."

Poly was confident that a title was well within their reach, but that was before Jacquie Kennedy, considered the first lady of city volleyball's outside hitters, sprained her ankle after landing on an opponent's foot in a match against Spence. The senior star is now a seat warmer until the middle of October at the earliest.

Poly Prep lost its first three straight matches in her absence, winning only a single set. The fact that senior-captain Kerri Saputo is also out with a strained Achilles certainly hasn't helped the Devil's diminishing odds, team coaches say.

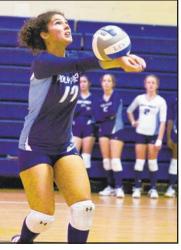

The Blue Devils showed exactly what it was capable of — with Kennedy in the lineup — when it beat defending New York State Association of Independent Schools champion Fieldston Eagles, who was down a starter, in five sets in the semifinals of the Brearley tournament.

Poly then went on to beat the host school in the final. The injuries made its second meeting with Fieldston much different.

Without Kennedy and Saputo, Poly fell 25–18, 25–13, and 25–13, to the Eagles in an Ivy League match in the Bronx last Friday.

Now it's on the younger Devils to rally and overcome the mounting disappointment.

intment.
"It has put a lot of pressure on the younger girls," Poly setter Jacqueline Chirdo said. "We have the talent. We just don't have the mind set to carry through sometimes."

It's also put added pressure on Chirdo, who is now responsible to help bring along some of the other hitters like Gillian Chan, Rachel Licata, and Shannon Twomey.

She said it hasn't been an easy process building their confidence.

The trio showed flashes of brilliance against Fieldston, but, like their team, they couldn't sustain it. Ruck said she could bring up some junior varsity players to help bolster the lineup.

Now, Poly seems resigned to treating Kennedy's injury as a learning experience, albeit a bitter one. It's given less experienced kids a chance at valuable playing time, without the crutch of knowing Saputo and Kennedy are there to back them up. The rut could make it a stronger club—in the long run.

"As soon as Jacquie gets back hopefully we are all going to jell," Chirdo said. "Hopefully it will come back to us."

Ida says the Chargers will take it

BY ELI ROSENBERG

There had been an accident. It was winter, 1984, and there was ice everywhere; on the streets, on the sidewalks, covering even the leaves on the trees. The most mundane objects, when touched by the deep chill, had turned hazardous; such was the dismally cold January that year. So when Ida's best friend slipped on her new treadmill, a thin-layer of ice forming over the rubbertrack in the heatless house, while she was staying over during the NFL playoffs, it fundamentally shook Ida's faith in two of things she had never thought to question: the National Football League, and 1980s-era exercise equipment. She may have been able to live without her part-time gig at NordicTrack, but football was not something she could consider living without. Not then, at least. That was before her two-year boycott of the golden game — a whole another ball of yarn to spin, as they say. Wistful times remind our pigskin princess with a few words from Jean Baudrillard: "There is no aphrodisiac like innocence."

Ida's picks: Ravens (-12), Patriots (-3.5), Lions (-4), Falcons (-7), Texans (-12), Cardinals (-6.5), Raiders (6), Bengals (-1.5), Packers (-7.5), Buccaneers (-3), Giants (2.5), Bears (3.5)

Breakouts:

Jets (3.5) over 49ers "Jets play well at home."

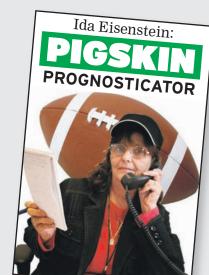

Chargers (-1.5) over Chiefs "They're gonna bounce back."

Seahawks over Rams "Of course I'm going with the Seahawks."

Ida's Kryptonite Lock of the Week: Buccaneers (-3) over the Redskins "Don't ask me why, I don't know"

Ida's record: Total: 19-28-1, 2-1 krypotite

The Community Newspaper Group (CNG) is the largest network of neighborhood newspapers in New York City. With multiple community newspapers and websites, CNG distributes hundreds of thousands of newspapers each week in Brooklyn, Queens, Bronx and Manhattan. These long-established community-specific papers deliver geographically targeted news, lifestyle, local sports and entertainment information. In addition, CNG's monthly Family Publications and annual Wedding, Prom. Bar Mitzyah and Sweet Sixteen magazines reach readers during their family formative years and important life events.

For advertisers, CNG offers an opportunity for both market-wide and neighborhood targeted advertising, allowing them to get their message into the areas they want to reach.
