'Bleach bandits' busted

BY THOMAS TRACY

Police have arrested five men whom they say are the splash-and-dash crew responsible for breaking into more than 60 groceries, 99-cent stores, delis, and pizzerias throughout southern Brooklyn, and covering their tracks using a method cops say was inspired by the Ben Affleck film "The Town."

The suspects — one of whom lives up the block from the 68th Precinct in Bay Ridge — allegedly stole more than $200,000 during the burglaries, which began in August, 2010.

Investigators said the group, including 26-year-old Amaury Hernandez, 31-year-old Andy Lopez, 24-year-old Roy Gonzalez, 29-year-old Miquel Colon, and a fifth suspect who was already in Riker's Island on an unrelated criminal charge, would break into stores through back and side

HOLY FLOCK FUROR

Parishioners snub protesters

BY THOMAS TRACY

Parishioners loyal to a Marine Park priest who was accused of sexually abusing two 13-year-old boys last week lashed out at a group of protesters outside his church on Sunday, with one of the flock spitting at the demonstrators and another telling them to stick the flyer they were handing out "up their [buttocks]."

DEAR LOUIE

Khadafy's Brooklyn love letters

BY DANIEL BUSH

A Canarsie man who famously collects the autographs of world leaders lost one of his favorite pen pals last week when Libyan strongman Moammar Khadafy was killed.

Louis Schlamowitz received four signed pictures and letters from the eccentric authoritarian ruler, who took time from his busy day job — turning oil-rich Libya into one of the world's most repressive regimes — to correspond with the retired florist and Bay View Houses resident for more than two decades, beginning in the Carter Administration.

"He was a good pen pal," said Schlamowitz, who's sent thousands of letters to world leaders asking for their autographs, and owns a collection of 6,000 signed pictures of everyone from Herbert Hoover to Anwar Sadat To Barack Obama.

"Khadafy didn't have to reply back to me, but he did."

True to form, the notoriously long-winded despot answered Schlamowitz's initial autograph request with a rambling, incoherent and paranoid two-page letter strewn with hateful references to Israel, America and the West — an unconventional approach towards currying favor with an American Jew.

"We call upon our friends all over the world to use every possible means to remind the American administration of its wrong policy," Khadafy wrote, in reference to the United States's reaction to the Iranian hostage crisis, then in its first days.

Khadafy rambled on, subjecting Schlamowitz to a diatribe on the unequal distribution of foreign aid and his own dire predictions of the consequences of an American military campaign in Libya.

"If America carried out an act of aggression against us, we will become a second Vietnam," Khadafy warned.

The deranged colonel ended his harangue with an upbeat "Best wishes!"

Schlamowitz stored the 1981 letter and three others that Khadafy sent to him in a loose-leaf binder dedicated to his correspondence with a who's-who list of 20th century Middle East power brokers.

They include former Egyptian President Hosni Mubarak, who sent the indefatigable autograph hound a dozen signed photos before relinquishing power earlier this year, and longtime Palestinian Liberation Organization leader Yasser Arafat.

None met a bloodier end than Khadafy, but Schlamowitz — ever the consum-

You gotta love Louis Schlamowitz, the famous autograph hound who was basking on Friday, having received two — count 'em, two! — signed photos from late Libyan strongman Moammar Khadafy. The Canarsie man also received a two-page letter from the dictator.

mate pro — only mourned his death long enough to make room in his binder for Libya's next leader, who ever that is. "Khadafy's gone," Schlamowitz said. "That's the way the system works."

Louie Schlamowitz's greatest hits

For decades, Canarsie's Louis Schlamowitz has been a pen pal to some of the world's most-despised leaders. Here's a breakdown of his greatest scripts:

Despot	Country, reign of terror	Crimes against humanity	Louie's favorite passage	Fun fact
 Moammar Khadafy	Libya, 1969-2011	1988 Lockerbie bombing	"If America carried out an act of aggression against us, we will become a second Vietnam."	Reinstated an ancient law punishing thieves by cutting off their hands!
 Hosni Mubarak	Egypt, 1981-2011	Believed to have ordered the killing of unarmed protestors	"Your kind message of felicitation on the New Year has been received with deep appreciation."	Survived six assassination attempts!
 Yasser Arafat	Palestinian Liberation Organization, 1969-2004	May have ordered 1972 Munich Olympics murders	"Thank you for your warm congratulations on the success of my recent surgery."	Always had a three-day shadow, no matter what day!
 King Hussein I	Jordan, 1953-1999	Benign authoritarianism	"This [is] an historic time for peace in the Middle East."	Fathered 11 children!
 George W. Bush	United States, 2001-2009	Murdered the English language	"To Louis Schlamowitz, best wishes" (Actually, that's all he wrote).	Subject of the Bright Eyes song, "When the President Talks to God!"

'Thriller' coming to Coney Island

BY THOMAS TRACY

Get ready to dance your brains out — then eat them.

The funk of 40,000 years will be realized on Oct. 29 as scores of the undead and other creatures of the night shuffle to Coney Island's Boardwalk as part of a worldwide performance of the "Zombie Dance" made famous in Michael Jackson's "Thriller" video.

Members of Thrill The World NYC hope to get together more grizzly ghouls from every tomb in an attempt to break a record set by those that gathered and danced in Mexico City in 2009, when nearly 14,000 closed in to seal your doom.

While the dancers hit the beach, others will be doing the same in Manhattan — and other parts of the world.

"It's a great experience," said Amanda Anderson, Thrill the World NYC's head choreographer, who will dress as a decaying, zombified Statue of Liberty. "We teach a version of the dance taken from the video that anyone can learn and then everyone involved, in each city and each country, dances to it at the same time. But what's even better is that we're helping those in need."

Thrill the World started in 2006 when 62 costumed Canadians danced to the creepy yet addictive diddy in Ontario, Canada. But, as undead viruses often do, the dance became a pandemic, and quickly spread to other cities around the world.

By 2009, 22,571 people in 33 countries danced to "Thriller" at the exact same time — although last year's dance wasn't as successful, organizers said.

Yet nothing can match the feat logged in the Guinness Book of World Records: 13,597 people in Mexico City danced to "Thriller" at the exact same time in August, 2009 — about two months before the Thrill the World's achievement (which Guinness didn't recognize, but the Record Holders Republic did).

Anderson said that more than 100 people participated in the Thrill the World NYC event in 2010 — the dance's first run in Coney Island. All previous dances were done in Queens, a neighboring county known as the "Borough of Cemeteries."

"We had people all the way from Washington DC and New Jersey coming here to participate," she said.

And everyone chipped in to help the Pajama Program, a nonprofit that collects pajamas and books for needy children, Anderson said.

"We walked away with three laundry bags full of donations," Anderson remembered. "We're hoping to do even better this year."

Breaking Mexico City's record may be harder, but Anderson and her dancers are willing to kill — and eat brains — for the chance.

SECOND CHANCE

Boardwalk dives offered new leases — if they clean up

BY DANIEL BUSH

Old-school Boardwalk businesses that are facing eviction can stay open for eight more years — if they agree to get rid of their honky-tonk charm and turn themselves into upscale eateries — under a deal being offered by their landlord.

Central Amusement, the company that controls the leases along the city-owned beachfront, is negotiating new deals that require the owners of old-time businesses — including Ruby's and Paul's Daughter — to spend more than $100,000 each to clean up their acts if the Depression-era dives are to remain on the Boardwalk through 2019.

And the old-school owners may not be willing to bite.

"Ruby's is in negotiations to come back, but right now it's a coin toss," said a source close to the negotiations, who asked remain anonymous.

The bars are being asked to spend several hundred thousand dollars on renovations, including hardwood floors and a fleet of flat-screen TVs — a move that would rip the rag-tag carney atmosphere out of places like the 77-year-old Ruby's, which is beloved by the Coney faithful for its aging decor and honky-tonk feel.

Such a transformation would run the risk of alienating regulars who go there for cheap drinks, salty conversation and spectacular views of the Atlantic Ocean. Still, the source said Ruby's may be willing to pay for the face-lift even though it would drastically change the style of the bar.

"The place would look more like the 2000s, not the 1800s," the source said.

Central Amusement was planning to replace the two bars and five other Boardwalk shops — including Cha Cha's and Beer Island — with upscale eateries, but dropped plans after a Miami-based restaurant group that planned to put in fancier dining spots in the storefronts backed out earlier this month over concerns that it would not generate enough money, sources said.

That group opened Coney Cones on the Boardwalk in July to test the financial waters of the Boardwalk, but was disappointed in sales at the ice cream parlor this summer, according to several people familiar with the situation.

The news that the old Boardwalk bars could be spared was first reported in our sister publication, the New York Post.

If all the sides do broker deals, it would be the second time in 12 months that Central Amusement's plans to evict the so-called "Boardwalk Eight" has failed. Last year, seven of the longtime businesses forced Central Amusement's hand when they sued the company to keep their spaces. Two establishments brokered a deal to stay open this Monday.

The eighth business, a popular carnival game called "Shoot the Freak," was bulldozed before the agreement was reached in March.

Coney stakeholders were stunned by Central Amusement's decision to give some of the shops a new lease on life.

"I'm taken totally by surprise," said Dick Zigun, Coney's chief booster and the man behind Side-shows by the Seashore. "I didn't think they would change their plans."

A spokesman for Central Amusement did not return calls seeking comment.

If negotiations fall through, Boardwalk loyalists can still expect a raucous send-off at Ruby's, which hosted a similar "farewell" party last year, when the bar thought it was about to close, on Oct. 29.

Pols: Let's not talk about sex

GOP leaders want optional abstinence program for city schools

BY DAN MACLEOD

Borough Republicans are just saying “no” to Mayor Bloomberg’s sex-ed initiative, demanding that the city offer parents the ability to opt out in favor of abstinence-only education.

The coalition of conservative lawmakers says that parents — who can opt-out of portions of the program — should be able to decide what their children are taught about sex.

“We’re not saying that they shouldn’t teach sex-ed in schools — just that [parents] should have an option,” said Greg Pfundstein of the NYC Parents Choice Coalition.

The city announced over the summer that, starting in January, students would be required to take a semester-long sex-ed class in junior high and again in high school.

The mayor’s plan is part of an effort to squelch teen pregnancy and sexually transmitted diseases. The lessons would cover anatomy, puberty, the appropriate age for sex, how to use condoms, and other topics.

Studies have linked abstinence-only programs to a rise in teen pregnancy — particularly in sex-ed-free Texas, where the birth rate among 15- to 19-year-olds is third highest in the nation.

But opponents of the program — which allows students to opt-out of classes that cover the use of birth control — say that the city is overstepping its bounds by forcing kids to take sex-ed classes.

Rep. Bob Turner (R-Marine Park) and Rep. Michael Grimm (R-Bay Ridge) added that any curriculum should be sensitive towards students of different religious faiths — some of which do not allow frank discussions of sexuality.

State law already allows parents to opt-out of sex-ed classes due to religious or moral reasons. And city officials said that they have a responsibility to teach sex-ed.

“Abstinence is a very important part of the curriculum, but we also have a responsibility to ensure that teenagers who are choosing to have sex understand the potential consequences of their actions and know how to keep themselves safe,” said schools Chancellor Dennis Walcott.

“One-third of the new cases of chlamydia in the city are in teenagers and a significant percentage of our teenagers have had multiple sexual partners, so we can’t stick our heads in the sand about this.”

New Rep. Bob Turner (R-Sheepshead Bay) joined the fight on Monday to teach abstinence in city schools.

Car takes out utility pole

TIMBER! A car smashed through a utility pole at Bergen Avenue and Avenue T following a two car crack-up on Oct. 20. Photo by Steve Solomonson

BY THOMAS TRACY

Talk about a hatchet job! A car sent spiraling onto a Bergen Beach sidewalk sliced through a utility pole like a Ginsu knife through a tomato near the corner of Bergen Avenue and Avenue T on Oct. 20, but, miraculously, no one was injured and no wires fell to the ground.

Surprised witnesses said that when two cars collided near the corner at 1 am, one veered onto the sidewalk, where it lopped off a wooden utility pole at its base.

The pole fell, but not far, landing on its splintered stump and remaining upright until Con Edison crews could repair it.

"We were lucky," one nearby resident said. "There were no power outages, even though the electrical wires were being held up by a utility pole that was split in half."

The cause of the crack-up was still under investigation, police said.

Are You Suffering With Severe Constant Pain?

New Laser Light Breakthrough Treatment May Reduce Or Even Eliminate Pain Of The Worst Kind In Just Minutes

If you are suffering with severe pain despite all the treatments, that may have failed you in the past, you may now have some hope of reducing or even eliminating your pain with a new non-surgical, painless laser treatment now available in Brooklyn.

Deep Tissue Laser Treatment is an innovative, scientifically based, therapeutic modality. This new technology offers advanced pain relief and expedited healing times through a process known as photobiostimulation.

Deep Tissue Laser Treatment delivers, deep, penetrating, photonic (light) energy to bring about profound physiological changes. ATP (Adenosine-triphosphate) production is increased, inflammation and pain reduced and circulation increased at the site of pain. These changes in cellular chemistry are triggered by the deep tissue laser making it a true healing modality.

Deep Tissue Laser Therapy does not require the use of drugs or surgery, and there are no known side effects or risks that may occur with other forms of treatment. In addition, it can often achieve results faster than other treatment modalities. During the treatment the patient will feel a deep soothing warmth. This pleasant sensation reassures the patient that the laser is stimulating cellular activity.

Lasers have made a remarkable contribution toward healthcare, allowing practitioners to treat a variety of conditions with the speed of light. As a non-invasive tool, the laser is particularly effective for the efficient treatment of soft tissue injuries, sprains and strains, and a variety of other ailments and pain.

Low Level Laser enhances metabolic activity at the cellular level, without generating tissue-damaging heat.

Some of the benefits of laser treatment include:

- Fast reduction of pain
- Improvement of nerve function
- Reduction of muscle spasms.
- Speeding of tissue repair
- Development of muscle tissue and collagen
- Reduction of inflammation, swelling and scar tissue formation
- Pain reduction immediately

The Class IV laser, approved by the FDA in 2006, packs a punch while remaining non-invasive. The Class IV laser is capable of reaching depths of 6 to 9 inches, with a treatment beam of up to 3 inches.

Because the Class IV laser reaches deep into the tissues, it is ideal for treating sprains and strains, arthritis, calcified muscles and fibrotic adhesions, as well as intra-articular tissues inside of the joints. Its far-reaching capabilities also allow the Class IV to achieve results in less time than most cold lasers currently used today. With treatment times of as little as 5 to 15 minutes, the Class IV laser allows many conditions to vastly improve within a few visits. Oftentimes, patients find immediate, soothing relief that improves with each treatment.

A partial list of the kind of conditions that can be helped...

- Bulging, Slipped Discs
- Spinal Fusion
- Neck Pain
- Sciatica Pain
- Migraine Headaches
- Back Pain & Spinal Conditions
- Tennis Elbow
- Carpal Tunnel Syndrome
- Neuropathy Pain
- Bell's Palsy
- Plantar Fasciitis
- Sports Injuries
- Sprains & Strains
- Knee Pain
- Hamstring Tears
- Arthritic Pain

If you are tired of living with pain and would like to see if you qualify for deep tissue laser treatment call 718-559-6992 for a FREE CONSULTATION right now. Dr. Keller has seen such dramatic fast pain relief with Deep Tissue Laser Treatment, that she offers one FREE treatment to see if you respond and if you are a candidate for this revolutionary new non surgical pain relieving treatment. Due to the overwhelming response to this type of offer, this offer will be good for the first 25 callers. If the lines are busy, keep trying.

Listen to what patients are saying:

"I had been suffering from knee pain for many months before I tried laser treatments using Deep Tissue Laser. After just a couple treatments, my knee pain was reduced to the point where I can finally live a more normal life again. These treatments are simply remarkable!"

- Jennifer C.

"I started treatments with Deep Tissue Laser after I had injured my neck in a car accident. The treatments allowed me to return to work much more quickly than anyone had expected, considering the pain I was in. During the treatments, all I felt was a warming sensation as the laser was moved across the injured area where all my pain was. After just three short treatments, my pain was almost totally gone. Thanks, Doctor!"

- Jason B.

"The Deep Tissue Laser treatments I received dramatically helped my recovery from a broken leg. Not only did it help reduce the swelling, the pain relief I experienced was nothing short of miraculous. My orthopedic doctor was amazed with the results."

Protesters interrupt Gerritsen Beach meeting

BY DANIEL BUSH

"Occupiers" taking their cue from Wall Street protestors took center stage at a meeting in Gerritsen Beach on Wednesday — for a few minutes, anyway.

The group of similarly dressed demonstrators stood up and chanted "Jobs, not cuts!" — stunning a crowd of 50 homeowners who showed up to hear how they can get federal aid for damage done to their homes during Hurricane Irene.

The 10 members of United New York — an anti-Wall Street labor group — were all seated in the front row and wearing jackets before the meeting began. Once it started, they stood up and took off their jackets — revealing their identical homemade shirts that had the words "Jobs, not cuts" written in marker across their chests — and began chanting the slogan.

The demonstrators were quickly removed from the meeting, at the Court Club on Gerritsen Avenue between Channel and Devon avenues.

The forum's host, Sen.

State Sen. Marty Golden (R-Mill Basin) was angry with protesters who crashed a meeting between FEMA and residents whose basements flooded during Hurricane Irene. File photo

Marty Golden (R-Marine Park), tried shouting them down to no avail.

The brief moment of chaos ended when others at the meeting quieted the protestors down and herded them out of the hall without incident.

Outside, the protestors — who hailed from North Brooklyn and Red Hook — said they chose the venue to send a message to newly-elected Rep. Bob Turner (R-Marine Park), who pledged to grow the economy by cutting government spending during his successful campaign to replace disgraced former Congressman Anthony Weiner.

But Turner didn't attend the meeting, as protestors had hoped, though his office did send an aide.

Turner's rep declined to comment on the incident.

The congressman, who has been in office for all of two months, has not been named to any committees that oversee the nation's budget.

The surprise outburst drew plenty of anger from residents.

"These weren't Gerritsen Beach people," said Chris Doyle, who was there to ask the feds to pay for the costs of repairing his basement, which flooded during the storm in August. "It wasn't the right place to protest."

Golden said that the demonstrators behaved "inappropriately."

"Some of the people here had tremendous losses" in the hurricane, he said. "The protest was out out of the blue."

Gerritsen Beach residents anxious for Irene aid

BY DANIEL BUSH

Help is finally on the way for Gerritsen Beach residents whose homes were damaged by Hurricane Irene.

Officials with the Federal Emergency Management Agency said they'll start cutting checks for homeowners and renters who are eligible for disaster relief from the Aug. 28 storm — if they register for the aid before the government's Oct. 31 deadline.

David Hasemyer, an agency spokesman, said people who fill out the paperwork in time will receive a visit from an agency inspector within 10 days of submitting their application.

The visit generates a report that determines whether or not the property damage qualifies for federal assistance, and how much.

According to government statistics, the agency has approved 917 of the 2,089 applications that were filed in Brooklyn so far — and disbursed some $2.8-million in claims around the borough.

Gerritsen Beach residents are eager to cash in.

Glenn Clapp said he received $5,000 from his home insurance company to pay for the damages to his house on Just Court, between Opal and Post courts. Clapp used the money to repair his flooded basement — but said it wasn't enough to pay for new windows and an awning over his deck that was ripped up in the storm, prompting him to register with the agency.

"I'm hoping FEMA will come through for me," Clapp said.

BERGEN BEACHShot on E. 51st Street

Two trigger-happy gunmen opened fire on an 18-year-old on E. 51st Street on Oct. 18 — sending the teen to the hospital.

The victim was nearing Avenue M just after midnight when he was shot in the hip. Doctors treated his wounds at Brookdale Hospital.

Three on one

Police arrested three thieves who they say robbed a 21-year-old on E. 51st Street on Oct. 18.

The victim was approaching Avenue N at 7:25 pm when the suspects approached, flashed their weapon, and robbed the man of his cellphone, cash and credit cards.

But they didn't get far — cops rounded up and arrested the suspects a short time later.

Spare the rod

A 37-year-old woman attacked her 17-year-old daughter with a shower rod during an argument in their Avenue H apartment on Oct. 18.

The assault, which took place near Flatbush Avenue, took place during a 5 pm argument. The teen suffered marks to her arms as a result, police were told.

Door kicker

A thief kicked in the door to an E. 73rd Street home on Oct. 17, taking an assortment of jewelry found inside.

The 62-year-old victim, who lives near Avenue U, said that the break-in took place at 3 am.

Rear window

A crook snuck into an E. 46th Street home in Flatlands on Oct. 21, taking $50 and an assortment of jewelry.

The goon wiggled through a rear window — damaging the screen in the process — sometime after 1 am, the 71-year-old homeowner near Troy Avenue told police.

Car plunder

A thief broke into a van parked on Troy Avenue on Oct. 20, taking an assortment of expensive batteries.

The vehicle was in a fenced in lot near Flatlands Avenue when it the thief pocked the lock sometime after 7 pm.

Rear entry

A thief forced open a rear window to an Avenue I home on Oct. 23 — stealing an assortment of electronics.

The crook raided the home, located near Flatbush Avenue, sometime after 4 pm, the homeowner said.

Tire swipe

Thieves snagged four tires and rims from a 2008 Infiniti parked on E. 53rd Street on Oct. 20.

POLICE BLOTTER

The theft occurred sometime after the owner of the car parked it on Avenue N at 3 am. The owner discovered it when he was leaving later that morning.

CANARSIE

Cane crook

Cops say a 25-year-old woman was arrested for beating and robbing a disabled Flatlands Avenue man of his cane on Oct. 20.

The victim was arguing with the woman near E. 81st Street at 12:30 pm when she snatched the cane out of the man's hand and beat him over the head with it. She then ran off with the cane, only to be arrested by cops from the 69th Precinct a short time later.

Chain snatch bust

Cops arrested an 18-year-old who they say swiped a gold chain from another man on Avenue N on Oct. 9.

The victim was approaching E. 84th Street at 4:15 pm when the thief passed him — then yanked the gold chain off his neck and ran off.

But he didn't get far: cops caught up with the thief on Oct. 18, charging him with robbery and grand larceny.

Family affair

A 51-year-old Farragut Road man and his 23-year-old son were arrested on Oct. 16 when they were caught threatening each other.

Police were told that the son texted his father at 4:11 pm, claiming that he was going to "f-k him up."

When the 23-year-old arrived at his father's apartment on E. 90th Street, the older man charged at his son with a knife in his hand.

Cops from the 69th Precinct charged both men with menacing and harassment.

Cashing out

Detectives arrested a 50-year-old man who they say swiped more than $3,000 in money orders from a Canarsie woman back on July 27.

The would-be thief was arrested this week after he tried to cash one of the now flagged money orders on Rockaway Parkway.

The man said he didn't take the money orders, but found them in a blank envelope at the Empire State Casino in Yonkers.

61ST PRECINCTSHEEPSHEAD BAY-MANHATTAN BEACH-

Two goons jumped a 57-year-old man on Shore Parkway on Oct. 23, making off with his 2011 Acura.

The victim said he was approaching E. 14th Street at 7:15 pm when the suspects attacked, leaving him with a concussion. They then swiped the keys to the victim's car — and sped off with his wheels.

School shenanigans

Cops arrested a 16-year-old who they said tried to rob a classmate inside James Madison High School on Bedford Avenue on Oct. 24.

The 17-year-old victim said he was walking to a class inside the building near Quentin Road when the teenage punk threw him against a wall and put him in a headlock. The thief then tried to empty his victim's pockets, but ran off empty-handed.

Knocked down

A thief jumped a 27-year-old woman on E. Third Street on Oct. 22, taking the woman's cellphone and purse.

The victim was approaching Ocean Court at 12:25 am when the thief crept up on her from behind.

"Give me your bag," the thief screamed before he shoved the woman to the ground and ran off with her property.

Bay Academy boobs

Two teens held up a 12-year-old boy outside of Bay Academy on Emmons Avenue on Aug. 3, but one of them didn't get away with the crime.

Police say that the teens, one of whom carried a knife, stopped the youngster in front of the school at 8:50 am, taking $1 and a cellphone.

The 12-year-old, who apparently knew the muggers, didn't report the incident until Oct. 21, and cops say they quickly apprehended a 15-year-old girl involved in the heist.

Beaten for bag

Cops say a teenage girl attacked a peer on Quentin Road on Oct. 20, taking her schoolbag.

The 16-year-old victim was approaching E. 21st Street at 3:20 pm when the thief walked up to her and asked if she could use her phone.

She then punched the teen — knocking her to the ground — and ran off with her bag.

The 16-year-old was later hospitalized with a broken ring finger.

Market raid

Three thieves, one of which was wielding a knife, held up workers at an Avenue S mini market on Oct. 20, taking $600.

Workers said that the thugs barreled inside their store near Coney Island Avenue at 5 am — but the guy with the knife did all the talking.

"Give me the money, f-king guy!" the thief screamed as he waved his knife and went behind the counter, emptying the cash register. The other two men acted as lookouts, the victims told police.

Bookbag grab

A thief jumped a 25-year-old on E. Ninth Street on Oct. 15, taking his bookbag.

The victim was approaching Quentin Road at 8 pm when the robbery took place.

Attacked with bottle

A thug cracked a beer bottle over a 39-year-old man's head on Knapp Street on Oct. 23, leaving him with a cut to his ear.

The victim was approaching the gas station near Avenue X at 8:30 pm when he was attacked.

Precious pinching

A thief broke into an Allen Avenue apartment on Oct. 24, taking five Precious Moments figurines.

The victim said he left his home near Bevy Court at 10 am. When he returned at 2:50 pm, his apartment had been ransacked. The figurines, $1,700, and an X-Box were missing. Police believe the thief entered through a kitchen window.

Repelling in

A thief raided a Nostrand Avenue grocery on Oct. 21 — after cutting a hole in the store's roof.

Workers opened the store between Avenues W and X at 6:40 am to find a hole in the ceiling and more than $12,000 in cash, cigarettes and phone cards missing.

Glass houses

Cops arrested a 46-year-old who they say wiggled out inside an E. 18th Street home on Oct. 17 — and began throwing rocks through his house's window, from the inside!

Witnesses said the suspect was inside the home between Beverly and Albemarle roads at 10 pm when he began throwing rocks at the window, shattering it.

More trouble for dad of accused terrorist

The father of an would-be terrorist accused of planning to blow up city subway cars was facing 40-years in prison — but now he's facing even more time.

Federal prosecutors allowed Mohammed Wali Zazi, 56, to plead guilty to visa fraud in Brooklyn Federal Court on Oct. 21 after it was learned that he lied on his visa application to get into the United States.

Investigators learned that when Zazi came into the U.S. in 2006, he claimed that his nephew was his biological son — so the young man could come to the U.S. with him.

But that act of kindness bit Zazi in the butt: prosecutors called Zazi's nephew to testify against Zazi's biological son, Nejibullah Zazi, when the younger Pakistani immigrant was arrested for formulating his terrorist plot.

Federal prosecutors claim Nejibullah wanted to plant bombs made out of beauty supply chemicals in a number of New York train stations in 2009, but gave up his plan after he learned that the FBI was closing in on him.

The FBI learned that Nejibullah had sent e-mails to a contact in Pakistan wanting to know about the key ingredients needed for constructing his bomb. When Nejibullah was visiting New York City from Colorado, the FBI conducted a search of his car and discovered handwritten bomb-making notes.

He ultimately pled guilty to his crime and was sentenced to prison.

The nephew also testified against the elder Zazi, who prosecutors claim knew what his son was doing and warned his relatives not to mention his terrorist plot to anyone.

Zazi even told family members to swap the words

“chemicals” to “medicine” when they talked to each other, fearing that the FBI was tapping their phones.

Zazi had also told family members to destroy all of the chemicals that his son had collected in his bomb plot, prosecutors claim.

Prosecutors say that Zazi is facing an additional six months for the visa fraud charge — but the defendant didn't seem to be concerned about it.

“After sentencing, I will give the whole story from beginning to end,” Zazi told the New York Daily News after court, refusing to give any more comments.

Witness gets NYPD Blue at trial

Testimony against a former Brooklyn South Narcotics cop charged with stealing drugs taken during police raids and planting them on innocent men and women took a twisted turn last week when the cop on trial was accused of demanding oral sex from his strung-out confidential informants.

Taking the witness stand against embattled Police Officer Jason Arbeeney, Melanie Perez said that the cop had called her to his home, made her smoke drugs, then pulled down his pants and demanded to be pleased.

“What was I going to do?” she said. “I did it.”

Arbeeney is one of eight undercover officers still to be tried in a ground-breaking shake up of the Brooklyn South Narcotics Unit in 2008. The team was put under the microscope when it was learned that Det. Sean Johnstone and Police Officer Julio Alvarez had “cooked the books” on drug seizures.

The duo executed a search warrant on an alleged drug dealer's Coney Island home on Sept. 13, 2008, finding more than two dozen bags of cocaine. Later that day, Det. Johnstone was heard bragging that he and Alvarez had recovered 28 bags of cocaine, but only vouchered 17 of them. Johnstone wanted to use the rest of the cocaine to pay off informers, investigators alleged.

But his confession was completely accidental: he didn't know that a wire he was wearing was still recording when he told another officer what he had done.

Prosecutors claim that Arbeeney showered his informants with drugs and participated in an ugly practice known as “flaking,” where drugs are planted on innocent victims to bolster arrest numbers.

Arbeeney's trial continues this week, but Johnstone has already been tried and convicted earlier this year of one corruption charge — resulting in probation and losing his badge.

Knowing the signs of carbon monoxide poisoning could save a life.

Carbon monoxide. It's colorless. Odorless. And deadly. It affects thousands of households each year. How? It forms and accumulates when a heating system lacks proper ventilation, chimneys are clogged with debris, or when fuel-burning appliances aren't properly installed or maintained. That's why it's important to recognize symptoms of carbon monoxide exposure.

Take action. Install one or more ANSI/UL-approved carbon monoxide detectors in your home — preferably near bedrooms. Be sure to have your chimney or heating flues checked annually before each heating season. And pay close attention if you've had major renovations recently.

Signs of carbon monoxide poisoning include:

- ◆ persistent headaches
- ◆ nausea
- ◆ dizziness
- ◆ blurred vision
- ◆ confusion
- ◆ rapid heartbeat

If you suspect the presence of carbon monoxide, please go outside and call 911 immediately.

Marine Park celebrates Halloween in spooktacular style

BY THOMAS TRACY

There was a lot going on at Saturday's Halloween Festival in Marine Park, but one thing was abundantly clear — it was a howling good time.

Scores of costume-clad kiddies and their parents flocked to the corner of E. 38th Street and Avenue U to participate in all the fun, games and candy the Marine Park Civic Association had to offer.

And there was plenty for one to feast upon: bounce houses, slides, pumpkins, face painters and bags upon bags of candy could all be found at every turn, festival-goers said.

"My kids had a great time," said Bergen Beach resident Tim Parker, who sported a Frankenstein mask as he brought his creatively costumed son Timothy, a swamp monster; daughter Gracie, a vampire bat; and beagle PJ, a great white shark, to the festivities. "In the past there were less rides and more of a haunted walk through the weeds, but now its more like a festival. They had everything, including a pumpkin patch."

The historic Marine Park Haunted Walk, where brave families were jumped by ghouls and demons as they tried to make it through the Salt Marsh — all in good fun, of course — died a quiet death two years ago in the name of progress: the Army Corps of Engineers began restoring the Jamaica Bay shoreline, preventing any entry into the spooky, weed-strewn marsh.

Yet Marine Park Association president Greg Barruso and his team honored those beloved thrills and chills of yesteryear with several wicked way-stations sprinkled throughout the festival grounds.

As they made their way around, wide-eyed kids wit-

(Clockwise from top right) Ghouls, goblins and a pack of salivating werewolves occupied Marine Park on Oct. 22 during the Marine Park Civic Association's Halloween Festival — where a body-less Todd Lichtman made an appetizing snack for teenage wolf Matthew Hosty. nessed werewolves feasting on human heads, ghouls trying to get a rise out of a few corpses, and a chilling cemetery maintained by the Grim Reaper and a zombie — played by Marine Park residents David and Margaret Dougherty.

"We helped set up the cemetery, and we decided to join in, but it was spur of the moment," Margaret Dougherty said. "I'm a fan of 'The Walking Dead' so I was a zombie and my husband was the Grim Reaper, but he was a friendly Grim Reaper who gave everyone high-fives and fist bumps."

Giant gourd hits borough

BY ELI ROSENBERG

Now that's a Great Pumpkin, Charlie Brown!

The Zambito family, the reigning pumpkin kings of Kensington who gained attention after displaying a 502-pound gourd outside of their home last October, have outdone themselves with their new 800-pound bohemeth.

Like last year's crop, this year's squash-zilla was grown at the family's upstate home before being brought to their McDonald Avenue abode, and put on display for the entire neighborhood to see.

"We were actually hoping for larger," said matriarch Dawn Zambito, whose family splits time between upstate Norwich and Brooklyn.

The pumpkin — which is known as an Atlantic Giant — may have grown upstate, but it got its start right here last May — potentially making it one of the largest crops ever born in Brooklyn.

"My husband puts the seeds in the cups in our boiler room here," said Zambito. "That's where he starts them to germinate."

The 800-pound monster was sprouted from a particularly fat seed from last year's pumpkin before heading upstate, where it benefited from the heavy rains of the last few months.

On Oct. 11 — the day the gourd was harvested and transported — it took 10 people just to get the pumpkin on a friend's pick-up truck in Norwich — and another 10 people to unload it in Brooklyn.

Dawn Zambito and her son Thomas show off the 800-pound pumpkin they brought back to Brooklyn from their home upstate. Photo by Paul Martinka

"You know how the flatbed goes down on a truck when you put something heavy on it?" Zambito said. "We actually dented it."

She assured us that they fixed their friend's pick-up bed.

The Zambitos don't have plans to make a giant jack-o'-lantern, but they will cut up the thing sometime after Halloween and give most of it away to friends and neighbors.

Somebody better have a good pumpkin-pie recipe on hand.

Costume party in Canarsie

BY THOMAS TRACY

Talk about having a spooktacular good time!

Decked in costumes, makeup and glad rags of all stripes, scores of Canarsie kids flocked to IS 211 on E. 100th Street on Oct. 22 to celebrate a fright-free Halloween.

All screams of terror were replaced with laughter as kids danced — and breakdanced — the afternoon away near Avenue J, then feasted on a host of candy and treats.

But the costumes were the real treat: kids came dressed as cats, little princesses, vampires (and vampirellas), and of course, Spider-Man, Batman and Wolverine.

Two show stoppers had to be brothers Josh and John Watson, who both came dressed as Transformers.

The fun-filled afternoon was sponsored by the 69th Precinct Community Council.

MORE THAN MEETS THE EYE: Josh and John Watson wowed the crowd as a pair of triumphant Transformers at IS 211's Halloween party on Oct. 22. The party was sponsored by the 69th Precinct Community Council.

COSTUMES ON PARADE: Spider-Man, a skeleton, an Arabian princess, and a Mario brother showed up at the Halloween party at IS 211 in Canarsie on Saturday

Lawyer: Cops made Aron write confession

New attorney for alleged killer claims Aron is insane

BY DAN MACLEOD

The attorney for the accused killer of an 8-year-old Borough Park boy said on Monday that his client is insane and was coerced by cops into writing a chilling confession shortly after his arrest.

Lawyer Howard Greenberg said that his client, Levi Aron, the reviled Kensington man who is accused of kidnapping, killing and mutilating Leiby Kletzky last summer, lacks the mental capacity to tell right from wrong.

Prosecutors claim that Aron lured Kletzky into his car on July 11 after the child got lost walking home from day camp and later drugged and smothered him before cutting up his body to hide the evidence — something he confessed to in a hand-scrawled note hours after he was arrested on July 13.

But Greenberg claims cops fed him the confession and made him sign, “I understand this may be wrong and I'm sorry for the hurt I caused,” at the bottom, which he said is a line cops force many murder suspects to write to get around a mental illness plea.

derstand this may be wrong and I'm sorry for the hurt I caused,” at the bottom, which he said is a line cops force many murder suspects to write to get around a mental illness plea.

“It was made to look like a rational act in an attempt to circumvent the insanity defense by attributing the difference between right and wrong,” he said. “I can't even tell you how many times I've seen that as the tagline.”

Aron appeared in court for pretrial motions on Monday though a video link from Riker's Island, where he has been in custody since August.

“Levi Aron is either evil or crazy and we intend to prove that he was not responsible by reason of insanity,” said Greenberg, who said that he and co-counsels Pierre Brazile and Jennifer McCann are defending Aron for free.

Greenberg joins a defense team that has seen its share of setbacks. One lawyer, Gerard Marrone, resigned shortly after taking on the case, citing the horrific nature of the crimes, and the judge, Justice Neil Firetog has publicly chastised McCann and Brazile for procedural errors, inexperience, and for speaking too freely with the press.

Arrest in senior shooting

BY THOMAS TRACY

Police have arrested a 76-year-old man they say gunned down his 65-year-old ex-wife outside of Brighton Beach's Asser Levy Park last Thursday.

Following days of questioning, detectives from the 60th Precinct took Dmitry Kamenev, a resident of Brighton Seventh Street, into custody, charging him with murder.

Investigators say Kamenev opened fire on his ex-wife Alla Kamenev at the corner of W. Second Street and Sea Breeze Avenue at 11:50 am on Oct. 20 as he rolled past her on a bicycle.

Alla, a resident of Surf Avenue, was hit multiple times and died of her injuries at Coney Island Hospital.

Kamenev's friends told reporters that he and his ex-wife were estranged, yet didn't believe that the 76-year-old, who reportedly suffers from a number of health problems, could ride a bike — much less kill someone as he rolled by on one. Some surmised that Kamenev could have hired someone younger to kill his ex-wife.

Yet police are sure Kamenev's responsible for his ex-wife's death.

“He's the shooter,” one police source told this paper. “He's our only suspect.”

News of the slaying stunned local residents, especially since the shooting took place just paces away from a public park.

But Asser Levy Park has seen its share of combat: it was at the center of a lawsuit to block Borough President Markowitz's plans to build a $64 million amphitheater. Residents said the noise booming from the new amphitheater would impact their quality of life and sued, claiming it violated an old and rarely enforced law that prohibits amplified music within 500 feet of a house of worship. A judge upheld the law and killed plans for the amphitheater's construction, as well as future Seaside Summer Concerts — which Markowitz had hosted at the park since 1991.

Last Thursday's slaying is the fifth murder to take place in Coney Island and Brighton Beach this year, where six murders occurred by this time last year.

JAILCELL APP

Brooklynite's program alerts people you're arrested

BY ELI ROSENBERG

Call it arrest-app development.

Midwood-based software developer Jason Van Anden has created a Smartphone application tailored to the Occupy Wall Street crowd — a program that allows you to send a mass text message at the moment you are getting colored by cops.

It's called, appropriately, "I'm Getting Arrested."

"It's a technology that fits well with democracy," said Van Anden.

The software designer came up with the idea after hearing that a Wall Street-occupying friend had come within one nightstick swing of being arrested. It made Anden wonder how he would have known if someone close to him had actually been detained.

"The next two nights I burnt the midnight oil," he said, describing his feverish programming that resulted in the "I'm Getting Arrested" app for Android phones.

The app has proliferated with the help of Smartphone-savvy Wall Street protesters (as anti-Establishment as they are, they're pretty quick with consumer technology). In just two weeks, it's been download more than 5,600 times around the world — mostly in the United States, though a sizable customer base lives in the United Arab Emirates and Belarus.

"You have to wonder if [the download info] can forecast what people are thinking," said Van Anden.

Here's how it works:

Before you do anything that could earn you detention, open the app and write a text message to any number of recipients. Then, just as you're about to be arrested, open the app and press a big red target on the phone's screen. Faster than a cop can say, "You have the right to remain silent," you'll be alerting your mom, your friends, your roommate, and even your favorite newspaper reporter (phone number below!) of your impending detainment.

Currently, the free program is only available on Android phones, though Van Anden hopes to develop it for iPhones as well.

The irony is that Van Anden is not an Occupy Wall Street protester himself — preferring to keep his day job as a software developer for companies including Tiffany & Co. and Citibank — but he believes in the movement.

"I support what they're doing," he said. "I was glad that I was able to contribute something with my skill-set."

Best of all, the free app is easy to download — just in time for Tuesday's "day of solidarity" being planned by Brooklyn elected officials.

To get the app, visit <https://market.android.com/details?id=us.quadrant2.arrested>.

nationalgrid

When it comes to natural gas pipelines, there's no such thing as too safe.

Pipeline safety is something we take very seriously at National Grid. Even though most lines are buried underground, that doesn't mean you can ignore them.

You can keep your family and your community safe by helping to prevent gas leaks. Always contact your one call center for New York City at 1-800-272-4480 or 811 before you dig. Remember, some gas lines are marked, but others are not.

More importantly, you should know the signs of a gas leak. We've added a spoiled egg smell that makes natural gas easier to identify. You can also look for bubbles in standing water, a white cloudy mist or blowing dust, which indicates that an underground gas line may have ruptured; or, listen for a hissing, roaring or whistling sound.

If you smell, see or hear any of those indications, leave the area immediately, then call National Grid at 1-718-643-4050. Don't make the mistake of thinking someone else will make the call. Be smart and be safe. Call before you dig and know the signs of a gas leak. A little prevention could make all the difference.

Fungus among us

'Shrooms are a bloomin' thanks to wet weather

BY ELI ROSENBERG

This fall's mushroom season is one of the most bountiful in decades — thanks to an unusually rainy past few months that's encouraged mycophiles to have a spring good time.

"I can't remember any season that's been better," said "Wildman" Steve Brill, who's been leading foraging tours in Prospect Park and other city green-spaces for 29 years. "I'm having trouble cooking and cleaning all the mushrooms I've gotten."

On Brill's most recent gathering, he and a group of 37 stumbled upon trove after trove of blewit mushrooms, a "Eureka!"-worthy bounty that had some people walking away with armfuls.

Blewit mushrooms from a particularly fruitful patch in Prospect Park are enjoying a great fungal season, thanks to all the rain. CNG / Eli Rosenberg

The violet-hued blewit is prized for its flavor and is said to sauté beautifully — but it can be confused for other blue-tinged mushrooms that are decidedly less-delectable: the Cortinarius Violaceous, for example, which is poisonous.

Speaking of poison, one needs to look no further than the Poison Control Center for proof of mushrooming intoxication.

The city fielded 48 calls for mushroom-ingestion issues in August and September — double the amount of calls during the same period in 2010, according to the Health Department.

Brill is dismissive of these numbers.

"That just means there's twice as many idiots," he said.

The mushroom boom is a direct result of a rainy summer, particularly an August with just shy of 19 inches of rain — the wettest month in city history.

Bleach

entrances in the middle of the night and loot ATMs and cash registers.

To erase any traces of DNA, they would douse anything they touched with bleach — a trick the suspects said they learned from the bank robbery movie starring Affleck and Jeremy Renner.

Yet their attorneys say this is a fiction.

"It's absurd," said Nicole Bellina, who is representing Colon. "This doesn't have anything to do with that movie."

But businesses owners who opened up their stores the next morning and were greeted with the piercing smell of bleach disagree.

"[The thieves] took my whole back door off," Isaiah Flores, who owns Friends Pizza and Cafe on Seventh Avenue in Sunset Park, told reporters. Police say the thieves raided Friend's Pizza on June 6. "Then they smashed the ATM, covered everything with bleach and took $6,000. I've worked so hard to get this kind of money."

Police say the thieves would cut electrical wires to the businesses — knocking out any alarms — and would raid the place wearing masks topped with miner's head lamps so they could see what they're doing.

The heists began in Sunset Park — where two of the thieves lived — but quickly spread to Bay Ridge and Bensonhurst, police said. The thieves then spread out further, hitting Sheepshead Bay and Midwood.

Some of the high stakes thefts (just a tenth, of course) included:

- A 99-cent store on New Utrecht Avenue near 69th Street in Bensonhurst. The thieves entered the store through a rear window on Sept. 29, 2010 and raided an ATM.

- A deli on 15th Avenue near 69th Street. The crooks kicked in the rear door on Oct. 1, 2010, broke into an ATM and ran off with cash and a carton of cigarettes.

- Bay Ridge Farm on Fifth Avenue near 80th Street in Bay Ridge on Nov. 7, 2010. The thieves entered, removed cash and stole cigarettes.

- An Avenue U deli near E. 22nd Street in Sheepshead Bay. The crew entered through a rear door on June 19, fleeing with an unknown amount of property.

- A grocery on Third Avenue near 84th Street in Bay Ridge. The thieves propped up a roll-down security gate to get inside, but only made off with $16.

- A deli on Church Avenue near E. 7th Street in Flatbush. Thieves broke in on Sept. 25, emptied an ATM and a cash register — and ran away with the store's juke box!

Prosecutors said each suspect admitted to committing some of the crimes, but not all.

The five suspects were arraigned on multiple counts of burglary and criminal mischief. Their bail ranged between $75,000 to $750,000 for each suspect — high, but not high enough for District Attorney Charles Hynes, who asked for $1 million for Gonzalez, who had been linked to 28 of the burglaries.

Bellina said her client, like the other defendants, plans to fight the charges.

"The DA is still investigating, so we will see what they come up with," she said.

Now what?

Strong Foundations™ from VNSNY was developed to help reduce the risk of falling in older adults. This is important because falls are the leading cause of fatal injuries in adults over 65. Signs a loved one may be at risk include holding onto furniture for balance and stumbling or leaning to one side when walking. Traffic law enforcement builds city's piggy bank

To the editor,

A Brooklyn Supreme Court jury ruled that the city was responsible for the injuries sustained by teen Anthony Turturro when he was hit by a speeding car in 2004 while riding his bike home from a tree-lighting ceremony ("Jury: City owes $19M to hurt teen," Oct. 13).

The panel found that officials ignored repeated requests by residents for reduced speed limits on the road where the car that hit Turturro was traveling at 55 miles per hour in a 30 mile-per-hour zone.

I agree this was a tragedy, but if the city fined drivers and pedestrians for ignoring the traffic lights, there would be fewer accidents and more revenue. This might also help reduce city layoffs.

In the past, Los Angeles had drivers yield to pedestrians, and Arizona currently has ordinances fining both drivers and pedestrians for crosswalk infractions.

We should have that here. It would save lives, grief, and injuries, and reduce the $50,000 no-fault insurance currently imposed on New York — the highest of any state in the nation.

I love New York, but the city is truly at fault to begin with.

To the editor,

Forgive my ignorance, but I do not understand why the Department of Homeland Security insists on having illegal immigrants "do work Americans will not do."

I recall that prisoners used to make our automobile license plates, and maybe they still do. I don't know that answer, but I'm sure American prisoners would be happy to work on farms.

I do know that in Georgia groups of six to eight prisoners could usually be seen cleaning highways of litter and cutting

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Is Coney Isle 'Tireland' cracking up?

To the editor,

Soon, Coney Island as I remember it will be gone ("Last call for old-school Coney Island," Oct. 13).

The only thing left will be empty lots and memories. The city has apportioned the Boardwalk concrete in Coney Island and Brighton Beach, claiming it's cost effective, but it neglects to mention the amount of Parks Department personnel lost to budget cuts. Now, there are plans to concrete Coney Island Avenue to Brighton 15th Street as well.

I often wonder how is it that Long Beach and Jones Beach don't have the same problems with their boardwalks?

After the pier in Coney Island was completed with fake wood, some of the nails started to pop up. I've also heard reports of cracks on the completed concrete portions towards Sea Gate.

Could car-racing there be far away? Nothing would really surprise me about this administration.

Brighton Beach

kudzu — a rapidly growing vine — off trees, while being watched over by one or two policemen holding shotguns. The work got done, and it was exercise for the prisoners — better than staying in a prison cell all day!

I strongly believe prisoners could take some of U.S.A.'s outsourced work, too.

Pay the prisoners for this contribution to society, and it will ultimately teach them a worthwhile skill, and benefit us all.

All in the name

To the editor,

National Hispanic Heritage Month just passed, and as one who has been personally burdened with the false label of "Hispanic," I find this observance to be totally absurd.

For many years I have protested against the term "Hispanic" as a contrived governmental label with no validity that has taken root, worldwide.

The truth is that there is no such thing as an "Hispanic," "Hispanic race," or "Hispanic culture." There happen to be 21 individual countries around the world that speak Spanish. In most cases, the Spanish language is the only thing they have in common.

Apart from being absurd, the global acceptance of the term "Hispanic" has become very dangerous because it is used in defective medical research reports. Until medical science can show some correlation between a language, and a susceptibility to certain diseases, they need to stop using the term "Hispanic," and start using physical characteristics and traits such as race, diet, and country of origin to substantiate their findings.

There are, however, 44 countries that speak English. I'd like to see the descendants of these 44 English-speaking countries bound together, as we are, under a term such as "Britannic," using the same criteria. I'd like to see them marching in the city, celebrating "National Britannic Heritage Month."

I will only accept term "Hispanic" when all the English-speaking people of the world start calling themselves "Britannic."

'Mystery' sport

To the editor,

I am a regular reader and fan of your paper, but as a journalism graduate I can't help but notice a glaring error in your sports story, ("Fontbonne hopes to turn things around," Oct. 20).

Pretend for a moment that you are a reader who isn't familiar with Fontbonne Hall sports, coach Victor Popkovsky or the fact that it is an all-girls school (almost all of your readers perhaps?).

Now read the article. What is the reporter writing about? There is not one mention of the actual sport that is the subject of the article. The only clues one has as to what this may be about are the position description, "mid-fielder," which could be referring to soccer or field hockey, and a reference to a "first half."

All that was needed to fix this mystery sport article was to include the name of the sport in the lead.

Trap, neuter and return — that's the solution to our feral cat problem.

This way, the cats are humanely captured, taken to a veterinarian and neutered, then returned to their territories.

It would also prevent future litters of more homeless, feral cats.

Afghan you believe it?

To the editor,

After years in Afghanistan, fighting for their democracy with our brave military sacrificing their lives and limbs, President Hamid Karzai has the unmitigated gall to tell us that if there was a war between the U.S. and Pakistan, his nation would fight against us!

What a kick in the head!

It brings to mind the story of the woman who found a dying snake in the woods, and for months cared for it in her house, and nursed it back to health.

Then, one day, the snake was healthy enough to return to the woods.

The old woman took it outside so it could live on its own, but as she went to put it on the ground, the snake bit her!

Surprised and shocked, she asked the snake, "Why would you do that to me after all I did for you?"

The snake replied, "Because I'm a snake!"

Enough said!

Prez needs to apologize for wasting tax dollars

I can understand good folks making poor investments. The intentions of the Solyndra loan of half a billion bucks were good, but as we already know, the road to hell is paved — awe, never mind.

There are three sides to every story. There's what one side says, and that's painted in one direction. There's the other side in the other direction. Then there's what God alone knows to be the actual, authentic, genuine, sincere, straightforward, honest truth, and with good health and some good luck, I don't intend to be face to face with my maker for a loooong time. As of this moment we have heard two of the three sides regarding the Solyndra experience. Last week, my president said that he has no regrets about his decision. No regrets! Half a billion dollars of taxpayers' money down the drain and he has no regrets. Even after the correspondence from the Office of Management and Budget warning the administration that Solyndra was not a safe bet, my president decided to gamble with our money, and he lost.

President Obama has traveled to many nations to apologize to them when an apology wasn't necessary, but to America, on this matter, he won't even an "oops." The loss of half a billion dollars will not haunt him as much as his arrogance.

There's a half-hearted apology and an "excuse me" from the Washington Post that I find troubling. The left-leaning periodical tells us that the $535 million is only a small percentage of the $38 billion that the Obama administration has set aside for green companies. Is that supposed to make me feel better? It's still a lot of money.

America was promised that the $38.6 billion loan guarantees would create 65,000 jobs. So far only half of that amount has come about and, according to the statistics from the Energy Department, only 3,545 new, permanent jobs have been created. My calculator cannot carry that many zeros. Somebody, please, do the numbers and tell us how much each job cost.

If the driver in front of you in the left lane is driving five miles per hour below the speed limit, you can bet he's talking on a cellphone. If he's driving 10 miles per hour below the limit, there's a possibility that he's texting — and study after study proves that driving while texting is as dangerous as driving while intoxicated.

So, if one who is caught driving under the influence is arrested and spends a night in the can, why are the rules not the same for those who drive while texting? One night in jail will make our highways a lot safer

NO MORE-mar Khadafy!

The "mad dog of the Middle East," who once flexed his muscle by defiantly ripping up a copy of the U.N. charter in front of startled delegates, is now less than a can of de-composed Alpo.

A round of NATO air strikes and a deadly bullet by one of his own rebels made chopped meat out of Moammar Khadafy last week, after the dictator was ambushed in southern Libya where he had been holed up for two months following the national uprisings against him, and where he was found skulking — get this — like a rat in a drainage pipe full of rubbish and filth.

How very fitting.

Rat holes have become the only refuges left for debunked Muslim tyrants, a routinely spineless lot — haven't you noticed? — when justice finally comes knocking at their sewers.

Likewise for Saddam Hussein. The power-mad "butcher of Baghdad," who used chemical weapons to kill his own Kurdish citizens — among other atrocities, was captured in 2003 cowering like a coward in a desert spider hole before being tried and publicly executed for his crimes against humanity.

A BRITISHER'S VIEW

Shavana Abruzzo

Ditto for Osama bin Laden who, despite his bold reputation as a beacon of jihadist might — was discovered squirreled away like a rodent in a Pakistani compound before U.S. Navy SEALs snuffed him out in May.

In Khadafy's case, it took nearly 42 punishing years, a civil revolution, and an international alliance of 28 fed-up nations to finally end his one-man reign of unspeakable horrors, which included the 1988 bombing of Pan Am Flight 103 as it flew over Scotland. That terror act killed 259 people, 189 of them Americans, and resulted in an international blackballing of Libya.

Later, Khadafy gave a hero's welcome to the convicted mastermind — Abdelbaset al-Megrahi — after his release from a Scottish prison on trumped-up charges of failing health.

Then, there was the acute agony inflicted by the dictator upon his dissidents — a ruthless and relentless lifework aimed at snapping their individual and national spirit. The U.N. Special Rapporteur on Torture reported in 1999 that Khadafy's preferred merciless methods of torment included "beating on the soles of the feet, hanging by the wrists from a ceiling or high window, or being suspended from a pole inserted between the knees and elbows, electric shock, burning with cigarettes, and being exposed to aggressive dogs, resulting in bite wounds."

The self-professed devout Muslim also tried to stir anarchy in the U.S. during the mid-1990s by pledging to donate more than $1 billion to the divisive Nation of Islam organization — a grim gratuity the Clinton administration swiftly put the kibosh on.

Khadafy's assassination is a delightful nod to freedom because it comes on the heels of another sweet mission accomplished — last month's CIA-operated drone strike, which killed American-born al Qaeda henchman Anwar al-Awlaki.

The mad dog's death delivers a crucial message to other authoritarians in the Muslim world: another thug down, a few more to go, we're getting there — count on it.

I said what I meant & I meant what I said

No, I'm not an idiot and no, I wasn't joking.

This is my response to all those misinformed commentators who questioned my column on the "Occupy Wall Street" movement last week.

I don't make a practice of responding to readers — after all everyone is entitled to their own opinion, and I appreciate the fact that there are many, many reasons why the protesters are in Zuccotti Park — but I stand by my statements.

Shouting grievances to high-rise skyscrapers and camping out isn't helping anyone. In fact, all it's doing is providing the police with major overtime, which this city really doesn't need to pay out, and becoming a nuisance to businesses that are trying really hard to stay in above water and employ as many as they do.

Or does Occupy Wall Street want those folks out of work too?

We — the collective we — is what needs to change.

We need to vote for elected officials who will make the necessary changes to the tax code and prevent those huge corporations from digging their greedy little paws into huge loopholes that allow them to skate when paying their fair share of federal income tax.

NOT FOR NUTHIN'

Joanna DelBuono

We need to stop the government from wasting our hard-earned tax dollars on unnecessary pork projects by lobbying our local elected officials.

We need to keep our jobs here in America — by boycotting all those companies that have outsourced them overseas — like all those electronic companies that produce all those gizmos and gadgets that the Occupy Wall Streeters are sporting.

We need to buy American.

We need to live within our means and not above them.

We need to be the solution and not part of the problem.

We still need to take responsibility.

If the protesters want to really make a difference, they need to protest in Washington.

Big corporations didn't make the rules, they just used what was there to their advantage.

And lastly — and on a completely different note — I'd like to sing, "Ding Dong the Deposed Libyan Leader Khadafy is Dead."

It's not that I revel in a person's demise, but it does bring some closure to the families of all those innocent people who lost their lives on a snowy night in December on a Pan Am jet flying over Lockerbie, Scotland. Now if only Abdelbaset al-Megrahi would join Moammar.

Well I suppose, "You Can't Always Get What You Want," (from the "Let it Bleed" album by the Rolling Stones. For the gentlemen who commented that I didn't give credit to Country Joe and the Fish in last week's column—mea culpa, mea culpa).

Not for Nuthin™, but one less despot in the world is a very good thing.

All these interruptions are interrupting my life!

I'm madder than Alexander Graham Bell when he got his first busy signal because his blabbermouth assistant Watson was talking on a party line over how telemarketers keep interrupting my daily date with Vanna White every night!

Look, you all know that me and the missus are slaves to routine. I've been waking up, having my coffee and Danish, and squatting in the tub for exactly 45 minutes while I peel and eat a case of tangerines every day since before most of you whippersnappers were born — and I intend to do that — and everything else I've made my routine over my 76 years on earth — until the cows come home.

And that includes my evening regimen of dinner, watching the NBC Nightly News on the Zenith in the living room, and, of course, cheering on people I don't know spin for fabulous cash and prizes on "Wheel of Fortune."

BIG SCREECHER
Carmine Santa Maria

So you can be sure that every time the phone rings as Pat Sajak introduces the first guest — an event I can set my Timex by — I get a little perturbed!

There's a different one every night, and they are always trying to sell me insurance, change my electric company (yeah, that's a riot!), or get home delivery of the Daily News. Meanwhile, all I want to do is watch someone rack up big money before getting greedy and spinning a "bankrupt." When that happens, you can hear me laughing in Canarsie!

But I digress. Look, I know that you know that I know you can't stand telemarketers either, and you know that I know that you know that I have a way to get back at them.

So, without further adieu, here's The Big Screecher's top 10 ways to hit telemarketers where it hurts (figuratively speaking, of course):

•Use these three little words: "Hold on, please..." Then, just walk away and let the receiver dangle there from the cord that barely lets it touch the kitchen floor. That's right, don't hang up immediately — they're use to that. You want to waste as much of their time as possible. It's the simplest way to make those boiler room sales grind to a halt. Then, when you hear that "beep-beep-beep" tone from Ma Bell, you know it's time to go back over there and hang up your handset.

And how about those phone calls you get where there's no one on the other end for like 10 seconds? Ever wonder what those are? Well let me enlighten you! It's a covert telemarketing technique where a machine makes phone calls and records the time of day when a person answers the phone! That's right! Some egghead has figured out a way to determine the best time of day for a "real" salesperson to call back!

The way around this one is simple: once you notice no one is on the other end, immediately start hitting that funny "#" button on the phone 6 or 7 times as quickly as possible. This confuses the computer that dialled the call, and it kicks your number out of the system, saving you a lifetime of misery. Unfortunately, if you have a dial on your phone like I do in the bedroom, you're stuck!

And here's what to do with the enormous amount of junk mail the phone company and other utilities like to sneak into your bills. When you get these "ads" return them with your payment, and let the company that sent them throw them in its recycling!

And when you get those "pre-approved" credit card letters in the mail — you know the ones, with the postage-paid envelopes in them — don't put them through the shredder!

Look, those pre-paid envelopes cost companies nothing if you throw them away, but they have to pay the postage if you mail it back — and the heavier it is, the more it costs them! So here's what ol' Carmine does when he wants to get back at a company for sending him a sales pitch in the mail: I load up as much junk mail as I can fit into those envelopes and drop them in the corner mailbox! Ha! You mess with the bull, you get the horns, brother!

But remember, you gotta remain anonymous, so make sure your name isn't on anything you send them. Or, to be perfectly safe, send the envelope back empty! It still costs them 44¢!

Look, the banks and credit card companies are getting a lot of their own junk mail back thanks to this ingenious plot, but folks, we need to overwhelm them! Let's let them know what it's like to get lots of junk mail, and, best of all, make 'em pay for it — twice!

And even more best of all, you help keep the post office in business when you do it!

Now, excuse me, but I gotta watch the bonus round!

Screech at you next week!

Members of the New Jersey-based Road to Recovery, a group that says it helps victims of sexual abuse at the hands of clergy members, came to the Good Shepherd Church on Batchelder Street to “stand in solidarity” with teenagers who filed sex abuse charges against Msgr. Thomas Brady, the pastor emeritus of the church.

Nopuncheswerethrown, but parishioners argued openly with the protestors, which didn't surprise its leader, who claimed that those who lashed out were angry, bitter and in denial because they had been overly indoctrinated by the church.

“They want to say their priest would never do such a thing, but they forget that two 13-year-old boys were involved,” said Rev. Robert Hoatson. “I don't blame [the parishioners], I blame the brainwashing the church has done over the centuries.”

Police arrested Brady on Oct. 14, claiming that that Good Shepherd's former spiritual leader had attempted a “criminal sex act” on two minors at two different times the day before.

Investigators say one of the attacks took place in the church rectory at 10:45 am last Thursday morning. The victim said Brady, 77, allegedly made several lewd comments toward the teen. At one point, the former FDNY chaplain “offered to have sex” with the minor, cops said.

The victim's father claims that Brady went further — the septuagenarian “put his hands down” his son's pants and groped the teen, a student at Good Shepherd Parochial School.

“[My son] wants to go back to school, but quite frankly, I'm afraid for him,” the father explained. “I don't think [the parishioners] believe him.”

The community may not: most parishioners quickly came to Brady's defense, claiming that the aging priest — who suffered two strokes and is currently suffering from lung cancer — couldn't have possibly done what the teens claim.

Kevin Waldrip “stands in solidarity” outside Good Shepherd Church on Batchelder Street and Avenue S, where two teens claimed they were sexually abused by a priest last week. Photo by Steve Solomonson “[Brady's] almost 80 and has had numerous strokes,” parishioner Pat Davis explained. “If he was in a nursing home, none of this would have happened. I guess anything is possible. But I doubt it.”

But the protestors believe the teens.

“These young teenagers should be applauded by the entire community for the very unusual action of reporting sexual abuse soon after it happened,” Hoatson said. “Most children can't speak about sexual abuse until many years later.”

The teens first made their claim of abuse to officials at the Diocese of Brooklyn who, after their own investigation, removed Brady, who continued to live at the church rectory since retiring in 2009, from the Marine Park parish and forwarded its findings to District Attorney Charles Hynes, who charged Brady with attempting a “criminal sex act” before handing the case over to Staten Island District Attorney Dan Donovan. Brady was released on $2,000 bond.

A DA spokesman said Hynes couldn't take the case since he and Brady are “longtime acquaintances.”

Diocese spokeswoman Stefanie Gutierrez said Brady will not be able to say mass or administer sacraments.

This week's “Shepherd's Staff,” the church's bulletin, included a note from Bishop Nicholas DiMarizio, explaining Brady's arrest, and encouraging anyone who had been a victim of sexual abuse at the hands of the clergy as a minor to report it via a toll-free telephone number.

Some Good Shepherd parishioners say they'll continue to support Brady, who was still listed as parish's pastor emeritus in the weekly bulletin, but hope that the protestors don't return.

“[The protestors] being here is like pouring salt in our wounds,” said one parishioner, who wished not to give her name. “If they want to support the children they can do so privately and on their own time.”

Another parishioner took a different approach.

“People have a right to protest, even if it's against the monsignor,” said Marion Orleman. “We gotta pray for them.”

ROOTIN', TOOTIN' DOWN-HOME FAMILY HOEDOWN

BY DAN MACLEOD

Yee-haw!

Ridgites were treated to a down-home, rootin', tootin' hoedown — complete with a bluegrass band, and a plethora of fresh pies — on Saturday afternoon.

It marked the first event held at Owls Head Park Overlook since it was renovated this year.

Bay Ridge bluegrass band, The New River Travelers, entertained the crowd of parents and kids, who danced — and, in some cases, sang along — on the terrace overlooking the harbor.

“Everybody had a good time,” said Victoria Hofmo, of the Bay Ridge Arts and Cultural Alliance, which helped organize the day with Councilman Vincent Gentile (D-Bay Ridge). “I’m happy that people heard about it and showed up, since it wasn’t on a main strip with people walking by.”

The day featured a potluck with apple and pumpkin pies and cookies — but the best was

EXHIBIT TRANSPORTS NOSTALGISTS TO NY WORLD'S FAIRS

BY SHAVANA ABRUZZO

Sea Gate senior Joyce Soden was 10 years old when her parents took her to the 1939 New York World's Fair in Queens, where she was dumbstruck by one of the exhibits — a futuristic-looking machine that claimed to transport information from one place to another within minutes!

“They put a piece of paper in it and you looked at the other end of the stage 100 feet away, and another piece of paper came out — it was supposed to be a fax machine!” marveled the president of the Sea Gate Garden and Social Club. “We just couldn’t imagine that the information had been sent in just a few moments!”

The fantastic memory stuck with Soden, and on Sunday she helped return visitors to that time by hosting a memorabilia exhibit from the 1939 and 1964 New York World's fairs at the Sea Gate Chapel, attended by — among other nostalgists — 97-year-old Alvy West, an original member of the 1939 World's Fair Band who now lives in Sea Gate.

Sea Gate Garden and Social Club President Joyce Soden (right), and membership chair Edith Storch, view a replica of the famed Parachute Jump — debuted at the 1939 New York World's fair, and later transported to Coney Island — during a world's fair memorabilia exhibit at the Sea Gate Chapel.

There were maps, guide books, photographs, DVDs and other time-honored treasures, courtesy of Bensonhurst collector Fred Stern, who led a talk, screened movies and displayed choice items from his multi-thousand-piece archive of the historic expositions, including replicas of the Greyhound “escorter,” which transported visitors around the 1964 fair, and the Kodak Bullet, a revolutionary plastic snapshot camera which debuted at the 1939 fair.

Sunday's crowd was particularly smitten by a DVD from Aug. 31, 1964, which was named “Lucy Day” in honor of Lucille Ball, who made a guest appearance. It depicted the late comedian waving to the crowds from a convertible while being serenaded by a high school band in red wigs.

“You can hear Lucy cracking, ‘Is my hair really that color?’” chuckles Stern, 58, a bus driver who attended the 1964 World's Fair as a pre-teen and won a toy replica of the Chrysler 1963 Turbine car being exhibited at the expo.

That gift horse set the wheels in motion for a hobby which zoomed off when Stern picked up a metal tray from the 1962 Seattle World's Fair in a flea market during the 1970s.

The collector, who has also shown his cool keepsakes at the Salt Marsh Nature Center, says he delights in bringing the past into the present: “It’s like for an instant, it’s living again, the flags are flying, the fountains are going. You’re really seeing it.”

There is no way he's 103! Centenarian Daniel Dube with family members, from left, Harlan, Gilda and James Dube, Borough President Markowitz, Peter Dube and Andrew and Alanna Gombert.

He doesn't look a day over 90!

BORO PARK

"I've never been married, I take a tablespoon of cod liver oil daily and I eat lots of wheat bran" said Daniel Dube of his longevity. The centenarian, who turned 103 years young on Oct. 19, 2011, celebrated the auspicious occasion at the company he cofounded, Park Surgical, with family, friends and Brooklyn's second biggest booster Borough President Markowitz (Standing O is the first, of course). Our pal Daniel was given a proclamation from the year of his birth, 1908, to mark the day. Standing O wishes Daniel another 100 years.

PARK SLOPE

Shear delight

Snip, snip hooray to Joseph Volpicelli the best barber of Brooklyn. Borough President Markowitz — hey, this is turning into Marty's page! — dropped by Joseph's Haircutting Salon and presented our pal with a proclamation in honor of his 50 years in the styling gig. When Joe came to the USA, he couldn't speak a word of English, but through hard work (and learning the language), he now owns the salon and shares his shear expertise with lucky Slopers. In addition to cutting your locks, Joe entertains you with arias from his beloved operas. He isn't simply a hair-cutting guru, he's also run in several marathons and has traveled the world with his wife. Standing O offers another "Salute" to Joe for all his hard work and great hair styles. Keep on snipping.

HOMECREST

Hail these students

Give it up for the Students of the Month at PS 255, all of whom were cited by Principal Linda Singer for "exemplary school work, thoughtfulness and kindness." Children are selected from each grade to wear the honored sash proclaiming them "Students of the Month," and it's all because of the darn good job of studenting they do (we're sure that no one picks on them when they have the sash on!). Standing O is giving this month's honorees one big boost and pat on the back for a job well done. Keep it going, kids.

BAY RIDGE

Blow out the candles

Three cheers to Jane Kelly, who recently celebrated her 90th birthday. Our

SUNSET PARK

Buono fortuna!

Three cheers for Rosanne Raso, an alum of Bishop Kearney HS and senior vice president of Patient Care Services at Lutheran Medical Center. This daughter of Italy was honored by Borough President Markowitz at Borough Hall in celebration of Italian-American Heritage and Culture Month. Standing O says "Salute."

pal Jane was honored by state Sen. Marty Golden (R-Bay Ridge) at a big whoop-de-doo. Standing O sends out another "Salute."

GOWANUS

More candles to blow out

Hubba hubba to Buddy Scotto, the best friend Brooklyn ever had, who recently celebrated his 80th birthday. Buddy has tirelessly brought attention and resources to the restoration and revitalization of the formerly stinky Gowanus Canal as well as his beloved Carroll Gardens community. Standing O sends out her very best wishes for a happy and healthy.

It is hard to believe that Buddy Scotto is 80.

Chinese acrobats, Russian dancers, flamenco dancers and more at Brooklyn Center this season

Some of the performers that will appear at the Brooklyn Center for the Performing Arts this season include (clockwise from top) The Red Star Army ensemble on March 31; The National Acrobats of the People's Republic of China on Oct. 29th; Compania Flamenca Josel Porcel on Nov. 13 and Malon Simms and Keita-Marie Chamberlain will dance in Rex Nettleford's "Kumina" on March 24 and 25.

By Juliet Linderman

They say variety is the spice of life — certainly, it's the spice of the Brooklyn Center for the Performing Arts, which is back in action with a delicious new season chock-full of dance performances, theater productions and musical concerts that cater to the diverse cultural groups that call the borough home.

"The theme of every season is to reflect the cultural diversity of Brooklyn," said Rick Berube, a representative for the 57-year-old center, which serves as one of Southern Brooklyn's arteries for the performing arts. "The mission is to serve different demographics."

Indeed, the programming this year is as eclectic as the borough itself — and here's a taste of what to expect in the 2011-2012 season:

- A dazzling opener on Oct. 29 with a performance by the National Performing Arts Troupe established by the government of the People's Republic of China, featuring more than 40 acrobats, contortionists, gymnasts and dancers clad in sequined and brightly colored Spandex jumpsuits;
- A performance by Alan Safier in "Say Goodnight, Gracie," a one-act play about the life and times of George Burns, a vaudeville comedian from Manhattan's Lower East Side, on Oct. 30;

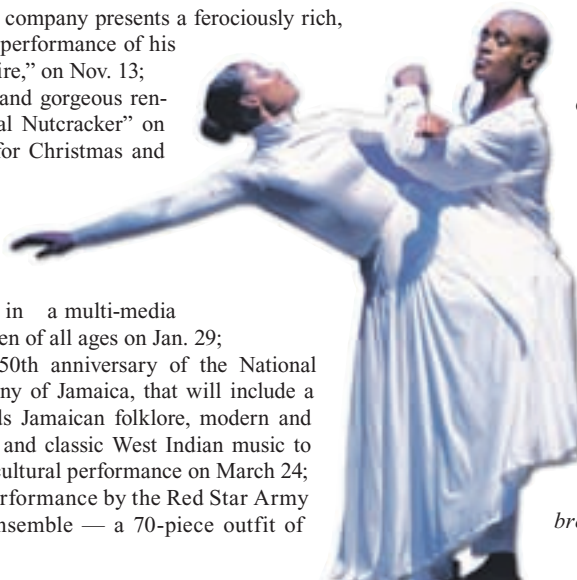

- A raucous and infectiously energetic capoeira-inspired dance show by break dance troupe Soul Street Dance on Nov. 6;
- Jose Porcel's flamenco company presents a ferociously rich, rhythmic and colorful performance of his dance piece, "Gypsy Fire," on Nov. 13;
- A classically graceful and gorgeous rendition of "The Colonial Nutcracker" on Dec. 11, just in time for Christmas and the holidays;
- Children's singalong group Hot Peas 'N Butter will combine jazz, folk, and music from different cultures in a multi-media performance for children of all ages on Jan. 29;
- A celebration of the 50th anniversary of the National Dance Theatre Company of Jamaica, that will include a presentation that blends Jamaican folklore, modern and traditional movements and classic West Indian music to create a multi-faceted cultural performance on March 24;
- A Russian-inspired performance by the Red Star Army Chorus and Dance Ensemble — a 70-piece outfit of dancers and musicians who will be touring the United States for the first time since 1998 — on March 31;

- African-inspired dance and theater production "Mufaro's Beautiful Daughters: An African Tale," which tells the story of Mufaro's two daughters and their quest to marry a great African king, on April 22; and much more.

It's a pretty diverse lineup! "We are trying to bring shows to Brooklyn that reflect the different cultures that live in Brooklyn — that's why we're here," Berube said. "We think of our season as a reflection and celebration of the borough as a whole and the different groups that make it up."

Sufjan scores!

DUMBO-based indie rock darling Sufjan Stevens will join Castanets crooner Ray Raposa for a live performance the duo's original score of documentary, "Beyond This Place," alongside a screening of the film at BAM on Oct. 30.

The perfectly paced score — which Stevens and Raposa wrote and recorded over the course of one week in Stevens's waterfront studio last year — rests against "Beyond This Place" filmmaker Kaleo La Belle's portrait of his own turbulent relationship with his father. The film, written and directed by La Belle, documents his attempt to reconnect with his estranged hippie dad — a lightly toasted free spirit who abandoned his family to ride bikes and make hallucinogenic drugs — by embarking on a 500-mile bicycle trip from Portland, Oregon to Mount St. Helens with him. La Belle recruited Stevens and Raposa in the spirit of collaboration — La Belle made a film about Stevens and his brother in 2006 called "Crooked River" — and in the hopes of performing it live one day.

Sun.
10/30

"The music carries and creates the emotional arc of the film," La Belle said. "One knows where one is in the story through the music."

The score and the film complement each other to paint a subtle and emotionally affecting portrait of forgiveness, family, responsibility and moving on, shrouded in the fog of the Pacific Northwest — and some very thick marijuana smoke.

"Beyond This Place" screening with a live performance by Sufjan Stevens and Ray Raposa at Brooklyn Academy of Music [30 Lafayette Ave. between St. Felix Street and Ashland Place in Fort Greene, (718) 636-4198], Oct. 30, 7 pm, $25. For info, visit www.bam.org.

In the flesh

What's better than a scantily clad stunner in fishnets, high heels, and lacy lingerie bumping-and-grinding to a live brass band?

Fifty of them — and that's what you'll get at Wasabasso Burlesque's Seventh Anniversary Extravaganza at the Bell House on Nov. 4 and 5.

You'll get one more thing: all hot and bothered.

"We'll have magicians, contortionists, fire-breathers," said Doc Wasabasso, the mastermind behind his eponymous burlesque show. "It's a sexy toolkit."

The devilish performance will be the biggest birthday bash Wasabasso and the gang have ever done — while adhering to the basics: striptease and pole dances.

But this is Wasabasso, so expect the unexpected: yes, we mean the re-enactment of an episode of "Battlestar Galactica."

Wasabasso's Burlesque's Seventh Anniversary Extravaganza at the Bell House [149 Seventh St. between Second and Third avenues in Gowanus (718) 643-6510], Nov. 4 and 5, 9 pm. Tickets, $25 ($40 for both nights). For info visit www.thebell-house.com.

'Youth' is served

After five years of preparation, the Brooklyn Museum will unveil its 140-piece exhibit honoring modernity, technology, and progress — but you can forget iPhone photos and Cory Arcangel-type Nintendo sculptures; this is modernity, 1920s style.

But don't be fooled: it's more contemporary than you think.

"Youth and Beauty: American Art of the Twenties" is the largest, most comprehensive show on the subject of 1920s American art to date. The paintings, photographs and sculptures in the show, selected by Managing Curator of the American Arts Teresa Carbone, address the era's three main artistic obsessions: the body, the individual and the urban environment.

"I started to explore the ways artists were trying to cope with their new modern surroundings and two things became really apparent," Carbone said. "They were really trying to assert their individuality, and they were trying to distill form and create images that were counterpart to the craziness of the Jazz Age."

Examples include: a series of close-up photographs of nude torsos by Imogen Cunningham, a testament to the liberation of, and growing fascination with, the body; Aaron Douglass's oil paintings, "Congo" and "Charleston," which illustrate the frenetic energy of the age while simultaneously including imagery — a white noose, for example — to invoke the racial tension that permeated 1920s culture; and Joseph Stella's "The Birth of Venus," which puts Venus in a pose made popular by advertisements in fashion magazines — a not-so-subtle commentary on body image advertising.

Indeed, the exhibition is about the 1920s — when modernity meant flapper dresses and big city life — but it couldn't come at a better time, when today's youth is experiencing many of the same struggles, and asking the same questions.

"You had this corporate dominance," Carbone said. "Artists weren't sure what direction they thought the country was heading in; they weren't negative about modern progress but they were questioning it — how to establish individuality and find escapes from technology that dominates everything."

"Youth and Beauty: American Art of the Twenties" at the Brooklyn Museum [200 Eastern Pkwy. at Washington Avenue in Prospect Heights, (718) 638-5000], through Jan. 29, 2012. Museum is closed Monday and Tuesday. For info, visit www.brooklynmuseum.org.

Tunes/toons

Are you hankering for a night of classical music and communist cartoons?

Good, because the Brooklyn Philharmonic will perform the original soundtracks to six Soviet-era cartoons — while the animated shorts are screened overhead in an unusual performance at the Millenium Theater in Brighton Beach on Nov. 3.

As the old cartoon reels roll, the Philharmonic will accompany the images with classical music that was written for the films by 20th-century composers such as Shostakovich and Vyacheslav Artyomov.

Philharmonic Director Alan Pierson (pictured) said the show is geared towards Russians and non-Russians alike.

"People are going to enjoy seeing the cartoons and hearing the music together," Pierson said.

In advance of the show, the Philharmonic will host a free cartoon and music-making workshop, and a chamber concert dedicated to Soviet emigre writer Sergei Dovlatov.

The two-day "Brighton Beach Series" kicks off the Philharmonic's comeback season and will be followed by similar events in Downtown and Bedford-Stuyvesant next spring.

The shows are part of the formerly cash-strapped orchestra's effort to rebrand itself under Pierson, who took over in January.

"Orchestras have to be interesting and relevant," Pierson said. "It can't be business as usual."

That certainly won't be the case in Brighton Beach.

Russian Cartoon Music at the Millenium Theater [1029 Brighton Beach Ave. between Brighton 11th and Brighton 12th streets in Brighton Beach, (718) 488-5700], Nov. 3, 8 pm. Tickets, $20-$55. For info, visit bphil.org.

The Bard comes to Brooklyn — well, sort of Sure, it's Fakespeare — but you can't say it isn't original.

Best-selling Carroll Gardens author Arthur Phillips will read from his new novel, "The Tragedy of Arthur" — which includes an original, five-act faux Shakespeare play — at his local branch library on Nov. 2, an event that will also feature Bard-inspired theater troupe Guerilla Shakespeare Project performing the fake play within Phillips's fictional autobiographical novel.

Whew, that's a lot of artifice to keep on top of.

"Writing a fake Shakespeare play is kind of unprecedented," said Guerilla Shakespeare Project Creative Director Jordan Reeves, whose group has been working with Phillips since the book's publication in April. "Phillips captured so much of the beauty and wisdom of Shakespeare, and he's writing in prose and verse. It's almost like having Shakespeare back."

Well, sort of — if Shakespeare was a five-time "Jeopardy!" champion, a former child actor, and into supporting the Carroll Gardens branch library.

"I'm happy to help the library, of course, and happy to find new readers," Phillips said. "But I'm really happiest for people to get a taste of the Guerrilla Shakespeare actors, they're just a joy to see."

The event was organized by Friends of the Carroll Gardens Library, in the hopes that it will be the first of a regular author reading series.

"We wanted to start our reading series off with a local author, and Arthur Phillips is a best-selling author," said Friends of the Carroll Gardens Library Secretary Diane Saarinen. "We realize it could be a community hub, and we're just thrilled to have him."

But just because Phillips penned a fake Shakespeare play doesn't mean it isn't sharp, imaginative and very much his own.

"I spent a lot of my life doing Shakespeare, and we do Shakespeare like it's never been done before," Reeves said. "But something like Phillips's book — it's unbelievable."

Believe it — and get your tickets in advance: they're free, but they're going fast.

FULL HODGMANIA

New book, TV stardom and enslaving Hollywood is nothing to John Hodgman

By Gersh Kuntzman

Consider this: John Hodgman — “Daily Show” resident expert, minor TV personality, Park Sloper — is launching his latest book next week, and actor Paul Rudd will help.

Not in a starring role, mind you. Rudd, the Hollywood actor best known for such comic masterpieces as “Our Idiot Brother,” “I Love You, Man,” “Knocked Up,” “The 40-Year-Old Virgin” and “Anchorman: The Legend of Ron Burgundy,” will be a member of Hodgman’s supporting cast.

And Rudd is not the only supporting player who will perform at the Bell House event on Nov. 1. No, he’ll be one of a cast that includes comics Wyatt Cenac and John Oliver, and rocker Jonathan Coulton.

In other words, WTF?!

Clearly, the point of the event is to do more than promote Hodgman’s third volume of absolutely brilliant, but entirely made-up trivia, “That is All,” but to give the author something of a victory lap: The triumph of nerds is complete.

Before Hodgman could fully celebrate his success, there was one more excruciating ritual left: The Brooklyn Paper interview.

We agreed to meet near Hodgman’s Park

Slope survival brownstone at a restaurant called Hanoi.

“Wonderful,” I told him. “Who doesn’t love Thai food!”

I detected a faint smile.

Has it always been thus — Kuntzman, the mincing moth forever dancing around the flame of the brilliant but elusive Hodgman, his neighbor and better? No, indeed, it was not thus.

Indeed, for one brief shining moment, Hodgman was the pursuer and Kuntzman the pursued, when Hodgman was briefly hired by a national men’s magazine to do a 6,000-word profile on Kuntzman, who then was at the pinnacle of success, having just penned a non-fiction book about male pattern baldness.²

But, alas, final version of the story ran at just 250 words — and historians will forever remember its publication as the moment when the Hodgman-Kuntzman axis tilted forever to autumnal.

So by the time Kuntzman sat down again with Hodgman in the fall of 2008, Kuntzman was the interviewer and Hodgman was the subject on the journalistic pedestal.

True, Kuntzman won a national newspaper award for the resulting piece about Hodgman’s

second book, “More Information Than You Require,” but it was Hodgman who went on to greater riches: fame, another book, TV appearances, friendships with the attractive Rudd and the stately Ted Danson, and the ability to cultivate a hideous mustache without spousal reprisal.³

Oh the inhumanity of it all.

Actually, the humanity of it all. Lest we forget, it was not Kuntzman, but Hodgman who has been at the nexus of every pop-cultural trend of the last five years: Nerd-rock star Jonathan Coulton’s rise to national fame? It all started with Hodgman. Jon Stewart’s revived hegemony over Stephen Colbert? Hodgman.

The bizarre quasi-romantic embrace of Wayne Newton and GOP presidential candidate Michele Bachmann? No doubt, the hidden hand of Hodgman.

And on Nov. 1, the nerd ascendancy will be complete as Rudd — yes, the international movie star — shows up to simply be a member of the Hodgman’s toadying cast.

But it’s important, given the grave information presented in “That is All,” which reprises Hodgman’s “resident expert” persona, but with the impending doom of the coming End of Days.

“It is important for people to buy this book,” Hodgman said. “If you own a Mayan Long Count Calendar, two things are clear: one, you know that the end of the world is coming at the end of 2012, and, two, you have a very big house, as those calendars are quite large.

“Yes, you could buy other books, but none is going to give you more information, such as how to stock your survival brownstone in Park Slope with livestock such as chickens, goats and sperm whales,” Hodgman continued. “Plus, there is all sorts of information on sports and wine.”

“That is All” picks up where Hodgman’s prior books, “The Areas of My Expertise” and “More Information than You Require” left off — quite literally on page 597.

True, he was a mere freelance writer when he set out to become the Greatest Fake Fact Writer of His Generation, but he was destined to surpass me.

Park Sloper John Hodgman’s new book is the apocalyptic “That is All” which will be feted on Nov. 1 at the Bell House. This picture was taken outside Hodgman’s secret survival brownstone.

“That is obviously true,” Hodgman said. “Even in those days, I wrote for all boroughs, unlike you with your one borough. Yet I was then as wretched as you still are, a magazine writer. A beggar. A nobody.”

A quirky McSweeney’s column called, “Ask a Former Professional Literary Agent” solidified Hodgman as the voice of absolute authority, an expert from whom you would take all manner of advice: how to publish a novel, how to write a pitch letter, what sort of beret one should wear to become a serious short story writer.

That column led to “The Areas of my Expertise,” then to a promo spot on “The Daily Show,” then to the Mac and PC ads, and to minor fame unparalleled.

“Yes, like most overnight successes, it took about a decade,” he said.

Our lunch coming to an end, I asked Hodgman whether others⁴ could replicate his path to greatness.

“If you mean you, I’m afraid I can’t help ‘you,’” he suggested. “You’re holding down the fort. Someone has to put out the” — he paused to pick at a noodle of his pho before half-guffawing the last word — “newspaper.”

Cut to the quick — again — by my tormentor.

Alas, I had one last weapon: I reminded Hodgman that the interview would be condensed and edited, as is the current vogue in magazine writing.

“This has been a ... great ... interview,” Hodgman said. “And you are ... one of ... the ... best ... interview[ers] ... ever.”

John Hodgman and friends at the Bell House [149 Seventh St. between Second and Third avenues in Gowanus, (718) 643-6510], Nov. 1, 8 pm. Tickets $30 (includes a copy of “That is All”). For info, visit www.thebellhouse.com.

MARATHON DRINKING BOUT

Here are the best places to imbibe while others exercise next Sunday liliiiiit's marathon time! William Dithridge, a bartender at Mullane's bar in Fort Greene, is pretty excited that the establishment is situated right in the middle of the marathon route.

By Aaron Short

Thousands of long-distance runners will brave the 26-mile trek on Nov. 6 during the New York City Marathon — and just as many fans will line Brooklyn's boulevards to root them onwards.

But standing in the cold for three hours just to see a glimpse of your friend pass by for half a second can get exhausting.

Luckily, some of the best-stocked watering holes will be open early to keep you sated from Mile 2 to Mile 12.

Here's our running round-up:

Kelly's Tavern

Bay Ridge

After fleeing Staten Island via the Verrazano, most runners will turn right onto Fourth Avenue — one block away from where you'll be enjoying your breakfast basket of wings.

The Tavern doesn't open until 10 am, so stake out a good spot

Stop by Kelly's bar and freshen up after a long, hard day of watching the marathon race through the five boroughs on Nov. 6!

inside tiny Pigeon Park between 95th and 96th Streets and cheer on the lead pack.

Or stand in front of the tavern and heckle the sweatier, clumsier runners before retreating inside to Kelly's cozy confines to watch three hours of NFL pregame coverage.

The bar boasts an all-day happy hour from 10 am to 7 pm and an unpretentious menu of its famous barbecued wings, burgers and hot dogs.

Mission Dolores

Park Slope

The fun continues up Fourth Avenue to Mission Dolores, the Slope's favorite beer bar, which is roughly at the one-quarter mark of the race.

The bar is known for its vast quantities of craft brews — try a tasty Dogfish Head Indian Brown Ale or a filling North Coast Old Rasputin Russian Imperial Stout.

Take your order outside to Mission's garden and contemplate the complex aromatics of your beverage while red-faced runners stumble and drool by you.

Mullane's Bar & Grill

Fort Greene

Fort Greene is one of the most boisterous places to watch the marathon — and Mullane's is on the neighborhood's most spirited block.

The bar will be setting up extra outdoor seating for you to soak in the race and start serving brunch, including its popular eggs Benedict, at 9 am.

That should give you plenty of fuel to shout your heart out and dance to the sounds of the Bishop Loughlin HS pep band.

"The runners love running by us — they're anticipating Bishop Loughlin's version of the theme from 'Rocky,'" said Mullane's manager Todd Sample.

Turkey's Nest

Williamsburg

What's left of Williamsburg's long-time residents know where to get cheap booze while the game is on — and the marathon is no exception.

Down a Bud or Turkey's famous "margaritas" — pretty much an alcoholic slushie — and fist bump the throngs as they pass.

Or sneak out your order in a to-go cup and hand it to an attractive thirsting athlete next to the water station at N. 12th Street — he can get the next round, or six, later that afternoon.

ly recommended are the Szechuan dumplings, browned to perfection, then drizzled with a tantalizing red chili sauce. Crispy shrimp is prepared similarly, with just the right touch of pepper flavoring to give the dish its pizzazz.

Presentation is important, and the chef, trained at a culinary school, makes use of color and arrangement so dishes are enticing. For example, the shrimp remain in their shells, and are presented on a plate, linked to each other. Whole red chili peppers are arranged in between, so if the dish is not spicy enough for you, just dive into one of these.

Sweet and sour fish fillet, so tender and tasty, is ever so lightly battered, so emphasis is on the fresh fish. It's artfully arranged so that each thin piece curls around another. It's topped with thin strips of red pepper and celery, so it looks as good as it tastes.

Eatao features traditional Szechuan dishes such as this spicy water-cooked fish fillet with tofu.

Another features tempura shrimp, topped with white rice and thin slices of avocado and cream cheese, drizzled with chili flavorings.

One of the restaurant's signature dishes is long noodles, topped with browned ground beef. At the bottom of the bowl is a spicy chili sauce. It's purposefully not tossed into the noodles, as it allows the diner to control just how spicy the dish should be.

The second level of the restaurant is a party room that can accommodate 50 to 60 guests. It's also lovely, with red brick walls, and a private balcony. A smaller room, towards the back, is for smaller family functions, and is popular for karaoke parties.

Lunch at the restaurant is a steal — $5.75 includes a generous-portioned main dish, as well as a bowl of soup or a spring roll, and rice.

The best reads
— handpicked by some of the best
Bklyn bookstores

Who can you always count on when you're in a bind and need a good book? Your neighborhood bookstore, of course, whose employees read all the newest books before you do. That's why we're running this semi-regular column featuring must-reads, handpicked and written about by the staff at some of our favorite independent bookstores in Brooklyn.

The BookMark Shoppe's pick: "Hush" by Kate White

Most readers know Kate White as editor-in-chief of Cosmo. They might not know that White is also a New York Times best-selling author. "Hush" is White's first stand-alone mystery thriller, starring Lake Warren. Warren, in the middle of a bitter divorce, has a one-night stand with a colleague who turns up dead the next morning. This page-turner will have you guessing — until the last chapter — who was the real target of that murder? Also, look out for true crime journalist Bailey Weggins in White's original popular mystery series.

— Bina Valenzano, co-owner, The BookMark Shoppe [8415 Third Ave. between 84th and 85th streets in Bay Ridge, (718) 833-5115].

Greenlight's pick: "Rin Tin Tin" by Susan Orlean

In her trademark style, Susan Orlean definitely does the story of Rin Tin Tin justice, making it a fascinating and well-researched biography of the dogs and owners and producers involved, but this is a much broader book than just that. This is a sweeping book about America, hidden in a wolf's clothing. Underlying the deceptively straightforward biography aspect of this story is a wealth of cultural observation on how America was changing during this era. Going in and out of war, adjusting to life with and without war, how war changed families and lifestyles, the advent of the concept of "family pet," the beginning of the "pet industry" in the form of training, breeding, dog shows, and household pets, the development of silent films, talk films, then tv, and how all those forms of media affected and changed the way people lived their lives. Orphans, Hollywood, rags to riches and back to rags, the American story she channels through the life of Rin Tin Tin goes on and on and is endlessly fascinating.

— Rebecca Fitting, co-owner, Greenlight Bookstore [686 Fulton St. between S. Elliott Place and S. Portland Avenue in Fort Greene, (718) 246-0200].

WORD's pick: "Zone One" by Colson Whitehead

For people who like zombies: Dude. It's a book about zombies. Zombies in MANHATTAN. Killing zombies and surviving and killing more zombies. Read it already.

For people who don't like zombies: Ah, ignore the zombies. Feel free to see them as a useful metaphor if you must. But don't miss this book. Whitehead is at the top of his game. There are many pages of writing so good, you'll feel like a zombie just ate your heart out and your life is slowly fading before your eyes. Wait! We mean, ignore the zombies.

Lincoln routs Sheepshead, 36-14, stays undefeated

BY ZACH BRAZILLER

Sheepshead Bay's football team came to Coney Island riding a five-game win streak, with a physical and versatile ground attack. The Sharks left Lincoln like all its other opponents, beaten in every phase of the game, the Railsplitters treating them like all the other cupcakes they have routed this fall.

Friday night was supposed to be Lincoln's first test after a season full of soft opponents, but its commanding 36-14 victory felt like the previous six wins, despite Sheepshead Bay's five wins entering the show-down.

Quarterback Jessel Jones used the first half as his personal showcase, throwing two touchdowns, running for two more and gaining 213 yards of total offense. After a sloppy start, Lincoln's defense took control after halftime, creating a safety and holding Sheepshead Bay to -10 yards of offense. Kareem Folkes put a capper on the dominant performance, scoring on a 2-yard touchdown early in the fourth quarter and led the clock with punishing runs.

"We proved ourselves tonight," Lincoln coach Shawn O'Connor said.

Sheepshead Bay coach Fred Snyder wasn't impressed.

"My overall impression is they're not a better team than us and that's it," he said, before cutting the brief interview short.

O'Connor uncharacteristically snapped back when told Snyder's comments: "I guess I outcoached him, Lincoln's Jamiek Davis leaves Sheepshead Bay players in the dust.

because he has a better team."

His players didn't mind the Sharks' lack of respect. They're more focused on facing Canarsie next week. That nose-to-the-grindstone approach has benefitted the Railsplitters all year, O'Connor said. They have treated each opponent the same, whether it is winless FDR or Sheepshead Bay.

"We only think about Lincoln," said Folkes, who ran for 129 yards on 20 carries. "We don't care about the rest of the Public School Athletic League."

It comes from the current crop of seniors, kids who spent last year on the scout team preparing the starters for battle. Only Folkes and two-way lineman Robert Kitching were starters on last year's team, which went undefeated in the regular season and reached the championship game at Yankee Stadium.

"We have a really mature group of seniors," O'Connor said. "We got great leadership. They paid their dues."

Jones was one of them, taking a daily beating going against the likes of Ishaq Williams, Wayne Williams and Kerrick Simmons every day in practice. It got him better, he said, and prepared him for this year.

"It made me tough because I was always trying to run away from them," Jones said with a laugh. "It helped me greatly. Everything I do out there was because I backed up Andrew Vital."

He set the tone against the Sharks (5-2), running for first-half touchdowns of 74 and 63 yards. He also showed fine touch, hitting Denzel Duchenne on a wheel route from 14 yards out and connecting with impressive sophomore wide receiver Jamiek Davis on a 55-yard strike 18 seconds before halftime.

"I feel like he's the best quarterback in the PSAL," said senior linebacker Trevin Frazier, who forced a safety and added a sack. "He can throw, he can run. He can do it all."

Lincoln (7-0) played down Friday's opponent, saying it treated the contest like any other. The Railsplitters did feel they sent a message to the rest of the PSAL with the dominant performance, that this win should make it clear they are not a product of a light schedule but a team taking care of its business on a weekly basis.

"We made a big statement," Folkes said. "We told the rest of the PSAL we're here — we're the team to beat."

Fort Hamilton's win streak ends

BY MARC RAIMONDI AND MIKE SMOLLINS

Erasmus Hall's roller-coaster season hit a new high yesterday — in the form of one the program's greatest victories.

The enigmatic Dutchmen defeated Fort Hamilton, 32-14, in Public Schools Athletic League City Championship division football, snapping the defending champion Tigers' 38-game league winning streak. All-American quarterback and safety Wayne Morgan, the city's top prospect, had four touchdowns.

"You know the message we are sending," the senior said. "We're here. We are the best team in the city and can beat anyone in the city when we're at our best."

Erasmus Hall (4-3) has proven that. The Dutchmen beat title contender Tottenham earlier the season. But they have also lost three games, twice coughing up big leads and the third, a 30-8 romp by middling De Witt Clinton. For those reasons, coach Danny Landberg didn't find too much comfort in beating Fort Hamilton (6-1).

"We gotta be consistent because our kids think they're invincible and it's our job to show them they're not," he said.

The game turned in the second quarter. Morgan found Khalil Lewin for a 60-yard touchdown strike to give E-Hall a 20-14 lead with 6:20 left in the half and five minutes later Shaquell Jackson added a 3-yard score. Perhaps most importantly, Fort Hamilton quarterback Marvin Centeno injured his shoulder and was carted away in an ambulance. Before that, he accounted for both of his team's touchdowns, a 5-yard pass to Robert Thomas and a 2-yard run, and rushed for 86 yards on nine carries.

"The injury to our quarterback was probably the turning point," Tigers coach Danny Perez said. "Now we gotta start a new streak."

Thomas filled in under center for Centeno. Fort Hamilton was able to run the ball afterward, but never got its passing game going. Tyrone Raymond ran for 114 yards on 13 carries and Stefon Hayles had 74 yards on 15 carries.

Loughlin AD and girls volleyball coach beats cancer

BY MARC RAIMONDI

The atmosphere at Bishop Loughlin was raucous, the hundreds of fans in attendance jumping out of their seats with every point. The Lions girls volleyball team swept St. Agnes on Senior Day and the players were ecstatic afterward, dancing, cheering and enjoying baked desserts.

Things got serious in the classroom a few minutes later, though.

"I told them, 'This is fulfilling for me,'" Loughlin coach and athletic director Angela Proce said. "Last year was rough. It was a totally different year."

Last September, Proce was diagnosed with stage 1 breast cancer. She had surgery to remove a lump a month later and after volleyball season began three months of chemotherapy followed by 6-1/2 weeks of radiation treatment.

Proce, 42, lost all her hair and was physically exhausted every day over the winter — yet she still came in almost every day to fulfill her duties as athletic director during boys and girls basketball season.

In July, a mammogram and sonogram revealed she was cancer-free. This season, by contrast, has been a dream. Loughlin is 10-2 and in second place in the Catholic High School Athletic Association Brooklyn-Queens Division II with a realistic shot to win the title and advance to the Class A state tournament.

"Her energy is irreplaceable," Lions senior captain Ashley Murrell said. "We're trying to take it all the way this year for her. This is our gift to her."

Murrell said she and her teammates were devastated last year when they found out their coach, who "is like a mother" to them, had cancer. Proce missed the team's playoff match and was unable to coach softball while she was undergoing radiation treatment in the spring.

Somehow, though, she was a fixture at Loughlin during basketball season, and not just in the office during school hours. Wearing a hat, Proce sat through boys basketball tripleheaders and girls doubleheaders. Loughlin boys hoops coach Ed Gonzalez said she still wanted to drive the bus to away games, and the ones she couldn't make, she called him minutes after the final buzzer.

On Senior Night for boys basketball, the team presented Proce with a gift and the managers said a few words.

"The girls couldn't even speak," Gonzalez said. "They couldn't speak about her without shedding tears. It's pretty amazing what she does for Loughlin and how the kids receive her."

A Howard Beach resident, Price is incredibly energetic with seemingly unlimited volume. During the match last Wednesday, she announced to the capacity crowd that the scoreboard had a glitch. There was no microphone necessary. Everyone in attendance heard her loud and clear.

"She's energetic, loud all the time, yelling," Murrell

Embattled Nazareth coach faces cancer

BY MARC RAIMONDI

Starting a month from now, Apache Paschall was supposed to have one focus: guiding his nationally ranked Nazareth girls basketball team to a second straight New York State Federation Class AA title. Now one of the most well-known high school coaches in the country has a much larger fight ahead of him.

Paschall was diagnosed last week with squamous cell carcinoma, a form of skin cancer that attacks cells in the face, ears, neck, hands or arms. Doctors told Paschall, who has a lump on his neck, that it was caught at an early stage and had not spread to vital organs.

It'll still be a long road. Paschall will start radiation and chemotherapy treatment in three weeks, at the same time pre-season practice begins. With him getting treatment five days a week, the best-case scenario is that it'll be complete in a little less than two months. Paschall still plans to coach this season or at least be a presence in some way at Nazareth.

In the beginning of June, Paschall started noticing a growth on the right side of his neck, but thought his glands were swollen, which has happened to him previously. When it didn't go away two weeks later, Paschall went to his doctor and was given antibiotics. At the time, it was thought to just be an infection.

By the end of June, the lump had grown and gotten stiffer. But Paschall, who runs the Exodus travel program, rescheduled his biopsy appointment until after the July college live evaluation period.

"He decided to go to [a tournament in] New Orleans, because it was better for the girls," Nazareth assistant and close confidante Lauren Best said.

The August biopsy didn't reveal anything. Paschall eventually needed to have a piece of the lump removed and results came back last week that told him with certainty that it was cancer. Paschall said he went into the office and the doctor told him he didn't want to speak with him alone. So he went and got Best, who was waiting for him outside.

"That's when I knew it wasn't going to be good news," Paschall said. "He said the word cancer and after that everything else he said, I just zoned out. It was like I was listening to Charlie Brown's teacher."

The coach is no stranger to health problems. Last year during the season he was diagnosed with congestive heart failure, missing a number of games. Paschall has since changed his diet and lost 40 pounds.

This will prove to be an even tougher battle. The chemo and radiation are going to affect vital things, like his speech and swallowing. Eventually, he might need to have surgery to remove the growth after finishing treatment. Paschall will need to see a speech therapist and he said doctors have told him that he'll have to relearn how to swallow.

"I'm realistic," Paschall said. "I'm not gonna be able to stand up and say the smart, funny stuff that I normally say to the kids."

Yet he is adamant about making as many practices and games that he can. He'll schedule his treatments for the morning with Best in tow.

"And then from there we're gonna head straight to the gym," Best said. "He's crazy."

Ida's roll continues

Ida's journal, Oct. 22, 1961.

I met Y.A. Tittle AND Charlie Conerly today!!! Was so swell of Uncle Bartek to get me a ticket to see the Giants! This was my first time to Yankee Stadium and I sure hate the Los Angeles Rams — I was plenty sore when our boys let ol' Dick Bass run half the field for a touchdown. It's OK though — Conerly came right back at 'em and we won! Mama wouldn't let me get a hot dog at the game, so I was mad at first until I saw that she packed me a cream soda and the BEST roast beef sandwich ever. Said it was from a new place on Nostrand. Have to check it out but am really busy reading up on next week's game against the Cowboys ... I'm really worried about them!

The Giants, it turns out, would lose that game to the Cowboys by a point — just as our sapling soothsayer Ida Eisenstein had feared. Football historians now point to this particular passage as the genesis of Ida's storied career — immortalized in perpetuity in Canton, and, of course, the pages of this newspaper. Last week was no exception: Ida posted a jaw-dropping 8-4 record to improve her overall standing to 52-44-5, prompting her to recall her early season stumble, and summon Greek poet Aeschylus for her inspiration of the week: "I'm not afraid of storms, for I'm learning to sail my ship."

IDA'S PICKS

Texans (-10), Panthers (-3.5), Titans (-7), Ravens (-12.5), Bills (-4.5), Steelers (+2.5), Seahawks (+2.5), Eagles (-3.5), Chargers (-4).

IDA'S BREAKOUTS

Giants (-10) over Dolphins:

"The Dolphins aren't doing too well."

LIONS (-3.5) OVER BRONCOS

"I'm going to give the Lions one more try."

SAINTS (-10) OVER RAMS

"They're on a roll."

IDA'S KRYPTONITE LOCK OF THE WEEK:

49ERS (-9) OVER BROWNS: "They're a good team and the Browns are not."

SEASON RECORD: 52-44-5; 5-2 on Kryptonite Lock of the Week.

YOUR BROOKLYN AVIATORS SET TO KICK OFF SECOND SEASON

MB

BY THOMAS TRACY

Get ready, hockey fans — the Brooklyn Aviators — are taking flight again!

Brooklyn's winter wonders are ready to cut up the ice at the Aviator Sports Complex at Floyd Bennett Field — and this time they're not going to stop slapping pucks and punching out opponents until they come home with the coveted Commissioner's Cup.

During their inaugural season last year, the scrappy squad finished with the best record in the Federal Hockey League — the same league featured in the Paul Newman classic "Slap Shot" — and put together a 21 game winning streak, but lost to the hated Akwesasne Warriors in the playoffs.

But this year will be different, explains coach Bob Miller. The 2011-2012 Aviators will be leaner, meaner, faster, and a whole lot bigger, and ready to take on any comers at the Hanger, he said.

"We're putting together a more aggressive up front team with a little more size," he said on Oct. 21, as he was rounding out the team's roster. "We need bigger guys that hit hard and bring some more toughness."

Miller said that at least seven members of last year's squad, including star center Jesse Felton and right wing Andrew Scampoli, will be returning. The Aviators have also scooped up a few players from the Southern Professional Hockey League, including 6'2", 215-pound Tommy Lee, a former Knoxville Ice Bear.

The Aviators new super-sized squad's first test of the season will be a rematch with Akwesasne on Oct. 27. But Miller says he has nothing to prove to the team that snatched the Commissioner's Cup away from him.

"We had a great four games against them,"

Miller said. "We went out there and played some good hockey, but they came out on top."

Still, Scampoli doesn't mind rolling over the Warriors to get the first "W" of the season.

"The Aviators that are returning want to beat Akwesasne partly because of last year," Scampoli said. "You may be satisfied with taking the penalty when you break your opponents leg, but he'll be jumping for victory with the rest of team when that penalty costs you the game."

But the Warriors may not be the Aviators' only problem this season. A new squad coming out of hated-even-more New Jersey — the Outlaws — could be a threat. Both Miller and Scampoli have some history with the team's general manager, Chris Firriolo.

Firriolo was the head coach of the Danbury Whalers last year — which the Aviators decimated to move to the finals. Scampoli and Miller also worked under Firriolo when he was head coach of the Brooklyn Aces — the Aviators predecessor that packed it in after one season at Floyd Bennett Field. If Miller and Scampoli have nothing to prove, then Firriolo certainly may when the two teams meet up at the Aviators home opener on Oct. 29.

Yet Miller expects to beat them, and have fun doing it.

"Having a good fun season means winning, because losing isn't fun," the coach said.

The Brooklyn Aviators home opener against the New Jersey Outlaws at Aviator Sports [3159 Flatbush Ave. in Floyd Bennett Field in Marine Park, (718) 758-7580] on Oct. 29 at 7:05 pm. Tickets $12 ($10 for seniors and children under 14). For information visit www.brooklynaviators.com.

Loughlin

said. "That's our motivation. That's our little warrior."

It's that fight that allowed her to push through the exhaustion to be at Loughlin just about every day last winter.

"I just felt that I needed to come to work to just try to live a normal life," Proce said. "I wasn't gonna let cancer just bring me down."

Added Gonzalez: "That's the attitude she instills in her volleyball team. She's an athlete by nature. She plays every sport. She's very competitive and she wants the kids to do well. If they had half of her competitiveness, we wouldn't lose many games in any sport here."

The hardest part, Proce said, was losing her hair. She didn't want to wear a wig, so she came to the Fort Greene school wearing an assortment of hats. Her hair has grown in now, though it's curly as opposed to straight.

In many ways this is a new beginning for Proce.

She went to Italy, where her parents were born, this summer for the first time to treat herself. Since the school year has started, she has become more active in breast cancer awareness. Last week, Loughlin had a "Dig Pink" match and she and the girls participated in the breast cancer walk in Prospect Park. In January, Proce said the school will also host a Coaches vs. Cancer event.

In the meantime, though, the Division II championship is out there to win and Loughlin has put itself in a pretty good spot to do it. Just to be around the same kids, back with them, motivated Proce to get better.

Murrell and her teammates don't realize that they have had as great an impact on their coach as she has had on them.

"Many of these girls helped me through last year," Proce said. "I was sobbing to these kids last September, last October, because I couldn't believe I had breast cancer. ... The support of the kids and the faculty and, of course, family and friends really kept me going."

► JOB INFORMATION

DeBlasio Warns Consumers About Classified Ads
 Toll numbers may be a direct line to trouble. Classified ads are intended to help people by facilitating communication and advertising available services; however, some of the headlines & service numbers in classifieds actually hurt the people who rely on them by cheating them of their hard-earned dollars. "Most newspapers print a disclaimer in their classified ad section to warn readers about numbers that are a direct line to trouble. Any number starting with 900, 540, 595 or 871 charges a fee beyond a local call. In some instances, ads initially advertise calls to a local number, but then direct callers to a second number starting with one of the paid exchanges. "Consumers must also question the legitimacy of vague classifieds because they too could be a scam. Before responding to an ad, consumers should verify the source of all information & always be wary about sending money or signing a contract with an unknown party."
