CB15 blasts city plan for one-way S'Head Bay Road

BY ALLEGRA HOBBS

The city floated a plan to Community Board 15 to turn part of Sheepshead Bay Road one way, and close a stretch of E. 15th Street altogether — but the idea sank like a rock.

The plan presented at a CB15 meeting on June 16 aims to ease congestion around Sheepshead Bay Road between E. 15th Street and Jerome Avenue, near the Sheepshead Bay Station for the B and Q trains, which is notorious for traffic, trash, homeless people and car crashes. But board members worry that the drastic changes that the Department of Transportation is proposing could make conditions in the area even worse.

“A change is not automatically a correction,” said CB15 member Maurice Kolodin. “It can make it worse.”

For example, the city wants to close the segment of E. 15th Street between Avenue Z and Sheepshead Bay Road, with visions of eventually converting it into a pedestrian plaza with shops and outdoor seating. But the chairwoman of CB15 pointed out that closing that part of E. 15th Street could turn it into a trash heap long before it became a shopping street, by exacerbating the area’s chronic litter problem.

“Go to E. 15th Street right now, and I would bet you that it is filthy,” said Theresa Scavo. “So what’s going to happen on a closed street? Everybody throwing garbage, and it’ll sit

Cyclone stuck – again

BY MAX JAEGER

It is déjà vu all roller again!

Luna Park’s Cyclone roller coaster stalled just before the first drop for the second time this season on June 13 — and once again, no one called 911 as riders descended the 85-foot-tall tower to safety.

The Fire Department has no record of any emergency calls from the park that afternoon, said a spokesman for the department. Despite the apparent oversight, the park was putting safety first, a Luna Park spokesman said.

“There was a minor malfunction,” said Bruce Bobbins, who declined to elaborate. “The riders were safely evacuated. And because the safety and well-being of our guests is our foremost priority, the Cyclone was taken off line while it was fixed and then inspected by both our own technicians and those from the Department of Buildings.”

Bobbins wouldn’t say whether the park called emergency services.

The ride also malfunctioned on the park’s opening. Continued on page 12

 “The question isn’t who’s going to let me, it’s who is going to stop me,” famously said late American novelist Ayn Rand, who should have been at our Women of Distinction awards night to see some fierce females get their dues.

Courier Life Publications and Community News Group honored 25 of the borough’s best and brightest during a June 10 gala at Sirico’s Caterers in Dyker Heights, the accolades capping our 2015 Brooklyn’s Women of Distinction magazine, which came out last month and profiled honorees whose ranks included volunteers, executives, small business owners, and animal experts.

The honorees — nominated by their peers and selected by independent judges — were picked for turning simple workdays into exceptional opportunities to improve our lives and advance Brooklyn, claimed the publishing giant’s president, Jennifer Goodstein, who was master of ceremonies.

“These are the women who are shaping our borough and influencing our present and future,” she said. “Whether volunteers, government officials, or business owners, they bring their own unique skills to improve Brooklyn.”

Their stories were inspiring: A retired homeowner became a leading civic activist — on a dare. A microbiologist gave up her globe-trotting career to minister and serve impoverished Brooklynites. A dance teacher took it upon herself to fulfill the holiday wishes of 600 children in need.

Their combined efforts contributed to raising public consciousness about important issues, remarked keynote speaker and Park Sloper Ophira Eisenberg, a stand-up comic, writer, and host of Na-

A regular riot act

Ophira Eisenberg's keynote knocks 'em dead

BY SHAVANA ABRUZZO

That ritzy borough across the East River doesn't hold a candle to Kings County, according to the keynote speaker at our Women of Distinction awards night — a new and notable Park Slope resident.

"Brooklyn is so much better than Manhattan," said comic, writer, and National Public Radio's Ask Me Another host Ophira Eisenberg, who read her adopted quarter the riot act and lobbed gags like grenades during a side-splitting gig at Sirico's Catering Hall in Dyker Heights on June 10.

"If anyone is doing drugs on my street, they are doing organic, free-range drugs, artisanal, small-batch drugs that were grown in a community garden," cracked the Canadian spark plug, one of New York Magazine's "Top-10 Comics that Funny People Find Funny," and author of "Screw Everyone: Sleeping My Way to Monogamy," which "Airplane!," which producers Zucker Productions optioned recently for a movie.

Eisenberg and her husband moved to Brooklyn six years ago, settling in Boerum Hill across from the Atlantic Avenue prison before soaring rents forced them out.

"Now the only way I could get a place in Boerum Hill is if I commit a crime and get in that jail," she quipped.

The couple relocated to the Slope last month, around the same time the renaissance woman discovered she was expecting a baby.

"As soon as you find out you're pregnant, you get a notice in the mail that says you're required to move to Park Slope," said Eisenberg, who is equally at home playing silly games with John Turturro, Ethan Hawke, and Dr. Ruth as she is tickling millennials and centennials with her deadpan deliveries.

She performs at Union Hall in Park Slope and the Bell House in Gowanus, in addition to storytelling with the Moth crew at the Brooklyn Historical Society and holding court in Bushwick lofts.

She finds the borough and its audiences mesmerizing.

"There is no end to great and unexpected venues in Brooklyn," Eisenberg said. "People here are smart, artsy, edgy."

The borough-phile unwinds at Lavender Lake, Henry Public, and Bar Tabac, and schleps across the borough on marathon walks to take in the local sights. One six-hour amble from Downtown to Williamsburg was an eye opener.

"We walked through so many different neighborhoods and cultural enclaves, and got caught in three different festivals," she said. "It was like a tour of the world."

Eisenberg says she lost her virginity at 15 in a hotel bathroom to a guy she picked up in a bar and nicknamed Goose, but she is thrilled to be on virgin territory again.

"I love that I don't even know Brooklyn yet," she said.

Coney-bound shark dies in Florida car crash

BY MAX JAEGER

It was like a real-life “Sharknado.”

One of four sandbar sharks headed from Florida to Coney Island died after it was ejected from its tank when the 18-wheeler carrying it crashed on June 10.

The tractor-trailer was transporting four finned predators from Marathon, Fla., to the New York Aquarium in Coney Island when a tire blew out on Interstate 95 and sent the truck careening into a stand of trees. And one of the fish went flying in the wreck, a Florida Highway Patrol spokeswoman said.

“One shark was thrown out, or it jumped out — we don’t know,” said Sgt. Kim Montes.

It may be the first time a shark has died in a car crash, according to a principal from the company transporting the fish.

“I don’t know of one in particular,” said Dynasty Marine

FISH TO WATER: A sandbar shark during happier times. Brian Norwood

Transportation founder Forrest Young. “We’ve been doing this for many years, and I hate to claim to be the first guy that this happened to.”

A team from nearby Sea World rescued the three surviving swimmers and is caring for them at the Orlando attraction.

“The animals are currently stable and are doing well,” said Sea World aquarium curator Jim Kinsler. “The rescue team and our aquarists are continuing around the clock care for each shark as long as needed to ensure their health and success.”

The aquatic-animal theme park will care for the sharks until the New York Aquarium in Coney Island makes new transportation arrangements, according to a press release from Sea World.

The bizarre crash ignited a frenzy among local and national press, Montes said.

“I was here when Tiger Woods crashed, and I’ve gotten more phone calls on these sharks than Tiger Woods,” she said, referring to the golfer’s 2009 collision with a fire hydrant and tree as he fled his enraged, golf-club-swinging wife.

The flying fish is reminiscent of “Sharknado” the 2013 made-for-television movie in which sharks sucked into a waterspout mete out flying ferocity in Los Angeles.

Land-dwelling sharks are not unheard of in the Sunshine State, where Florida

EMERGEN-SEA!: Rescuers rush the remaining sharks from the crash site to nearby Sea World for care. Sea World wildlife activist James W. Buffet first brought attention to their plight in 1979.

If the sharks resume their trip on I-95, they will pass within one mile of a Jacksonville brewery that produces LandShark brand beer.

But Brooklynites need not fear unsolicited plumbers or candygram men — the land shark bound for Coney Island is definitely dead, according to officials. No humans were injured in the collision, officials said.

The aquarium is still shoring up its long-promised sharks exhibit after Hurricane Sandy washed over the facility in 2012. The accident will not affect the exhibit’s expected 2016 opening date, a spokeswoman said.

It was a rough week for Coney Island sea life — a dead whale washed ashore in Brighton Beach on June 8.

Local support, federal cuts for Brooklyn veterans

BY JOSEPH ALTOBELLI

Locals raised money for veterans in Brooklyn last weekend, even as budget cuts in Washington are forcing part of the borough's veterans' hospital to close.

Chapter 72 of Vietnam Veterans of America held a fundraiser at Greenwood Park Beer Garden in Windsor Terrace on June 6 to aid wounded, hospitalized, and homeless veterans in need.

"It was very successful," said Daniel Friedman, president of Chapter 72 — also known as the Thomas P. Coughlin Memorial Chapter. "It was a good turnout," he said, "We could have had more, [but] it was a very successful day."

Navy veteran Frank Burr caught up with some old friends at the event, and even made a new one.

"I know a lot of guys from the 14th Avenue VA," he said, "I even made one new friend."

The co-owner of the venue was delighted with the event.

68TH PRECINCT

BAY RIDGE-DYKER HEIGHTS

Caught napping

A brute bashed the window to a 78th Street home and stole a purse on June 13, but the homeowner slept through the break-in, police said.

The burglar broke into the home between Ridge Boulevard and Third Avenue in Bay Ridge at 9 pm, police said.

Hot purse-uit

A rogue snatched a woman's purse on Eighth Avenue on June 12.

The victim was near 62nd Street in Sunset Park at 10:45 am when the lout grabbed her bag, police said. The woman tried to chase him down, but he lost her after a block, a police report states.

Easy entry

A thief walked in the front door of a Fourth Avenue home and walked out with $280 and some jewelry sometime between June 1 and June 10.

The house is located between 79th and 80th streets in Bay Ridge, police said.

Bag pinched

A cretin copped a clutch from an elderly woman on 84th Street on June 12.

The victim was between Fourth and Fifth Avenues at 7:15 pm when the rapskallion struck, snatching the purse from his 70-year-old victim and fleeing, police said.

62ND PRECINCT

BENSONHURST-BATH BEACH

Final fling

A cretinous crooner winged a wine glass at a karaoke disc jockey in a 65th Street bar on June 13 after the emcee didn't play his song.

The two got into an argument in the pub between Bay Parkway and 23rd Avenue in Bensonhurst at 1 am, police said. The glass cut the jockey's face in three places, and he was taken to Lutheran Medical Center, a police report states.

Jumped for cell

A trio of toughs beat up a guy for his phone on 62nd Street on June 15.

The fearsome threesome jumped him between 23rd and 24th avenues at 9:45 pm, police said.

The goons threw the guy to the ground and repeatedly punched him in the face before wrenching his phone from his hand and fleeing on 62nd Street toward 23rd Avenue, a police report states.

Free car

An opportunistic crook took off in a man's unlocked car parked on Benson Avenue back in March, but Cops are searching for the cretin who clouted a straphanger on a bus at the corner of Fifth Avenue and 72nd Street in Bay Ridge on April 25.

The tough was riding aboard a B63 bus travelling toward Ovington Avenue when he and another rider got into an argument at 2:15 pm, police said.

The tiff went south when the slug slugged the other guy, leaving the victim's left eye cut and bloody, law enforcement sources said.

After the bout, the brute fled from the bus, police said. The goon is in his 30s with has long, dark hair, a beard, and a mustache, officials said.

the victim didn't report the crime to police until June 11.

The victim told police he parked his car near Bay 35th Street in Bensonhurst on March 9, leaving the keys in the center console and the doors unlocked, and by the time he returned a week later, someone had taken it, police said.

The 34-year-old waited until June 11 to tell police what happened, a police report states.

Locker room bandit

Someone stole a purse from an unsecured locker at an 86th Street gym on June 14.

The victim left her stuff in a locker at the facility between 20th and 21st avenues in Bensonhurst at 6:20 pm, but she failed to lock the locker, and when she returned, her purse was gone, police said.

The thief nabbed credit and debit cards, a public benefit card, and the woman's identification, a police report states.

60TH PRECINCT

CONEY ISLAND-BRIGHTON BEACH-SEAGATE

Nip and took

A screwball with a scalpel robbed a woman of her cellphone on Brighton First Street on June 10.

The woman was between Brighton First Place and Brighton First

Court in Brighton Beach at 10:55 pm when the weirdo whipped out the surgical tool and said he'd slash her face if she didn't hand over her mobile, police said. The guy took the cell and ran, a police report states.

Raising Cain

A 44-year-old Seagate man hit his older brother in the head with a cooking pot in a Seagate Avenue residence on June 9, cops said.

The two were embroiled in an argument in a house between Lyme and Neptune avenues at 5:35 pm when the younger man bore fists against his brother, police said.

Wracked

A rake wracked a guy with a metal rack in a Neptune Avenue shop on June 10.

The attacker came into the shop between W. 36th and W. 37th streets in Coney Island to use his public benefit card at 9 am, but there was an error with the card, so he got mad and whacked the clerk in the head, police said.

The goon came back at 10:40 am with a gun in his waistband, so the clerk called the cops and the guy ran, a police report states.

Bullet barrage

Someone fired shots on W. 33rd Street on June 16 — hitting two Coney Islanders with stray bullets.

Punks squeezed off several rounds in the courtyard of an apartment building between Neptune and Bayview avenues in Coney Island at 2:50 pm, police said. Bullets struck a 68-year-old man in the left calf and an 18-year-old man in the right buttocks and left palm, law enforcement officials said.

Both victims were taken to Lutheran Medical Center in stable condition, officials said.

61ST PRECINCT

SHEEPSHEAD BAY-HOMECREST-MANHATTAN BEACH-GRAVESEND

Violent volley

A vile villain violently attacked a woman on Brown Street on June 9 — before grabbing her bag and tossing it out a window.

The victim told cops she was near Avenue U on her way to work at 7:40 am when the chump put her in a chokehold, causing her to lose her breath.

The brute then punched her in the head and threw her onto the floor, causing a head injury and two broken nails, cops said. The slimy lout snatched the victim's handbag and ran into a nearby building, where he dumped the bag and its contents out a fifth-floor window, according to police.

The victim found her pocketbook and noticed $40 missing, authorities said.

Phone a fiend

A dastardly duo robbed a man at knifepoint in Kelly Park on June 12, before fleeing the scene.

Cops say two men approached the victim near E. 16th Street and Moore Place at 10:20 pm and demanded his phone. One of the knaves brandished a knife, pointing it at the victim's stomach when he tried to resist the attack, the police report states.

The fiends took the phone and fled by vehicle, according to cops.

Ransack

A couple of clowns broke into an older man's E. Third Street home on June 9 and took a wad of cash, along with a bevy of personal belongings, before scampering off with their stolen goods.

The 71-year-old victim told cops he came home to his apartment near Parkway Court at 11 am just in time to witness the culprits fleeing the scene. The wizened resident found his front door damaged and states the goons had grabbed an iPad, some jewelry, perfume, and several grand in cash.

Cops say the perps fled on foot on E. 18th Street towards Avenue U.

It's Poochie couture

BY DANIELLE FURFARO

The dancers at this prom had two left feet.

More than 100 dogs from around Brooklyn showed up dressed to the canines for a “puppy prom” in a Dumbo warehouse last Thursday night, where they danced the night away alongside shelter pooches looking for new homes. No one spiked the water bowl, but the dance still got pretty messy, said an organizer.

“They came, they pooped and peed, and did what they wanted, and we got down and cleaned it all up afterward,” said Melanie Travis, events manager at Bark and Co., a company that specializes in dog events and products.

The doggie dance was a fund-raiser for the Manhattan shelter Animal Haven as well as an opportunity for some of its rescue dogs to meet potential new owners, Travis said.

Humans looking to meet a new pet were paired with a pooch as a blind date for the evening — though they were not required to adopt that dog or take it home. Several puppy-love matches were made during the night, and the event raised $3,000 for Animal Haven, Travis said.

A handful of celebrities and their four-legged friends also attended the prom, including ing day on March 29 — stalling in the same spot, just before the first drop.

On that occasion, too, no one called New York's Bravest — the agency that typically spearheads high-flying rescues — a department spokesman said. Thrill-seekers stranded in March returned a week later to take their first ride of the season.

Like last time, riders on the locked-up amusement got tickets for a free ride, Bobbins said.

The ride re-opened on June 14, he said.

there for days on end.”

She also warned that the closed street would likely become a haven for the homeless, worsening the existing problem at the subway station.

“Right now, go to the train station, and I will guarantee a minimum of three to four homeless people are living there right at this moment,” she said. “Now you’re giving them a place to live.”

The city also wants to convert Sheepshead Bay Road to a one-way street heading eastbound between E. 15th Street and Jerome Avenue, redirecting northbound traffic to Jerome Avenue via E. 17th Street. The conversion would require rerouting the B36 bus so that it remains on Avenue Z rather than dropping off passengers near the subway entrance on Sheepshead Bay Road.

A member of CB15's transportation committee fears the new route will be a significant blow to convenience and safety for passengers.

“People who are late for work want to be able to say, ‘Oh good, the bus left me off here, and right there's the train station. I don't have far to go,’” said Debra Greif. “If you're putting me back on Z, I'll have to walk down, and believe me, it's not well-lit.”

Scavo said that the proposal provides a good starting point, but it needs more scrutiny to avoid unintended consequences.

“There are some good points, but I think it has to be tweaked,” said Scavo.

The Department of Transportation will hold additional meetings with the community board — the next one tentatively scheduled for June 30 — to review changes made following the board's input.

Flag philanthropy

BY ALLEGRA HOBBS

One Marine Park school celebrated Flag Day early thanks to a local business's donation of star-spangled banners.

The kids of PS 277 gathered on June 12 wearing red, white and blue to sing patriotic tunes and recite poems for an audience of local veterans and to thank the good neighbors who donated 30 American flags to color their classrooms.

The Nuzzolese Bros. Ice

Company donated the flags on behalf of "Flags for the Flagless," an Arizona-based non-profit that provides classrooms with American flags by working with local businesses. Members of the Nuzzolese family were on hand to present the Stars and Stripes to the school.

PS 277's principal said that the gesture was an invaluable lesson for the students.

"It was wonderful," said Jeanne Fish. "We always try to teach the children about generosity and being good citizens, and this was a great example."

The school celebrates Flag Day — established in 1916 to commemorate June 14, 1777, when the Second Continental Congress adopted the Stars and Stripes as the United States' national flag — every year, the principal said.

"It's always very nice," said Fish. "But this year it was even more special."

E. Second St. named for 'selfless mentor'

Barbara Dattilo Way is christened

BY ALLEGRA HOBBS

A Gravesend street was co-named over the weekend to recognize a woman for her service to a local church where she mentored young adults and volunteered in the surrounding community.

E. Second Street at Avenue W was co-named "Barbara Dattilo Way" in a ceremony on June 14 attended by family, friends, members of the Our Lady of Grace Church, and Councilman Mark Treyger (D-Coney Island).

Dattilo founded the Lady of Grace youth group in 1997 as a way to encourage teens to engage in acts of service in their community — from homeless outreach to nursing home visits. The group gave teens a safe haven to discuss their struggles, and Dattilo is remembered by church members as someone who never gave up on those need.

"She was someone that could see where you needed help, give you the direction on how to get there, and stick with you for the ride for anything you might need along the way," said Steven Eriquez, who served alongside Dattilo as a youth leader at the church. "She was by far the most genuine and humble person I've ever encountered, and her willingness to give up herself to help others was extraordinary."

Several teens and adults who worked with Dattilo in the youth group attended the ceremony, including priests who were active in establishing the group. A choir of church members who were teens in Dattilo's group sang a selection of songs — including, at the family's request, "Let It Be" by The Beatles.

Dattilo's two sons, who attended the ceremony with their wives and children, were given a replica of the new street sign by Treyger to keep as a memento.

"It was an extremely nice gesture," said son Michael Dattilo. "It was well-organized and well-planned."

Eriquez said that the name of the street is significant, and honors Dattilo's memory in more than one way.

"It was chosen to be Barbara Dattilo Way because the way she taught us, and the way she lived was so significant," he said. "We would all like to follow Barbara's way."

J. Lo and Ray Liotta film in Ridge

Don't be fooled by the Bay Ridge shot, she's still Jenny from the block.

Bronx-born singer and actress Jennifer Lopez boogied down to the Ridge for a television shoot on June 10.

J. Lo will star alongside Ray Liotta in the upcoming cop drama "Shades of Blue" currently in production, according to information from the National Broadcasting Company.

Filmmakers trained their cameras on the pair in front of Fifth Avenue's Alpine Cinema. Producers also transformed an abandoned storefront near the nearly century-old theater into a liquor store for the shoot, witnesses said.

In the show, which is slated for release later this year, Lopez plays a single mother who works undercover on a Federal Bureau of Investigation anti-corruption task force.

Lopez and "American Idol" host Ryan Seacrest are among the show's producers.

The Ridge is no stranger to film shoots

Bay Ridge played a central role in the 1977 disco classic "Saturday Night Fever," parts of the 2007 film "Brooklyn Rules" were set in and shot in the neighborhood, and "Jersey Shore" knock-off "Brooklyn 11223" riled Ridgites who said the show unfairly caricatured the area's Italian-American population.

More recently, Park Slope director Jason Cusato and Ridge actor Anthony DeVito shot an adaptation of a classic Twilight Zone episode on Madeline Court.

BY ALLEGRA HOBBS

These kids rocked Pride Rock. Drama students at PS 207 delivered the magic of Broadway's "The Lion King" to Marine Park when they took the stage in the school's spring production of the Disney musical on June 10. The director of the production said the junior-high thespians were thrilled to take on one of Broadway's longest-running shows—and having big paws to fill was no obstacle for the skilled songbirds. "The cast was fantastic," said Kimberly Simek. "They're a good bunch, and I was very pleased with them." The students studied African culture, wildlife, and geography in preparation for the play, even mastering songs in Swahili. They wore tribal paint and costumes based on traditional African styles for the performance. Simek said that she shared her students' enthusiasm and jumped at the opportunity to create her own version of the beloved show. "Everybody loves it, everybody knows it," she said. "The music is just fantastic, and I wanted to be a part of it."

Kids compete in bot battle

BY MAX JAEGER

It was a robo rumble.

Kids from four area schools pitted their homemade automations against one another in a Lego robotics festival at Industry City on June 13. About 150 people showed up to cheer teams from PS 24, PS 170, PS 230, and St. Agatha School as their bots raced through three challenges. But the program was less about pitting kids against one another and more a way to encourage their interest in science and technology, an organizer said.

“It wasn’t about competition per se — it was more about supporting children in the neighborhood as they learn about robotics for the first time,” said Yadira Hadlett, who runs an after-school program with her husband called “Sunset Spark!” that teaches kids in the four schools about science and technology.

Students put their droids to the test in three competitions — tug of war, balloon-popping, and capsule-collecting — so teams made three separate gizmos capable of accomplishing each task, Hadlett said.

In addition to learning programming, kids pick up skills normally associated with the humanities, a parent and educator said.

“It lends itself to all sorts of enrichment — vocabulary-building, life experiences,” said Kathleen Drain, an assistant principal at PS 230 whose son is on the school’s robotics team.

Community volunteer organization New York Cares also runs a weekend robotics class at PS 230, she said.

Veterans, families canoe in Jamaica Bay

BY ALLEGRA HOBBS

Veterans and their families came to Jamaica Bay's Gateway National Recreation Area on June 14 for a Flag Day event filled with water-bourne fun.

The National Parks Conservation Association partnered with the Wounded Warrior Project and the Sebago Canoe Club to encourage veterans to engage with all their local parks have to offer — and park advocates said it was a thrill to celebrate Brooklyn's local heroes.

"Our goal was to get as many vets and their families out to the park to really inform about the types of recreational opportunities they can take advantage of in New York's backyard," said Elizabeth Bowler, a program manager for the conservation association. "We are proud to be honoring our vets and proud to be providing activities for vets and their families in the national parks."

Veterans were treated to a paddling tour with stunning views of Jamaica Bay, as well as volunteer-led

VETERANS

"It was wonderful," said Connie Rannocchia, who is an Army veteran and the chaplain of the chapter.

The chapter holds its regular monthly meetings at the Brooklyn Veterans Affairs Medical Center in Dyker Heights, which recently announced that it will close an inpatient ward after the end of the month.

The closure of its 12-West ward will cost the hospital 25 beds, leaving it with just 46 beds to serve all veterans that have to be admitted for medical and surgical care. This would make emergency department waits even longer and it would force patients to be transferred into the Manhattan Veteran's Affairs hospital, according to vets.

"I don't want to go to Manhattan," said Burr, who is both a patient and a volunteer at the Brooklyn hospital. "It's not right what they're doing, they shouldn't do that to any patient."

"It's more than an inconvenience," said Friedman, "It affects the ability of family to be with loved ones."

Friedman also stressed the hazards of transferring surgical patients from one hospital to another. "You risk harm and infection when transporting in an ambulance," he said. "It's an unfortunate situation."

Hospital officials insist that the closure of 12-West is only temporary — for an estimated 15 months — and is the result of overall belt-tightening by the federal Department of Veterans Affairs.

"The VA nationally is in a budget crunch," said Martina Parauda, the director of Veterans Affairs New York Harbor Healthcare Systems, which administers the Brooklyn hospital.

Parauda stressed that no staff will lose their jobs, and said the Brooklyn hospital still has more than enough room to serve the borough's veterans.

"We still have two other units, and a fully functional ER," she said, adding that she does not anticipate having to move any patients to the Manhattan site.

The event was part of the association's Find Your Voice campaign, a series of events aiming to educate citizens and inspire them to advocate for their local parks and preserve them for future generations. Advo-

Introducing ZERONA® LipoLaser — removes fat without surgery, pain or wounds. ZERONA® is a new body-sculpting procedure designed to remove fat and contour the body without invasive surgery. ZERONA® allows you to continue your daily activities without interruptions from surgery, pain or wounds. ZERONA® works by utilizing the Low Level Laser (FDA cleared for laser body contouring to emulsify fat which then releases into the interstitial space. The excess fat is passed through the body during its normal course of detoxification. The ZERONA® procedure was proven through a double-blind, randomized, multi-site, and placebo controlled study in which patients average loss of 3.64 inches, and some lost as much as 9 inches compared to the placebo group that lost only half an inch.

What you can expect: Our patients lose an average of 8-9 inches from the waist, hips and thighs and reduction in clothes size in 2 weeks. This is not a quick weight loss program — we are targeting adipose tissue and not taking off excess water weight. Results vary individually.

Students dance about 'Life'

BY ALLEGRA HOBBS

Dance students at IS 234 offered a moving lesson in life.

The movers and shakers at the Sheepshead Bay school put on a modern dance show called "Life" on June 3, and it was epic in scope — covering the full gamut of human experience with such themes as eating, movies, telephone conversations, love, success, money and death.

Twelve modern dance classes came together to form an ensemble of 350, with each class responsible for curating their own dance segment riffing on the theme of their choice. The students built the life-spanning show from the ground up, selecting their themes in brainstorming sessions and creating the choreography through improvisation.

The show's director said the final product was truly the handiwork of the dancers and their free-form improvisations, which she later helped them structure into a story.

"You just allow your body to move freely to a concept and then take whatever bubbles up, and then you cement them into something that's repeatable," said Elizabeth Alleva, the dance teacher at IS 234. "As a director, I sewed [the movements] together to make a cohesive dance."

Alleva said the school is brimming with talent, with two of her eighth graders going on to the prestigious La Guardia High School for the Arts. Students begin their modern dance education in the sixth grade and continue through ninth.

"Many of them don't come with previous dance experience," she said. "But by the end of the three years, you would find that hard to believe."

Kids chalk it up to art

BY JOSEPH ALTOBELLI

McKinley Junior High held its third-annual Chalk Art Competition on June 10, allowing participating students to spend the entire school day out on the playground creating their own compositions with multi-colored chalks.

Designs ranged from drawings of the cast of the 2004 film "Mean Girls," to a detailed picture of a human eye, and a recreation of the classic Andy Warhol portrait of Marilyn Monroe.

McKinley teacher Julia Livi, who has been running the event all three years, couldn't be more proud of her students.

"The kids worked really hard for months," she said, "I'm just so proud of them."

Livi starts fund-raising for the competition in October, and the children start thinking up their designs in March. She raised $900 from friends to purchase the colored chalk and contributed $600 of her own money to make sure there was enough in case there were more children than anticipated.

At the end of the day, the school's entire staff was invited out onto the playground to vote for their favorite pieces. Students' artwork was judged in several categories, such as cartoons, landscape, architecture, and most original. There were winners within each grade, as well as first, second, and third overall winners.

"We just wanted to have a bunch of winners," Livi said, "rather than just the top three."

Prizes included art materials such as sketchbooks and art books to further stoke the student's artistic interests.

Nearly 160 students participated this year, double the number from last year's. Livi hopes for that number to double once again.

"Every year it's a little bit better," Livi said, "but my goal is to get more and more kids involved."

Readers: City a dummy for Milan B'walk sale

To the editor,

The Parks Department has sold off some of our Boardwalk's wood to Milan, where it has been used to construct a small boardwalk as part of the Milan Expo ("Reclaimed portions of Coney Island Boardwalk is now Italian esplanade," online June 10).

What a travesty, shipping our Boardwalk's wood off to another country to be repurposed and enjoyed there, while we have plastic and concrete shoved down our throats!

How ironic that the very agency tasked with preserving and enhancing the Boardwalk, the Parks Department, is the one that's responsible for its diminishment and destruction. Their use of the Boardwalk as a highway for their heavy sanitation trucks is what's most responsible for the damage the Boardwalk has incurred for many years. Combined with their almost complete lack of timely, ongoing maintenance of the damage they cause, it's a wonder the Boardwalk is still standing at all.

Positing that they need a concrete lane for emergency vehicles is an outright lie! The Boardwalk has existed for nearly a century without one and there is no rational need for one now, since no emergency vehicles ever come on to the Boardwalk. Traversing the crowds makes it impractical, as well as the fact that for vehicles like fire engines, the Boardwalk was not built to support them.

Now, they put forth the lie that Hurricane Sandy caused substantial damage to the Boardwalk and thus necessitated this plan. The original iteration of this plan which called for simply converting the Boardwalk to all concrete — how creative and forward thinking of them — has been in the works for five years, well before Sandy occurred. More importantly anyone that lives here knows that our Boardwalk was unscathed by Sandy and anything said to the contrary is simply false. Additionally, their claim on their website, that Kebony, a fine alternative durable and attractive wood product, is only available in Europe, is similarly false, as is their claim that black locust wood is also unavailable.

Suddenly they wish to appear to be

SOUND OFF TO THE EDITOR

LETTERS AND COMMENTS FROM OUR READERS

the most ecologically minded agency around. There are a variety of alternative woods, including sustainably grown and sourced Forestry Stewardship Council-certified rainforest wood, the use of which is both ecologically sound and beneficial to the local communities producing it. Thus its use is supported by the largest national rainforest group, the Rainforest Alliance. Our suggestions of a variety of alternative products, as well as Boardwalk designs, have been met with nothing but resistance and refusal. Commissioner Silver simply parrots the talking points he has been provided by his underlings.

The Parks Department has demonstrated time and time again that they believe themselves to be a power that need not answer for their actions or decisions, and without a serious interest in our community's wishes, input or safety. Now that their plan continues to be funded by double-dealing Assemblymen Steven Cymbrowitz (D-Sheepshead Bay) and Alec Brook-Krasny (D-Brighton Beach), they are emboldened to continue their destructive actions.

With so many people opposed to their plan for such a sustained length of time, and with strong opposition from Councilmen Mark Treyger (D-Coney Island) and Chaim Deutsch (D-Sheepshead Bay), one would think that they might reconsider the wisdom of their plan. The fact they refuse to do so, and cite lies and half truths to justify it, speaks to a hubris that leaves one both speechless and very angry. The timelessness of Deep Throat's dictum remains, when he cautioned, "Just follow the money!"

Rob Burstein

To the editor,
It is comforting to know that the parks department is saving our Brooklyn citizens and visitors from the rest of the world the dangers of actual wood on the "Boardwalk" and replacing them with concrete and plastic. Thank heaven those fools over there in Milan took them off our hands. What suckers!

So, let me try to understand this event. The wood from our own Boardwalk isn't good enough for the intended purpose that it had served for well over 100 years, but it is good enough to represent some of the great things about America over there in the American pavilion at Expo 2015 in Europe, where visitors can experience what it is like to walk on a wooden boardwalk in America? Too bad we here in Brooklyn won't be able to do the same for very much longer, if the Parks Department gets their way with it. Ironic isn't it? I must be missing something.

Nelson Levine
Brighton Beach

To the editor,

I just learned that the lumber from our historic Coney Island Boardwalk is being parceled out to others, as far away as Milan, to be appreciated for its beauty and authenticity.

Many years ago singer-songwriter Joni Mitchell wrote a wonderful song called "Big Yellow Taxi," in which she embedded a warning: "They took all the trees, put 'em in a tree museum; now they charge the people a dollar and a half just to see 'em. Don't it always seem to go that you don't know what you've got till it's gone, they paved Paradise, put up a parking lot."

Let's not wait to realize what we are losing only after it is gone. The dishonest and steam-rolling bureaucracy that stubbornly holds to an unpopular, unsustainable and unbeautiful direction needs to be halted in that path. It is not too late to save the Boardwalk!

Alice Shechter
Brooklyn

To the editor,

Italy has been blessed with an endearing, timeless beauty who endured the deprivations of World War II and is known and beloved all across the world as Sophia Loren. Now it is in possession of another famous icon, a natural beauty that survived the ravages of mother nature — a swath of the Reigelmann Boardwalk.

Suzy Friedman
Brooklyn

To the editor,

I was shocked to learn from your article that supposedly destroyed wood from our Boardwalk has been used to construct a boardwalk in Milan. This is yet another example of the double-dealing and lying that the city has engaged in on this issue since the beginning.

They claimed there was no viable and economical alternate wood source we could use, but that was false. They cynically invited the public to a last-minute meeting on the issue of concrete supposedly for community input, when their work with it was already under way. They were totally intransigent at every stage, always shutting down legitimate voices of opposition to their dastardly plans. And they said that concrete fares better and is safer than wood, when just the opposite was proven true by physical evidence as a result of Superstorm Sandy.

They seemed to have been operating under the maxim, "Don't confuse us with the facts, our mind is made up." They were determined to push through their agenda come what may, to the detriment of all who will continue to live in the area and those who come from far and wide to enjoy a boardwalk that no longer exists in its historic treasured fashion and will not protect the surrounding areas as well as it could should another devastating flood take place. This situation is appalling.

Carole Pozner
Sheepshead Bay

To the editor,

Once again the Park Department, entrusted with the maintenance and upkeep of our parks and recreational facilities, has shown its egregious nature by its move in direct opposition to the community's wishes and in direct opposition to our elected officials' stance on this issue. It has decided to regardless, move ahead and remove the Boardwalk in the section between Brighton 15th Street and Coney Island Avenue and replace it with a concrete walkway. The boards were for the most part in perfectly good condition, in the sense that they have stood up to extreme weather conditions, as the concrete section recently installed around Ocean Parkway did not, and this has been documented.

What makes this whole matter particularly egregious is that the wooden planks removed will be reclaimed and sold to a concern in Milan for the purposes of constructing a boardwalk in that city. In other words, it is good enough for the people of Milan, but not for us. The fact that it is being planned for use elsewhere is the whole point that it can be used here. The matter of concrete being more durable has not been borne out by experience.

I would think that some sort of investigation should be launched over this matter, to ascertain as to whether any collusion or payoff is involved.

William Zucker
Brighton Beach

Doing the time, but not doing the crime

Jeffrey Deskovic is curious about everyone and everything. He goes to lectures and reaches out to people, including me, just for the heck of it. When I met the 41-year-old Throggs Neck activist for breakfast at City Coffee in Jackson Heights last week, he asked the weary waitress where she was from.

"Peru," she replied, and she perked up when talk turned to her country's purple corn drink — chicha morada.

"It is very delicious but you must drink it ice-cold."

"Bring me one of those!" said Jeff.

Jeff is making up for lost time: the 16 years he spent behind bars for a rape and murder he didn't commit.

Jeff was exonerated in 2006. A new DNA test matched a convict doing time for another rape and murder. Since getting out, he has been bringing attention to wrongful convictions and false confessions — like the one he made, at age 16.

You may remember the case. It was up in Peekskill, New York where Jeff was born and raised by his mom and grandma. The victim was a

RHYMES WITH CRAZY

Lenore Skenazy

15-year-old girl at his high school. Jeffrey caught the attention of police for a bizarre reason: he seemed too deeply upset. The cops spent the next six weeks focusing on Jeff.

"Half the time they talked to me as if I was a suspect. The other time they would pretend they needed my help to solve the crime," said Jeff. "They'd say, 'Kids won't talk freely around us. They will around you.' They were asking my opinions and congratulating me on my insights."

For a shy young man who'd dreamed of becoming a police officer, these were heady, confusing times. One day the cops said they had new, special information to give him, but it was so sensitive that first he would have to take a lie detector test.

He skipped school for this incredible privilege and three cops drove him out of town. There, for the next six hours, they kept him in a small room, giving him endless cups of coffee — as if he wasn't shaky enough — but no food.

"After 40 minutes, the polygrapher started giving me the third degree. He raised his voice and kept asking me the same questions over and over. As each hour goes by my fear escalates, and toward the end he said, 'What do you mean you didn't do it! You just told me through the test results that you did! We just want you to verbally confirm it!' That shot my fear through the roof. It was then that the cop who pretended to be my friend told me the other cops were going to harm me — he said he'd been holding them back but couldn't indefinitely. And he added if I did as they wanted, they would stop and I could go home afterwards."

Jeffrey fell to the floor and curled into fetal position, sobbing. But he gave them their confession. The false one that sent him to prison.

There was no other evidence against him. His semen did not match that found on the victim, but the prosecutor said it didn't matter because the girl was promiscuous — even though police interviewed 19 friends who confirmed that she was sheltered and had never had a boyfriend, much less sex. But those interviews were kept from Jeff's Legal Aid lawyer, who never bothered to interview Jeff's alibi — the boy with whom he had been playing Wiffle ball with at the time of the murder.

After 15 years behind bars, Jeff finally came up for parole. He still said he was innocent. To the board, this meant he was not taking responsibility for his actions.

Parole denied.

He was freed only after the Innocence Project took his case and did the new DNA test.

Jeff sued the prosecutors who kept the evidence from his lawyer, and his lawyer who didn't interview his alibi, and the polygrapher who said the test had "proven" his guilt — and won.

With that money, he set up a foundation to help the unjustly imprisoned. Now a lawyer, investigator, and paralegal, he's working on exonerating people behind bars for no reason — and helping them once they get out.

But most of all, he's working to prevent wrongful convictions in the first place.

There's a bipartisan bill in Albany that would create a commission on prosecutor conduct, Jeff says. The commission would punish prosecutors who railroad defendants.

And with that he finished his story, his chicha morada, smiled at the waitress, and headed out into a beautiful June day.

He has lots to do.

Stan: Always fasten your seatbelts

Bernie Goldberg asked, “Will he or won’t he toss his hair in the ring?”

If it takes you more than five seconds to recognize who he is talking about, I suggest you stop watching “Naked and Afraid” and tune in to the news once in a while. Still don’t know who he is talking about? Well this man has been, and still is, in construction big time, and he is ready to stop illegal immigration by building “... the best wall, the biggest, the strongest, not penetrable, they won’t be crawling over it, like giving it a little jump and they’re over the wall, it cost us trillions.”

If you don’t know who I am talking about then maybe you should go back to watching “Naked and Afraid.”

So far we cannot get any information from Hillary about the e-mails she no longer has, but perhaps those whom she communicated with still have theirs. There is a strong possibility that under the right terms they may be coerced into disclosing those communications.

...

The 2002 Academy Award-winning blockbuster “A Beautiful Mind,” starring Russel Crowe, was a story about the math genius John Nash. The mastermind won several prestigious awards including a Nobel Prize in economics and most recently a top prize from the Norwegian Academy of Sciences and Letters in Oslo. Professor Nash was connected with some of the most prominent institutes of higher education, including the Massachusetts Institute of Technology, Princeton University, Carnegie Mellon University, and Brandeis University.

His beautiful mind was filled with a lot of information and theories about so many things that most of us never heard of. He knew all about “non-cooperative games,” “Nash’s equilibrium,” and “game theory” — whatever those may be. He did know a lot about mathematics, but it is sad that he did not know enough about wearing a seatbelt.

IT’S ONLY MY OPINION

Stanley P. Gershbein

Two weeks ago his brilliant mind was lost when he neglected to buckle his seatbelt and the taxi he and his wife were in crashed. They were both thrown out of the cab, and died instantly. Rest in peace, professor.

...

When they start giving out the annual awards for the best acting on the planet, those in charge might want to ask themselves the following question: How does Josh Earnest do it with a straight face?

The White House press secretary has been very busy offering excuses and alibis for our president, and he’s been doing a great job making up the defenses. If you watch the faces of the reporters in the room, you can tell that they are holding back the laughter. I could not help laughing out loud when I heard the bovine excrement about Obama’s speech at the Coast Guard graduation. The president spoke about climate change. We have a major border problem, Islamic terrorism, a questionable agreement coming up with Iran, insulting and not looking out for Israel, and a whole lot more. Yet he read a speech that would have most intelligent world leaders firing their speech writer. He said that anyone who failed to take action against climate change was in “dereliction of duty.”

I am StanGershbein@Bellsouth.net wondering why he never used the phrase “dereliction of duty” when he spoke about Bowe Bergdahl, who truly is guilty of dereliction of duty.

Speaker Missy and her obedient oaf-icials

Brooklyn’s council members are bleeding hearts for pond scum.

All of them, except Bay Ridge’s Vincent Gentile — go, Vinnie, go! — voted to pass a resolution seeking clemency for unrepentant Puerto Rican extremist Oscar Lopez Rivera, leader of Armed Forces of National Liberation or F.A.L.N., a Marxist gang responsible for the most terror attacks on American soil between 1970 and 2011.

Lopez Rivera, who has served 33 years of a 70-year sentence for seditious conspiracy and a failed prison break, declined a pardon in 1999 because he refused to renounce violence, but chronically clueless Council speaker Melissa Mark Viverito remains his groupie, marching for his freedom and tweeting his release is “what I want most for my birthday.”

The borough pols who caved to her clearly don’t care our city is the world’s top ter-

A BRITISHER’S VIEW

Shavana Abruzzo

who loved the Giants and Mets, was raised in working-class Washington Heights not far from Viverito’s district, and the speaker’s depraved sympathy for his murderers is hard to stomach. So on election day, we should mulch potted plants Chaim Deutsch, Mark Treyger, Mathieu Eugene, David Greenfield, Brad Lander, Stephen Levin, Alan Maisel, Carlos Menchaca, Jumaane Williams, Inez Barron, Robert Cornegy, Laurie Cumbo, Rafael Espinal, Darlene Mealy, and Antonio Reynoso for supporting a remorseless terrorist.

Joseph Connor and his older brother Tom turned 9 and 11 years on Jan. 24, 1975, the same day Lopez Rivera’s henchmen killed their 33-year-old father, Frank, and three others in the lunchtime bombing of Fraunces Tavern in lower Manhattan, among the terror group’s more than 130 bombings across the country. Frank Connor, a devoted family man for his murderers is hard to stomach.

“My dad loved his family and worked hard, going to college at night, to support us,” Joseph Connor told this column. “Viverito and her terror supporters claim 33 years is enough for Lopez Rivera, but it certainly was not enough time for our young father’s life.”

The city’s second top politician and her cronies are willing to fib, fudge, and beg for their way to a pardon, Connor adds.

“If they really sought justice, they would seek justice for Frank Connor, too,” he says.

The indifference of our oaf-icials shows they value the aims and actions of an avowed terrorist over the everlasting grief of his victims. They should gash on their shame.

Jo on fake black lady: Whatevah

What does it matter? Transracial, transgender, transcontinental?

The media has been in a feeding frenzy since the news broke about Rachel Dolezal, a white woman who pretended to be black. Well the good thing is that it’s taken the heat off Bruce — now known as Caitlyn — Jenner.

We need to get this straight — the fundamental basis of this country is freedom. That’s freedom with a big, fat “F.”

If Rachel Dolezal wants to identify as a black woman, then let her.

We really need to ask ourselves as a nation, what are the important issues? Does how she identifies with her race affect us individually? Does her identity affect the national security of the country? Does her racial identity impact the economy? Does it solve our unemployment problem or the fact that our government and big business sold out our manufacturing industry?

That’s a really big fat “No” all around.

As my daughter put it:

NOT FOR NUTHIN’

Joanna DelBuono

“Whether she’s black or white, has a penis or not, I don’t care. Now if a nuclear bomb goes off over my head, or I can’t find a job when I graduate — then that I care about.”

So there you are. What really matters to the country is — if a bomb goes off, we’ve got something to worry about. If Rachel Dolezal wants to be a black woman, we got nothing.

The racial tension in this nation is only exacerbated by the press, race baiters, and a government that sees fit to keep the myth going to hide the fact that there are many more dangerous and pressing issues going on here than what we are led to believe.

It’s the old bait-and-switch at its best: “Let’s keep the hoi polloi busy with racial divisiveness and minutia so that we can continue to swindle their eyes out of their sockets.”

Ain’t it grand? The Fourth Estate has become the puppet of a crooked, bloated, scheming government. Instead of the media doing its job of exposing corruption, the high rate of unemployment, inflation, and lack of industry, it sees to obfuscate the truth with nonsense about sex, race, gender, and — spoiler alert — how Home Box Office killed off Jon Snow on “Game of Thrones” last Sunday.

Not for Nuthin™ Rachel, but if you want to be a black woman and identify with that race, I say: “You go, girlfriend.”

Follow me on Twitter @JDelBuono.

Carmine: Give the vets what's coming to them!

I'm madder than John Wayne when the doctor told him he had to quit smoking over the fact that our veterans keep getting the shaft when it comes to healthcare.

Look, you all know the ol'Screecher valiantly served his country during the Korean War — and did not serve in the Canadian Moose Mounties as has been falsely reported elsewhere — and I think all of our veterans — myself included — need to get what is coming to us.

So you can imagine just how shocked I was this week when a fellow resident of the beautiful Harway Terrace who happens to work over at the Veterans' Administration Hospital handed me a letter sent from some anonymous sources complaining about the fact that come July 1, the hospital is losing 25 beds that would provide care to some of our veterans who need it the most!

Now, I know exactly what you are thinking and the answer is "No, I am not simply

BIG SCREECHER

Carmine Santa Maria

trying to reserve a bed for myself." As you and my doctor know full well, I've got the bad cholesterol count of a newborn whose mother only eats Grape Nuts straight from the box, so I'm not going anywhere anytime soon!

But what about the vets that aren't as blessed as I am? Where are they going to go when they are out of beds in Brooklyn?

I'll tell you where: That one place we've been trying to avoid since the time we moved out of there in the first place: Manhattan!

That's right! I never looked back when we headed east of Little Italy to the dirt roads of Benshonhurst, and quite frankly, I've only returned when I had to, and even then I complained about the traffic!

Here's a copy of the letter I tried to transcribe on the old Smith-Corona:

"Dear Brooklyn VA Patients and Families,

On July 1, 2015, the Brooklyn VA Medical Center (VAMC) will lose 25 acute medical and surgical 'in patient beds' at the Brooklyn VA Medical Center (VAMC.) The doctors and nurses believe this is a misguided decision that will lead to significant negative effects on our ability to provide you with the highest-quality inpatient medical and surgical care.

Closing 12-West will eliminate 33 percent of our inpatient beds and leave the Brooklyn VAMC with only 46 beds to serve all of our veterans who require inpatient medical and surgical care.

The expected immediate consequences of closing 12-West:

- If you need to be hospitalized and no beds are available, you may spend extra time (hours to a day) in our Emergency Department.

- You may be transferred to the Manhattan VAMC. This would affect our ability to provide continuous uninterrupted care for the patients we know best.

- Tests, procedures, and surgeries will be delayed, cancelled, or transferred to other facilities, if inpatient beds are not available to monitor patients.

Our mission has always been to provide our Veterans and Service men and women with the highest-quality primary, specialty, and acute care that they deserve and expect.

The doctors and nurses believe that closing 12-West will affect our ability to continue to care for our sickest patients in a timely manner. Your access to necessary and safe inpatient services may be significantly compromised.

You do not deserve this! Speak up. Only your voices will lead to a change!

Please call the Brooklyn VAMC administration, your local, state, and federal officials, and veterans service organizations."

Once again, I know exactly what you are thinking: "Carmine, you could not have said that better yourself!"

Exactly! And maybe if the President stopped taking so many fuel-consuming flights for fun, frolic, and good will, there would be some money left to care for all those vets that honorably served our nation in war and peace.

Don't forget dear old dad on Father's Day, especially if he was a veteran. And when are they going to give Yogi that well-deserved honor?

Screech at you next week!

Rock stars and color guards team up at Barclays

By Danielle Furfaro

These artists are changing the color guard.

A group of music stars organized by rock legend David Byrne will perform along with hundreds of flag-twirling color guard members in a pair of concerts on June 26 and 27 at Barclays Center. In addition to the former Talking Head, musicians in the project include Nelly Furtado, Money Mark and Ad Rock, How to Dress Well, opera composer Nico Mulhy, and Tune-Yards, among others.

The seeds of the performance, called "Contemporary Color," started in 2008 when a high school color guard team asked Byrne to lend a composition for one of its competitions. Byrne knew little about color guards, but he started researching and was impressed at the routines he discovered.

"I was stunned at what I was seeing," he said. "And being a musician I naturally wondered to myself: what if these performances had really great live music? Wouldn't that lift it to another level?"

Color guards, which evolved out of military maneuvers, incorporate dance and music with military props like rifles, sabers, and flags. They usually perform during suburban football games at halftime or in marching band competitions.

For the concerts, Byrne reached out to some of his musical friends and teamed them up with ten color guard teams from around the country. During the show, the members of each color guard team will spin, jump, and march through a routine created to match the musician's live performance.

"Contemporary Color" is presented by the Brooklyn Academy of Music, and is its first production held at Barclay Center. The two organizations have long planned to collaborate, said BAM president Karen Brooks Hopkins, and this show offered the perfect opportunity because the staging is too large to fit in one of the Academy's concert halls.

"This creates a space in New York to do all kinds of things we would never see because of the scale," said Hopkins. "It is another great venue for interesting work from all over the world."

'Invisiball' drags fans to faux soccer match

By Trupti Rami

These performers have no balls.

Ten female dancers will create an over-the-top, immersive soccer game on a Gowanus stage on June 24–26, but their blend of sports, comedy, and dance will be missing one thing — a soccer ball, says the show's creator.

"'Invisiball' is watching a soccer game without a ball. Literally," said director and choreographer Nadine Bommer, who grew up in Israel. She says the whole experience of the performance will be like going to a match — but she does not actually know what that is like.

"The funny thing is I have never seen a game in my life. Not on television or in real life," said Bommer.

The choreographer got all of her knowledge of soccer second-hand, from enthusiastic Israeli men for whom soccer is almost a religion, she said.

"It's only through the enthusiasm of Israeli men in my life and all around me that I have any connection to this game," said Bommer.

She remembers walking her dog on game nights and hearing the excitement from the streets.

"I could almost understand the game just from the shouts and cheering," said Bommer.

That almost-understanding led her to create a show with a stage that mimics a soccer field, dancers in teams with yellow or red uniforms, and an audience that transforms into soccer fans.

Her theatrical style, called Animato, is all about getting into character, she said. Every story or situation she chooses comes from a humorous place and is expressed in a physically exaggerated way. In "Invisiball," the show's ten dancers turn themselves into buff jocks.

"The fact that delicate female dancers are portraying hard-soccer playing guys brings out the humor for me and for them," said Bommer. "Having the freedom portray 'guys' with all their extreme and private behavior without a filter, it ends up being very funny."

Fans can even nosh on hot dogs ($3) and slurp down beer and wine ($5) to help get into the stadium mind-set.

The show, which has traveled to Berlin, Prague, Copenhagen, Bologna and Macau, has had enthusiastic receptions since it began touring three years ago. Bommer said the audience does as good a job as the performers.

"They really got attached to their teams like it was a real soccer game and also came away with a great appreciation for the art," Bommer said.

Seeing a Hole story

By Max Jaeger

It's a hole 'nother world.

A photographer who embedded himself in a derelict Brooklyn sub-district offers a glimpse of life in "the Hole" with an exhibit at Boerum Hill's Invisible Dog art center, opening on June 25.

Initially the picture-maker went to the Hole — a small section of East New York bordering Queens with dirt roads, no sewers, and more than a few dicey denizens — for a one-day project, but his interest was piqued after a local family invited him to follow them on their evening's activity.

"That night, the husband and nephew broke into neighbor's basement to steal power for their RV," said Allen Agostino. "I said 'holy s---, this is something I'm going to work on for a while.'"

The Hole sits 30 feet below sea level and is best known as a body dumping ground for the Mafia, he said.

Agostino's art captures life on the margins of society, but it also captures the circumstances that can drive people to those margins.

"A lot of the people have a sordid history," he said.

But the Hole is also a place for rebirth — many folks living there came to escape their past and reinvent themselves, and the attempts are sincere, Agostino said.

"I always felt like I could trust them — right from the beginning," he said of his host "Bam" — a former heroin dealer and avowed murderer — and his family.

And finding humanity in the city's seedier spots is the goal of the "Rear Windows" exhibition goal,

Down in the Hole: Allen Agostino documents people who many Brooklynites never see — like Bam, a second generation heroin dealer living off the grid in a trailer parked in an undeveloped section of East New York called "the Hole."

an organizer said.

"It's not even the photographer that matters, it's the people that are being photographed," said curator Pauline Vermare,

Other Rear Windows exhibitors followed members of the Latin Kings, drug addicts in a tent city, and compulsive gamblers at the Aqueduct Race Track. And

Teenage wasteland

Students plumb historic depths for new exhibit on sewer system

A group of teens have uncovered the secrets of the sewers.

A new exhibit at the Brooklyn Historical Society explores the history of the borough's sewer system, researched and curated by a team of high school students through Ex Lab, the society's after-school program.

The teenagers discovered no ninjas or alligators, but they unearthed a comprehensive timeline of both "above ground" and "below ground" stories told through historical photographs, maps, drawings, and various artifacts related to whisking away people's waste — including an antique chamber pot.

Student curators were surprised to find that New York is among the few communities still using a combined sewer system, which can allow sewage to overflow into canals during heavy storms, and that Coney Island opts for septic tanks over a sewer system. And they learned to appreciate the modern pipes that separate drinking water from toilet water.

"For most of the history that we were learning about it was so dangerous to be drinking the water," said Caroline Zuba, a rising senior at Brooklyn Technical High School. "You would be getting cholera and you wouldn't even know what was going on, just because you wouldn't think that your doo-doo was getting into the water."

Their newfound knowledge opened their eyes to the unseen (but not, historically speaking, unsmelled) side of Brooklyn.

"I've learned more about the city in general," said Zuba, who enjoyed harboring new 'water facts' discovered through her research. "It's seeing a different perspective on how the city operates, and it's cool to know a little more about New York."

And no mutagenic ooze was required to transform how the teenagers think about using water at home — just knowledge.

"You don't really notice how much water you're using and where it's going," said Ana Biern-Meyer, a rising sophomore at Edward R. Murrow High School.

"I don't take one-hour showers anymore," agreed Zuba.

Zuba and Biern-Meyer joined their teammates for two-hour, twice-a-week meetings from February through June while putting the exhibit together. All those hours created tight bonds — the girls in the group call themselves the "sewer sisters."

The leaders at the society were impressed with the students' boldness in expressing ideas and collaborating to create a museum-worthy work of art.

"We could actually see everyone's growth as they did this," said Shirley Brown-Alleyne, the Manager of Teaching and Learning at the society. "Doing Ex Labs is not just learning about the exhibit and learning about New York City. Each and every one of them had some type of personal growth that expanded them."

SHREDS OF TRUTH

New documentary follows teen metal band

By Noah Hurowitz

This movie features a full metal racket.

"Breaking a Monster," a new documentary about Brooklyn's most brutal middle school metal band will screen at BAMcinemaFest on June 20. The film, a fly-on-the-wall look at the first days of fame for kiddo headbangers Unlocking the Truth, is more of an unusual coming of age story than a classic music documentary, said the filmmaker.

"It tells the story that is much more complex and more universal than the story of any one band," said filmmaker Luke Meyer. "It just so happens to touch on all this stuff happening to them that is really remarkable."

For the uninitiated, Unlocking the Truth is a teenage metal band from Flatbush whose searing riffs and baby-faced scowls went viral in 2013. Frontman and guitarist Malcolm Brickhouse, bassist Alec Atkins, and drummer Jarad Dawkins just finished eighth grade, but they have also melted faces at major festivals like Bonnaroo and Coachella.

The young headbangers honed their craft by playing in Manhattan's Times Square, and Meyer began filming them in early 2013 for a short documentary. That film was part of the viral wave that launched the band onto big stages and into a five-album, $1.8 million contract with Sony — and Meyer was there to capture it.

"They were not your average kids, but they were still kids with relatively normal lives for their age," he said. "Now they're going on tours, working on an album, they were just on 'The View.' It's a massive change."

Meyer considers himself lucky he was able to get in with the band before their big break. The film captures the boys as they meet with record executives, perform at South By Southwest, and negotiate seventh grade. These kids can shred, but it is impossible to forget how young they are. The contrast between their youth and the demands of fame and the music industry is the key to the film, said Meyer.

"It's been a pretty dramatic ride they are on," Meyer said. "I really got to see them go through learning how to keep their own identities as people, go through adult decision processes, and letting go of their childhood."

Bay Ridge finds time for pop's rock

By Max Jaeger

Dad's rockin' the Ridge. Sunday is Father's Day, and there's nowhere better to hear music much loved by "men of a certain age" than Bay Ridge — the home of the dad rock cover band.

On Friday, get started at Schnitzel Haus (7319 Fifth Ave. between 73rd and 74th streets) at 9 pm, where Potentially Unstable will perform a rock-solid set of tunes your dad no doubt jammed to when he was working on his beloved Five-Oh Mustang — before you came along and forced him to get a minivan.

Then take Pops to the Greenhouse Cafe (7717 Third Ave. between 77th and 78th streets), where Long Island's Sound Chaser will chase the 1960s starting at 10 pm. They literally play the song "Those Oldies, but Goodies" by Little Caesar & The Romans — Dad will love it.

It is a dad rock hat trick (probably some kind of moth-eaten baseball cap with grass stains), because we have a third band to cap off your Friday night. Take the pater familias to the Wicked Monk (9510 Third Ave. between 95th and 96th streets) at 10:30 pm for the Robert Santa band. But brace yourself, because when Santa and his band mates take the stage, Dad will ask the burning question: "Why doesn't your band have a saxophone player, son?" No Dad, just no.

Find common ground at The Hideout (8415 Fifth Ave. between 84th and 85th streets) on Saturday, where the Social Zoo will be playing a mix of old and new-ish tunes ranging from Sabbath and Zeppelin classic rock to '90s-era grunge like Pearl Jam, Alice in Chains, and Sound Garden.

After you've cooked your dad his ceremonial three pounds of bacon for Father's Day breakfast, fly over to Owl's Head Park for free music during Make Music New York's annual city-wide concert series. Get there by 3 pm to catch Staten Island dad jammers Snugs. Pops will leap out of his Dockers when he hears these guys play the trinity of dad rock genres — classic rock, blues, and folk. Broaden your father's horizons after Snugs, and stick around for traditional Palestinian music from Zafer Tawil at 3:45, and an "interactive rhythmic experimentation" with PaulomM at 4:30 pm.

Trace the music

Singer sketches her stories

By Bill Rounly

Call her the artist from Down Under — the Manhattan Bridge.

An Australian-born singer and songwriter has opened a Dumbo shop where she sells artwork based on her songs. Natalie Ackerman, who has recorded five pop albums and performed with Sting and Billy Joel, said that the impulse to draw is the same one that fuels her music.

"It's just pouring out of me," said Ackerman. "I'm not the type to put a lid on anything creatively. If the muse says, 'Okay, now we're going to write an album.' Okay, that's what I'm doing. If the muse says to draw, that's what I do."

Some of her colored-pencil drawings are literal depictions of the song lyrics, which are printed on the back of each piece, while others are more abstract renderings. Each also comes with a download code for the depicted song.

Ackerman sees her melodic pop music as a way to tell personal stories of struggle and triumph. And creating the art by hand and selling it at Natchie Art is another way to reach out to people, she said.

"The stories are always emotional and vulnerable, very human, I guess. And I think that's why this all works. Because I feel like today, especially with digital art, we've lost that human connection," she said. "And I feel like between my drawings and music I'm trying to make those connections."

Ackerman will reach out to audiences on June 25 with a concert in the Archway under the Manhattan Bridge, just a few steps from her storefront. The event is part of the Live at the Archway series, which hosts free summer concerts on Thursday evenings. Ackerman will perform with her full eight-piece band, the Harold Pinter Orchestra.

"At first I was just going to do a little band, a little set-up, and then I thought — 'No, I'm going to go for it!'" she said. "I'm bringing everyone. It is a huge event!"

In a Hole

Brooklyn Courier contributor Cate Dingley documented Times Square's last surviving peep show.

In each instance, the photographers had to gain their subject's trust. Agostino found a fixer in the first person he met in the Hole, because — despite their disparate backgrounds — they shared similar dispositions.

"I'm sort of fat and Canadian and funny, and she's fat and Puerto Rican and funny," Agostino said. "At first, she called me an idiot and said I was gonna get robbed. We ended insulting each other and then getting along."

Beloved McKinley educator retires

BAY RIDGE

Long-time educator Carney Haberman is hanging up the chalk and erasers and retiring after 43 years of service to William McKinley JHS.

Our pal Carney has a long, long history with the school. She learned her ABCs there as a student, then returned as a teacher, and is ending her academic career as assistant principal — wow, she sure liked the place.

She imparted her civic-mindedness and love of the arts to all the students, as evidenced in the many concerts, arts fairs and community parades she participated in.

Fellow teachers and staff celebrated her retirement at the school's End of Term Party on June 12 at Gennaro's Restaurant.

Standing O wishes Carney a very happy and well-deserved retirement.

Welcome trustees

Standing O hears that NYU Lutheran welcomed five new members to its board of trustees: Dr. Andrew Brotman, Michael Burke, Joseph Lhota, Douglas Phillips, and Carla Solomon, PhD. These five join the NYU Lutheran board as part of its affiliation agreement with NYU Langone Medical Center.

Standing O wishes the new appointees much success and a long tenure.

Summer tips

Standing O is sharing some handy summer tips provided by the Skin Cancer Foundation on how to stay safe in the season:

Care, fun for seniors at new center

WINDSOR TERRACE

Seniors rejoice! There's a new day care center in town. Owners Steve Orlov and Yuri Smolyak have cut the ribbon on Sunnyville Adult Day Care Center.

If you are 65 or older and want a fun place to spend your days, Sunnyville is your kind of place. Owner Yuri told the O there is plenty to do, including crafts, crochet, light physical exercise, movies, and even day trips. Along with fun programs, breakfast and lunch are provided, as well as transportation to and from home.

Colleagues Steven Mednik and Natafia Sterline, both of Eyes on Flatbush, were on hand at the center's open house on June 10 to help Yuri and Steve celebrate, along with Sharrise Andrews, who coordinates activities.

There are two sessions daily at the center, Monday through Friday, 9 am-1 pm and 2 pm-6 pm. The best part is that if you have Medicare, there are no out of pocket expenses.

Use a broad-spectrum sunscreen, cover up with clothing, avoid tanning, and stay in the shade when possible.

Most importantly — do not burn. At any age, a person's risk for melanoma doubles if he or she has had five or more sunburns. Lastly, keep the tiny ones safe and out of the sun, especially newborns.

Scholarships aplenty

The following students were awarded with the 2015 Bryan Cave LLP Edward I. Koch Scholarship fund. The four seniors are all students at the Brooklyn School for Collaborative Studies:

Luis Andino, a techie who enjoys re-building computers, plans on attending Brandeis University in the fall and studying engineering.

Nicole Guzman, the 2015 valedictorian, is also an active volunteer in the school. Guzman is not only a sportswoman, a founding member of the girls' varsity softball, volleyball and basketball teams, but she is passionate about social justice. Her plans include the College of Staten Island in September.

Andre Knight is a founding member of the school's chorus and glee club, and committed to the arts. He plays flute, piano and percussion and is involved with the Irondale Ensemble Project. Andre is heading to Sarah Lawrence College.

Angela Rodriguez serves as the president of her church's youth congregation, performs with its choral

100 candles & counting

Raise those glasses for Joseph Dary. The new centenarian hit the milestone B-day on June 8 and celebrated with family and staff at the Crown Nursing and Rehabilitation Center, where he has resided for the past 10 years.

Niece Myrlande Dary and daughter Eves-Rose Dary helped him blow out the candles on his cake. Eves-Rose said that her sister Nicole Hoo-Chong, husband Leslie, and nephew Nicholas, had traveled up several days before to Brooklyn for a family gathering held at cousin Myrlande's home as well.

Born in Haiti in 1915, Mr. Dary was a customs agent and emigrated to the United States in 1955.

According to daughter Eves-Rose, longevity runs in the family, "It's genetics, his dad lived to 103," she said. Adding, "my dad walked a lot and was not one to worry about anything in life," she explained.

He also loved Haitian cuisine and had a drink or two on the weekends.

Susannah Providence, his recreational aid at the center for the past four years, told Standing O: "He loves his exercise, bowling, basketball, and going for walks. He also loves his word puzzles and trivia games."

She added, "Mr. Dary is a gentleman, he opens the door for you and always helps. He is a very nice man, you don't come across too many like him anymore."

Standing O wishes Mr. Dary many more candles.

group, and volunteers with its Building Management Committee. She is also a founding member of the Brother and Sister Support mentoring program at the school. Angela plans to attend Fordham University and hopes to become a teacher.

This is the third year that Bryan Cave LLP, a diversified international legal practice, has presented the scholarships, named in honor of former mayor and partner in the firm Edward I. Koch, to deserving high schoolers.

Xaverian pitchers lead Catholic league to Mayor's Cup win

BY JOSEPH STASZEWSKI

Xaverian's John Bini didn't know what he was getting himself into while warming up in the Catholic league bullpen before entering the Mayor's Cup baseball all-star game.

"When I came back everyone said, 'Hey, don't blow it,'" Bini said.

The Catholic league was no-hitting its Public School Athletic League counterparts as Bini was set to toss the sixth inning. New Utrecht infielder Andrew Nathan was originally credited with a hit in the third inning, but the official score correctly switched it to an error. A change only a few of the players noticed right away.

"I didn't realize it until the sixth inning when they took it off the board," Xaverian ace Rob Amato said. "I knew it was an error, but it was crazy."

Amato tossed a perfect game during the regular season, but his teammates would ultimately have to settle for a one-hitter in a 7-2 victory over the Public Schools Athletic League in the senior showcase game on June 14 at MCU Park in Coney Island.

The lone hit was a double off the bat of George Washington starter Wesley Rodriguez with no outs in the seventh inning. St. Joseph by the Sea's Mike Russell was on the mound. Rodriguez, who was recently drafted by the Arizona Diamondbacks, said he didn't feel any extra pressure to get his team a hit.

"It's an all-star game, anything can happen," Rodriguez said. "It's all fun here, so no pressure."

Amato said he went in just looking to put up strikes and not make it easy on the opposing batters during a perfect fourth inning.

Bini set three up and three down, including a strikeout in the sixth. They were two of seven Catholic league pitchers used in the game. James Madison standout Chris Karnbach did not allow a hit and struck out two over the first two innings and Telecom hurler Evan Layne also tossed a scoreless frame for the PSAL.

"It was fun to be here with the kids from the Catholic League," Amato said. "A no-hitter in an all-star game would be sick."

While Amato and Bini did their thing on the mound, Xaverian teammate Nick Melola contributed with his bat. He reached on a fielder's choice in the third and the first Catholic run came in on an errant throw home on the play. His team opened up the game with a six-run sixth inning that including a two-run single by Salesian catcher Andy Camilo, a Long Island University commit.

Clippers teammate Anthony Scotti started the game at third for the Catholic schools and Abraham Lincoln's Greg Poleon suited up for the public schools.

Having the city's best seniors in one place made for a memorable night.

Trick play ensures Goldstein first flag-football title

BY JOSEPH STASZEWSKI

The play devised just for the championship delivered Leon Goldstein's first flag-football title.

Dolphins coach Salvatore Prestianni tweaked his team's traditional option-pass play into a hook-and-ladder version two days before the title game. He knew two-time defending flag-football champion Tottenville would be well prepared for the formation's usual pass to the left behind the line of scrimmage and then a long toss down field.

Prestianni, who felt he was too conservative in last year's final loss, called it on third down with his team up six and its back up to its own five-yard line.

"I said if I ever got back, I was going to be aggressive," he said. "It's the only way to be."

Instead of tossing sideways, quarterback Nancy

Palumbo hit Emily Ourzdeen short over the middle. She quickly lateralled the ball left to speedster Rorie St. Lawrence for a 36-yard run. It gave Goldstein a first down and put it in position for an eventual five-yard touchdown run by St. Lawrence through four defenders. The score put the Dolphins up two scores and the team never looked back.

"It changed the game up," Palumbo said.

Fourth-seeded Goldstein then cruised to a 32-13 victory over No. 3 Tottenville in the Public School Athletic League flag football championship game at Aviator Sports Complex on June 12. It is the Dolphins' first crown in program history.

"After last year, we knew we had something to prove," St. Lawrence said. "We had to show everyone we are a really great team."

WORTH THE WAIT

Recruiting journey lands Naz's Jackson at Detroit

BY JOSEPH STASZEWSKI

Brittney Jackson's patience was finally rewarded — just about when it was running out.

It was getting harder and harder for the Nazareth senior guard to keep the faith that a college hoops scholarship was going to come her way. Schools like Rider and St. Peter's were interested, but like many others they went with other players or ended up not needing a point guard.

Her peers kept asking where she was heading. Her answer was always, "I don't know yet."

"My parents, my mom were really worried about everything, and I was more worried than her," Jackson said.

Her break came when former Canisius assistant Tara Fleming joined the staff of first-year Detroit University coach Bernard Scott. Fleming was a fan of Jackson at her previous stop, but the Golden Griffins didn't need a point guard. Detroit did. Fleming remembered Jackson, got in touch with her and everything fell into place.

"We are elated," Nazareth coach Ron Kelley said. "I'm just happy there is a home for her."

Jackson fell in love with the school and the staff on her visit and signed a National Letter of Intent with the Titans of the Horizon League earlier this month. Jackson was happy to find a place that made bringing her in a priority, and gave her a chance to play right away.

"The coaching staff accepted me as if I was already playing on the team," Jackson said. "They just made me feel at home, especially the players. They made me feel like I was wanted."

She said jumping to different travel teams last summer might have hurt her visibility with coaches. Kelley said that Jackson isn't a flashy player and her contributions don't always stand out as much as others.

Nazareth graduated five Division I scholarship players two years ago, and this season it watched players like Niya Johnson, Shanix Heinz, and Ericka Russell step into star roles. Jackson's impact on their development — and the Lady Kingsmen winning the state Federation Class A title — wasn't lost on him.

"She was a great leader for us this year, a fantastic communicator," Kelley said. "Her jump shot got a lot better. She played the real point guard position for us. It wasn't flashy. It wasn't spectacular, but she did a great job for us."

He can see her being the same type of player at the next level for a Detroit program looking to rebuild. Jackson can be a versatile piece for the Titans. Jackson heads there

Tougher task now awaits Malignaggi in new return bout

Paulie Malignaggi's long-awaited return to the ring just got a whole lot more interesting.

The former world-champion boxer from Bensonhurst was supposed to be back in the squared circle on May 29 to face Boston brawler Danny O'Connor at Barclays Center. But a deep cut above the eye he got two weeks before the bout forced him to pull out. It would have been the 34-year-old Malignaggi's first fight in 13 months.

Instead, he will have to face a much stiffer test — against a more proven opponent, in the undefeated Danny Garcia — when the two square off at Barclays on Aug. 1. The bout will headline the live Premier Boxing Champions card on ESPN.

Malignaggi can't wait to get back in front of the Brooklyn fans against such a formidable challenge.

"Although I have a ton of respect for Danny and his father Angel — both for what they've accomplished in the ring as well as the bond they share as father and son — I am a competitor through and through, and in this sport it's all about testing yourself against the elite," Malignaggi said. "So I look forward to defending my home turf of Brooklyn and matching my skills against Danny's at Barclays Center on Aug. 1."

O'Connor would have been new to the big stage that Malignaggi has thrived on during his career. Malignaggi, who is also a renowned boxing commentator, was the clear favorite in that bout despite the layoff. Garcia, on the other hand, has fought four times at Barclays Center. He is a former world champion at super lightweight and one of the rising stars in the sport.

The one advantage Malignaggi may have is that the 27-year-old Garcia is making his debut at welterweight (147 pounds). Garcia forfeited his previous title to take this fight and try to begin his ascent up his new division, and said he feels confident going into the bout.

"I'm looking forward to getting in the ring again, in my fifth appearance at Barclays Center, and putting on a great show for the East Coast fans in attendance, and the fans watching all over the world," Garcia said. "By the end of the night, I will still be the undefeated Danny 'Swift' Garcia."

The undercard has yet to be announced, but this fight sells itself: the boisterous hometown hero Malignaggi versus the talented Garcia and his talkative father Angel. The press conference alone will be must-watch.

Remember that the last time Malignaggi attempted to beat an undefeated fighter in his first welterweight fight things didn't turn out well. He lost a 12-round split decision to Adrian Broner back in June of 2013. This bout may be a tougher one.

"Danny Garcia has laid waste to the junior welterweight division, and instead of easing his way into the welterweight division, he's fighting a former world champion in Paulie Malignaggi," said Brian Kweder, senior director of programming and acquisitions at ESPN.

Brooklyn fans will have to wait an extra three months to see Malignaggi back in the ring, but it will be worth the wait, because he is back on a bigger stage, with a bigger fight, and more dangerous opponent.

Telecom softball stars show off at Mayor's Cup

BY JOSEPH STASZEWSKI

Don't run on Telecommunications's Emily Bianchino and Susen Gutrkenst. That's what the Catholic league players learned early in the Mayor's Cup softball all-star game.

Both playing away from their normal positions, Bianchino and Gutrkenst nonetheless each threw out runners from right field to keep the Public School Athletic League squad in the game before it fell 9-0 at the annual senior contest at the College of Staten Island on June 12. The feat hadn't hit the duo until after the game.

"I didn't really think of it until just now. That's kind of cool," said Bianchino before receiving a celebratory high five from Gutrkenst.

Bianchino, who is the Yellow Jackets' center fielder, started the game in right. She chased down a drive by Molloy's Alexandra Yule and made a perfect, deep cutoff throw to Forest Hills second baseman Maxine Sanchez. She cut down Yule at third as she tried for a triple.

Gutrkenst did her one better in the fourth. She is Telecom's catcher during the season, but will play the outfield

GOLDSTEIN

Her team trailed 13-6 with 6:18 to play in the first half. Tottenville (11-3) would not score again. Touchdown passes of 34 and 50 yards respectively from Palumbo to Ourzdeen, the game's most valuable player, put Goldstein up 19-13 with 1:30 to go before the break. St. Lawrence intercepted Tottenville quarterback Jamie Quadrato with 15 seconds left to ensure the Dolphins (12-2) ended the half ahead.

"It was a really good confidence booster," St. Lawrence said.

She proceeded to have her way with the Tottenville defense in the second half. The Pirates had no answer for her speed, agility, and ability to change direction quickly. Her shifty five-yard touchdown run put Goldstein up 32-13 with 4:13 to play.

"The second she gets her one good cut she is off and is gone," Ourzdeen said.

The Goldstein defense didn't let Tottenville go anywhere after the break. Victoria Italiceo was excellent at pulling flags before Pirates players could get into open space. Ashley Sagesse put plenty of pressure on Quadrato in the pocket. Prestianni felt his team did a better job of disguising its coverage and disrupting Quadrato's rhythm.

The complete performance was enough to crown Goldstein champion. The players rushed the field, Palumbo was lifted on her teammates' shoulders, and Prestianni received a Gatorade shower.

"Last year we were heartbroken," Palumbo said. "This year, we said we were going to come back and we were going to show them that we didn't deserve to lose."

with a small chip on her shoulder, motivated to prove herself not only to her new team, but to the programs who passed on her.

In the meantime, Jackson is enjoying the fruits of her hard work. She finally has a Division I scholarship, a home for the future, and more recently her high school diploma — making her aggravating wait seem like a distant memory.

"I've been really happy these last two weeks," Jackson said. "I feel like I haven't been mad at all."

this," Bini said. "All of these new guys out there with different jerseys. It was a great experience."

Watching seven different pitchers combine for a no hitter would have made it that much better, but Amato and his teammates were happy to settle for a win they could boast about.

"It gives us a lot of bragging rights," Amato said. "Anytime they want to talk about us we can just say we almost no hit them."

LIU commit Camilo earns Mayor's Cup MVP honors

BY JOSEPH STASZEWSKI

Most-valuable-player honors were the furthest thing from Andy Camilo's mind as the rain began to fall at MCU Park.

The Saleisan catcher and Long Island University commit was instead just soaking up the experience of leading the Catholic-school all-stars to a 7-2 victory over their Public School Athletic League counterparts in the Mayor's Cup All-Star Game on Feb. 14. When he heard his name called as the game's most valuable player, it was just an added bonus to a memorable night and season.

"I was surprised," Camilo said. "I wasn't even waiting for that. They called me and I'm proud."

Seven Catholic League pitchers held the public school stars to just one hit, but Camilo came off the bench to be the team's big bat at the plate. He collected two hits, scored twice, and had the big blow in a six-run sixth inning. He drilled a two-run double to left that put his squad up 7-0.

"When it was my time to go in, I did what I always do," Camilo said. "I did my job."

It was certainly a much better ending to his high school career than was scripted days earlier. Saleisan was a strike away winning its first Catholic Class AA crown before Monsignor Farrell rallied for a 12-inning win and then beat the Eagles the next day to take home the title.

The tough defeat doesn't take away from the ascension of the Saleisan program that Camilo and his classmates orchestrated. They took the Eagles from a solid Class A club to a being power in the ultra-competitive AA league.

"To take this little school from New Rochelle that nobody knew to the big spot we were at," Camilo said. "Last year we made it to semis and this year we made it strong."

He hopes to bring that winning mentality to Long Island University along with Saleisan and Mayor's Cup teammate Luis Arias, also a Blackbird commit. The Brooklyn team is coming off a 16-35 season, but it's adding a skilled and gritty catcher in Camilo who knows how to win. He is happy to be staying in New York City, and believes he is joining a program that will grow like the one he is leaving.

"They got a good program building up too," Camilo said. "They are trying to get guys to build up a new program just like Saleisan."

His Catholic league teammates were impressed with Camilo not only during the Mayor's Cup game, but also throughout his career. He caught five innings as his pitchers dominated the opposing hitters.

"I have a ton of respect for him," Xaverian hurler John Bini said. "He's a great hitter. Just being able to throw to him was awesome. Just playing against him we saw how good of a catcher he is."

SOFTBALL

in college at Hunter. St. Edmund's Nicole Quintana lifted a fly ball to right. Gutrkenst caught it on the run and threw a perfect strike to home to nail Bishop Loughlin's Essence Walker at the plate to keep the score 5-0 in favor of the Catholic schools.

"I was just going through all the situations before the play," Gutrkenst said. "I knew the girl was going to try to tag up. I figured on a fly I needed to go home, and I guess it just worked out."

Fontbonne head coach Frank Marinello sent Walker from third. In an all-star game you are never sure of the other players' skills, but he called Gutrkenst's toss to the plate "a perfect throw." Bianchino knows wherever Gutrkenst is on the field, her arm will be a factor.

"No matter where she plays, she will have a good arm," Bianchino said. "It's no surprise she got the girl thrown out at home."

But their defensive prowess wasn't enough to stop the Catholic league from picking up its fourth-straight Mayor's Cup victory. It scored four times in the first inning with help from two errors, and added another run in the second to make it 5-0.

Fontbonne Hall third baseman Ariana Dillon played a big role in the four-run eighth inning that put the game well of reach. She singled to left to score Sacred Heart's Madison Carlo for the game's final run. Dillon also walked and scored a run back in the second inning.

"It's sad that my high school career is now over," she said, "but it's cool that it ended with a hit. It's emotional for sure."

The victory made the experience even better for Dillon, but it wasn't what she enjoyed most. Dillon was able to play alongside teammates Jill Nixon and Raphaela Sicurelli-Gerber one more time, and teamed up with girls she and the Bonnies have been trying to beat for four years. St. Edmund's Stephanie Samir and St. Saviour's Natalie Gil also took part in the game.

"It's amazing," Dillon said. "Usually, we are competing against each other. To come together and see each other for the true people that we are, and not just for someone we face, is amazing. You see different sides of people."

► JOB INFORMATION

Leticia James Warns Consumers About Classified Ads
Toll numbers may be a direct line to trouble.

Classified ads are intended to help people by facilitating communication and advertising available services; however, some of the hotlines & service numbers in classifieds actually hurt the people who rely on them by cheating them of their hard-earned dollars. "Most newspapers print a disclaimer in their classified ad section to warn readers about numbers that are a direct line to trouble. Any number starting with 900, 540, 595 or 871 charges a fee beyond a local call. In some instances, ads initially advertise calls to a local number, but then direct callers to a second number starting with one of the paid exchanges. "Consumers must also question the legitimacy of vague classifieds because they too could be a scam. Before responding to an ad, consumers should verify the source of all information & always be wary about sending money or signing a contract with an unknown party."
