OUR SCORE and seven years ago our fathers brought forth tion, conceived in liberty, and dedicated to the proposition that all men are

OW WE ARE ENGAGED in a great civil war, testing whether that nation, or any nation so conceived and so dedicated. can long endure. We are met on a great battlefield of that war. We have come to dedicate a portion of that field as a final resting place for those who here gave their lives that that nation might live. It is altogether fitting and proper that we should do this.

But, In a larger sense, we cannot dedicate — we cannot consecrate — we cannot hallow — this ground. The brave men, living and dead, who struggled here have consecrated it far above our poor power to add or to detract. The world will little note nor long rememforget what they did here.

T IS FOR US, THE LIVING, rather to be dedicated here to the unfinished work which they who fought here have thus far so nobly advanced. It is rather for us to be here dedicated to the great task remaining before us — that from these honored dead we take increased devotion to that cause for which they gave the last full measure of devotion: that we here highly resolve that these dead shall not have died in vain; that this nation, under God, shall have a new birth of freedom: and that government of the people, by the people, for the people, shall not perish from the earth.

In response to Dan Freeman's question about the meaning of "24-baur community" ("Letters," Aug. 19), the answer is easy. A very wise adage is: "If it ain't broke, don't fix it."

Those of us dismayed at the closing of the Bay Ridge branch of the library feel this keenly. We now have a bookmobile so cramped and claustrophobic that I call it the sardine can.

Was the library in such dreadful shape that. Was the library in such dreadful shape that. We have been a superior of the control of the sardine can.
